As the result of this great influx of people into quiet Spanish San Francisco with its not more than fifty small houses prior thereto, forty thousand landing in 1849, whereas the population had been but a few hundred the year before, there was a magic change in its appearance. The people could not be housed except in tents and shanties lined with bunks. Many houses were made in Boston and shipped to San Francisco in sections. One writer speaks of seventy five houses imported from China. Though houses sprang up by hundreds over night, they could not begin to hold the thousands who arrived in '49. The streets were unpaved and so deep with mud that in the wintertime horses and wagons were literally swallowed up. General Sherman, who was here in those days, stated he had seen mules stumble and drown in the liquid mud, and had seen a sign erected at Clay and Kearny streets bearing the warning "This street is impassable, not even jackass-able." Streets were filled in with all kinds of material.

One traveler speaks of a sidewalk, near the express office, some 200 feet in length, constructed of a row of large cooking stoves, beyond these a double row of boxes of tobacco, and rolls of wire and sheet lead. Owing to an over-shipment of these materials they were cheaper than lumber, which sold for $600 per thousand. But before the next winter Montgomery and Kearny streets were graded and planked. And within a year good hotels, splendidly-fitted saloons, attractive theaters and places of amusement had been built. But strong, self-reliant, dauntless Americans conquered all difficulties and built a splendid city and state within a few months. The miner was a rollicking, care-free soul. A Pioneer of '53 has handed me the words of a typical song, very popular in early days and sung in every mining camp and town, written by John Woodard, which goes thus:

Before you now stands Old Tom Moore,
A relic of former days,
A bummer too, they call me now,
But what care I for praise,
For my heart is filled with the days of yore,
And oft do I repine
For the days of old, the days of gold,
The days of '49

I had comrades then who loved me well,
A jovial, saucy crew,
There were some hard cases I must confess,
Still they were staunch and true,
Who never flinched whate'er the pinch,
Would never fret nor whine,
But like good old bricks, they stood the kicks
In the days of '49

There was Razorback Bill who could outroar
A buffalo bull, you bet,
He would roar all night
He would roar all day,
And I believe Bill's roaring yet
One night he fell in a prospect hole,
Which was a roaring bad design,
For in that hole Bill roared out his soul,
In the days of '49

There was Monte Pete, I'll ne'er forget,
For the luck that he'd always had,
He'd play all day and he'd play all night,
Or as long as you had a head
He'd play you "draw," or ante a slug,
He would go a hatful blind,
But in the game with death Pete lost his breath,
In the days of '49.

There was poor lame Jess, a hard old case,
Who never would repent;
Jess was never known to miss a meal,
Or to ever pay a cent,
But poor old Jess like all the rest,
Did to Death at last resign,
For in his bloom he went up the flume,
In the days of '49.

Of all the comrades I had then,
Not one is left to toast,
They have left me here in my misery,
Like some poor wandering ghost,
And as I go from place to place,
Folks call me a traveling sign,
Saying 'Here's Old Tom Moore, a bummer sure,
From the days of '49

Men of courage and character found their way up the rivers, canyons and ravines of the gold regions. At first the trees were felled, clearings made, and then tents arose. These gave way to the log cabin, and then to pleasant homes. The hills were terraced, and orchards and flowers planted. Wherever a settlement was established, an American schoolhouse was built, and beside it a flagpole cut from a tall pine was placed and the American Flag raised. The miner was, above all, patriotic. Every national holiday was celebrated. The miner's band and the local fire department led the parades through streets decorated with pine trees from the mountainside. And the fair daughters of the mountains and their sturdy partners, to the tunes of the fiddle, danced until the rising sun came peeping over the eastern hills. The hardy miners in their search for gold quickly followed up the canyons and ravines to the very sources of the mountain streams and built their rude log cabins and pitched their camps under the snow-capped peaks of the Sierra Nevadas. Bret Harte caught the romance and spirit of the times when he wrote:

Above the pines the moon was slowly drifting,
The river sang below,
The dim Sierras, far beyond uplifting
Their minarets of snow

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

GLORY BE! THERE HAS BEEN A DECided change, for the better, since March fourth. While no appreciable upturn in business is yet noticeable, improvement in the tenor of the people is everywhere apparent. Hope and courage have replaced dejection and fear, and out of that replacement must come "happy days." The "corner" has, at least, been sighted, and there is every indication that "old man depression" will, in reasonable time, be routed.

All the credit, for the splendid progress made in getting this country back to normalcy, belongs to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who became President of the United States of America March 4. Quoting from his inaugural address, a remarkable document, confidence inspiring:

"I am certain that my fellow Americans expect that on my induction into the Presidency I will address them with a candor and a decision which the present situation of our Nation impels. This is preeminently the time to speak the truth, the whole truth, frankly and boldly. Nor need we shrink from honestly facing conditions in our country today. This great Nation will endure as it has endured, will revive and will prosper. So first of all, let me assert my firm belief that the only thing we have to fear is fear itself—nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance. In every dark hour of our national life a leadership of frankness and vigor has met with that understanding and support of the people themselves which is essential to victory. I am convinced that you will again give that support to leadership in these critical days.

"In such a spirit on my part and on yours we face our common difficulties. They concern, thank God, only material things. Values have shrunken to fantastic levels; taxes have risen; our ability to pay has fallen; government of all kinds is faced by serious curtailment of income; the means of exchange are frozen in the currents of trade; the withered leaves of industrial enterprise lie on every side; farmers find no markets for their produce; the savings of many years in thousands of families are gone. More important, a host of unemployed citizens face the grim problem of existence, and an equally great number toil with little return. Only a foolish optimist can deny the dark realities of the moment.

"Yet our distress comes from no failure of substance. We are stricken by no plague of locusts. Compared with the perils which our forefathers conquered because they believed and were not afraid, we have still much to be thankful for. Nature still offers her bounty and human efforts have multiplied it. Plenty is at our doorstep, but a generous use of it languishes in the very sight of the supply. Primarily this is because the rulers of the exchange of mankind's goods have failed, through their own stubbornness and their own incompetence, have admitted their failure, and abdicated. Practices of the unscrupulous money changers stand indicted in the court of public opinion, rejected by the hearts and minds of men.

"True they have tried, but their efforts have been cast in the pattern of an outworn tradition. Faced by failure of credit they have proposed only the lending of more money. Stripped of the lure of profit by which to induce our people to follow their false leadership, they have resorted to exhortations, pleading tearfully for restored confidence. They know only the rules of a generation of self-seekers. They have no vision, and when there is no vision the people perish.

"The money changers have fled from their high seats in the temple of our civilization. We may now restore that temple to the ancient truths. The measure of the restoration lies in the extent to which we apply social values more noble than mere monetary profit. Happiness lies not in the mere possession of money; it lies in the joy of achievement, in the thrill of creative effort. The joy and moral stimulation of work no longer must be forgotten in the mad chase of evanescent profits. These dark days will be worth all they cost us if they teach us that our true destiny is not to be ministered unto, but to minister to ourselves and to our fellow men.

"Recognition of the falsity of material wealth as the standard of success goes hand in hand with the abandonment of the false belief that public office and high political position are to be valued only by the standards of pride of place and personal profit; and there must be an end to a conduct in banking and in business which too often has given to a sacred trust the likeness of callous and selfish wrongdoing. Small wonder that confidence languishes, for it thrives only on honesty, on honor, on the sacredness of obligations, on faithful protection, on unselfish performance; without them it can not live.

"Restoration calls, however, not for changes in ethics alone. This Nation asks for action, and action now. Our greatest primary task is to put people to work. This is no unsolvable problem if we face it wisely and courageously. . . . Hand in hand with this we must frankly recognize the overbalance of population in our industrial centers and, by engaging on a national scale in a redistribution, endeavor to provide a better use of the land for those best fitted for the land. . . . Finally, in our progress toward a resumption of work we require two safeguards against a return of the evils of the old order; there must be a strict supervision of all banking and credits and investments; there must be an end to speculation with other people's money, and there must be provision for an adequate but sound currency. These are the lines of attack.

"If I read the temper of our people correctly, we now realize as we have never realized before our interdependence on each other; that we cannot merely take but we must give as well; that if we are to go forward, we must move as a trained and loyal army willing to sacrifice for the good of a common discipline, because without such discipline no progress is made, no leadership becomes effective. We are, I know, ready and willing to submit our lives and property to such discipline, because it makes possible a leadership which aims at a larger good. This I propose to offer, pledging that the larger purposes will bind upon us all as a sacred obligation with a unity of duty hitherto evoked only in time of armed strife. With this pledge taken, I assume unhesitatingly the leadership of this great army of our people dedicated to a disciplined attack upon our common problems.

"Action in this image and to this end is feasible under the form of government which we have inherited from our ancestors. Our Constitution is so simple and practical that it is possible always to meet extraordinary needs by changes in emphasis and arrangement without loss of essential form. That is why our constitutional system has proved itself the most superbly enduring political mechanism the modern world has produced. It has met every stress of vast expansion of territory, of foreign wars, of bitter internal strife, of world relations. . . . For the trust reposed in me I will return the courage and the devotion that befit the time. I can do no less.

"We face the arduous days that lie before us in the warm courage of national unity; with the clear consciousness of seeking old and precious moral values; with the clean satisfaction that comes from the stern performance of duty by old and young alike. We aim at the assurance of a rounded and permanent national life.

"We do not distrust the future of essential democracy. The people of the United States have not failed. In their need they have registered a mandate that they want direct, vigorous action. They have asked for discipline and direction under leadership. They have made me the present instrument of their wishes. In the spirit of the gift I take it.

"In this dedication of a Nation we humbly ask the blessing of God. May He protect each and every one of us. May He guide me in the days to come."

President Roosevelt believes in action, and immediately following his inauguration he proceeded to get it. His messages are brief, and in plain words that all may understand. He took the bank situation direct to the homes of the masses, via the air, and thereby relieved all anxiety on that subject. He has faith in The People, and they must have faith in him. Based on the principles set forth in his inaugural address, every loyal citizen should have the courage to follow the leadership of President Roosevelt, for unquestionably he will, without fear or favor, wage a successful "attack upon our common problems."

Addressing the Daughters of the American Revolution at San Francisco, V. S. McClatchy, executive secretary of the California Joint Immigration Committee, made these, among other, statements:

While the public have been encouraged to believe that our immigration problems have been more or less satisfactorily solved by the restriction acts of 1921 and 1924, the situation is really grave, if not dangerous. The act of 1924 was a compromise measure deprived of teeth to insure its passage in the face of determined opposition from congressmen representing foreign-minded districts anxious to keep the gates open. These influences, coupled with interests demanding entrance of cheap labor regardless of injury to citizenship and nation, have blocked efforts to remedy the law's defects since 1924.

The desire to make "a friendly gesture to neighboring nations" opened the gates wide without restriction to all Mexicans and citizens of the western hemisphere and has kept them open since. In consequence there were admitted under the law, between 1920 and July 1, 1931, 4,204,238 aliens. In addition there came in illegally over 2,000,000. This total addition to our population exceeded the number of unemployed at the time the present depression commenced.

Many of the legal entrants were undesirable as permanent settlers and prospective citizens. Most of the illegal entrants were undesirable; many were vicious and criminal. Our record for lawlessness, exceeding that of any other nation on the globe, is due even more to the presence of such elements than to conditions induced by the great war and prohibition. This illegal entry continues unabated because 747 patrolmen cannot keep closed during twenty-four hours of each day the innumerable loopholes on a line covering 8,000 miles of border and sea coast; and we have no system of registration such as proves effective in European countries in speedy apprehension of aliens who have entered illegally.

The result is a rapid and alarming increase in the number and political power of undesirable groups and submersion of the class of citizenry upon which the nation must rely for maintenance of the standards necessary for its vigor and even life. In the unincorporated districts of Los Angeles County the record of births less deaths for seven years was—for Whites 241, for Mexicans 4,070! Only drastic correction of the faults in our immigration policy and inauguration of effective measures for apprehension and deportation of deportable aliens will prevent disastrous results thus clearly foreshadowed.

April 9, in the library at Grass Valley, Nevada County, the Harvard Club of San Francisco will place a bronze tablet in memory of Josiah Royce, deceased, a native of Grass Valley. Professor Royce was known as one of the greatest philosophers this country has produced.

At Sacramento, the State Legislature continues wrestling with the financial problem, in an endeavor to balance the State Government budget. It is no "inside" secret that California is in a serious financial condition, due, to a great extent, to excessive waste of public funds in gratifying demands of political racketeers.

The fact-finding committee of the State Senate is giving much-needed service, in the interest of the people. It has carefully and thoroughly examined the machinery of the State Government, and its findings reflect anything but favorably on the course of government. The committee has made numerous recommendations that, if approved, will lessen government cost

A PRAYER

(HUGH RANDALL ACKLEY.)

God lead us back to simple ways
Of living, as in bygone days,
With Truth and Honor, once again,
The lights that guide the lives of men.

God give each man the saving grace
To mentally exchange his place
With one less fortunate than he,
His duty to more clearly see.

God free men's hearts and minds of greed
And plant, instead, therein the seed
Of Love and Charity again;
Send Christ to dwell on earth with men.

—Exchange.

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

WHILE NO FULLY DEVELOPED rainstorm visited California during April 1883, showers fell frequently in different parts of the state, and there were no desiccating north winds. While the month's rainfall was but .87 of an inch, it was sufficient to keep the growing crops in good condition, and the state was assured a prosperous year.

April 19 being the centennial anniversary of the day when the king of England recognized the independence of the United States of America, the national flag was flung to the breeze from every California flagpole.

The Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West met in sixth annual session at San Francisco April 9 to 12. Major A. F. Jones (Argonaut Parlor No. 81) of Oroville, Butte County, was elected Grand President; Clarence E. Parker (Sacramento Parlor No. 3) of Sacramento, Grand Secretary; C. H. Lindley (Stockton Parlor No. 7) of Stockton, Grand Marshal; M. A. Dorn (Pacific Parlor No. 10) of San Francisco, Grand Lecturer.

The telephone company, lately organized, made an experimental long-distance test April 1. Using a telegraph wire, telephonic communication was had between San Francisco, San Jose and Sacramento, a distance of 190 miles. Communication between operators at those points was perfect, and the fact was hailed with front-page publicity enthusiasm by the daily press.

A. F. Coronel offered for sale in 1880, at $100 an acre, fifty-three acres of his vineyard near Los Angeles City, but could find no purchaser. This year (1883), owing to improved business conditions, he was offered $1,000 an acre for the land, but refused it. Land values in California South were bounding upward, due to increased immigration.

In Calaveras County, a petition signed by a majority of the voters asked the Board of Supervisors to increase saloon licenses to $150 a quarter, that the number of drink emporiums in that county might be materially reduced.

The palatial residence of ex-Senator Milton S. Latham in Menlo Park, San Mateo County, was sold to Mrs. Mark Hopkins for $205,000.

The Rancho Paso de Bartolo of 2,700 acres in Los Angeles County, owned by Pio Pico, was sold to B. Cohn for $62,837.

A special train of two cars, chartered by Henry Villard, made the run from Ogden, Utah State, to Oakland, Alameda County, a distance of 833 miles, in twenty-three hours. This was the fastest time yet made on a Pacific Coast railroad.

A large flourmill, to be run by water power, was built at Smartsville, Yuba County.

A pulpmill established at Towle, Placer County, began operations April 5. The first week it produced ten carloads of pulp, which was shipped to a Stockton, San Joaquin County, papermill.

The Glenn ranch domain in Colusa County had seeded 47,000 acres to wheat. Heavy storms in March saved the seed from dying out, and a bumper crop was now assured.

A shipment of 130,000 sheep was made by railroad from Los Angeles County to Texas State.

An oak tree, eight feet in diameter and twenty-four feet in circumference, was felled in Yuba County. It produced twenty-seven cords of stovewood.

A San Francisco mass meeting of carpenters April 13 decided to put into effect May 1 a nine-hour day. The plumbers followed suit. The eight-hour day came later.

The North Bloomfield hydraulic mine in Nevada County cleaned up, from a two-weeks washing, $16,000 worth of gold dust.

A prospector came into Fresno City and reported finding in the Sierra east of there a quartz ledge, two hundred feet wide and three miles long, speckled with gold. Specimens he exhibited assayed $43 a ton. He named the find "Mother of Gold."

A nickel, circulated only in California, bearing on one side the character "V." with the usual word "cents" omitted, was being plated with goldleaf and passed on the unwary as a five-dollar piece. Chinamen were the most numerous victims. The Federal Government quickly remedied the fault by adding the word "cents."

Charles H. Harriman, champion pedestrian, at Truckee, Nevada County, April 19 walked 121 miles, without a minute's rest, in twenty-nine hours. He won a dollar an hour.

The Lakeport, Lake County, stage was held up by a highwayman near Cloverdale, Sonoma County, April 12. The express box and the mail sacks were carried away by the robber.

The Chinatown of Dutch Flat, Placer County, for the third time in a few years, burned April 17 with a $25,000 loss.

Peter Branstetter's planingmill at Grass Valley, Nevada County, burned April 8, causing a loss of $8,000.

The night of April 19 fire broke out in a Sacramento City K street restaurant. The brick wall fell and crushed to the floor the roof of an adjoining saloon, filled with musicians and others from a dance, just concluded. Six well-known citizens were killed, and many others were severely injured.

John B. Linn, Pioneer and owner of extensive hydraulic mine properties, died April 9 at Dutch Flat, Placer County.

Thomas H. Hanson, who arrived in Marin County in 1847 from Virginia, died at San Rafael, April 17.

Captain Thomas Blythe, millionaire San Francisco real estate owner, dropped dead April 4. He was believed to be unmarried, but a claimed-to-be wife and about a hundred relatives from distant places came forward to claim kinship and thus share in his valuable estate.

W. C. Fletcher was killed April 10 by a cavein at a mine in Washington, Nevada County.

George Keeny was duck hunting near Rio Vista, Solano County, April 8. An accidental discharge of the shotgun blew off his head.

Henry E. Johnson and James Donnelly got into a quarrel over a trivial matter in a Stockton, San Joaquin County, saloon April 16. Both drew bowie knives and carved each other to death.

A man named McCullough, living at Dayton, Butte County, went to Chico, got drunk, went home and fell in a stupor upon the kitchen floor. Attempting to raise him, his wife burst a blood-vessel and died instantly.

Mrs. Ann Flaherty was decapitated in the Nevada Bank building, San Francisco, April 29, as the result of elevator trouble.

Harry T. Banning and Barney Ashley, lighthouse keepers at Point New Year, San Mateo County, April 9 attempted to convey two friends to the mainland in a boat. The boat capsized and the four men were drowned.

"WHO REMEMBERS EXCITEMENT OF FLOOD WHICH NEVER OCCURRED?"

The above query tops an article in the "Livermore Herald" of March 10, which follows: "Did fear of a flood which never came send Mexican residents of the Livermore Valley to the mountains for safety in March 1883, just fifty years ago? The question has been raised by a statement in the 'California Happenings of Fifty Years Ago' in the March issue of The Grizzly Bear and the inability of The Herald to locate anyone who has first-hand or even second-hand knowledge of such an event. . . . Questioning of a number of pioneers who were in Livermore in March 1883, and of other persons who are familiar with the early history of the valley has not located even one who remembers such an occurrence or having heard of it. A number remember the heavy rainfall of the month, the precipitation in Livermore amounting to 3.45 inches according to official records. M. G. Callaghan, Livermore's authority on early California history, seriously doubts that a Padre Anseleno was in California in 1783. He has not encountered such a name in his studies of the history of that period. It would be interesting to learn if there is anyone who has any knowledge of the event described by The Grizzly Bear, and The Herald would be glad to learn if something like that did actually occur or existed only in the mind of some imaginative newspaper writer of the day."

Captioned "No Exodus of Mexicans Here in '83," the following appeared in the "Herald" of March 17. "There was no exodus of Mexican families to Cedar Mountain in March 1883, for fear of a flood which never came, but prediction of the flood did cause some Mexicans in the Pleasanton district to go to the Sunol hills for fancied safety. This is the information derived from the question asked in The Herald last Friday, prompted by a story in the 'Fifty Years Ago' department of the March Grizzly Bear.

"There is incontrovertible testimony that Cedar Mountain did not harbor any persons seeking refuge from an expected flood. John McGlinchey, veteran stockman, was in charge of a band of sheep belonging to the late Jas. Gallagher on the mountain in March 1883, the time the exodus from the valley was supposed to have occurred, and he did not see even one person there for that reason. Horace Overacker, pioneer of the Mocho district, was residing at his place in the canyon just opposite Cedar Mountain in 1883, and he states that no persons ever camped on it to escape a flood. Neither John Barry, who has a keen memory of events in the early history of the valley, Thos. Green of Dublin, who was also very familiar with the valley at that time, nor J. A. Rochin, another pioneer, have any recollection of any such event.

"However, Mrs. A. J. Young of Oakland, one of the earliest settlers in the valley still living, has a distinct recollection of some Mexican families in the vicinity of Pleasanton going into the hills near Sunol to escape a flood which had been predicted. Geo. K. Taylor, pioneer of the valley and until recently rural mail carrier, was clerk in a grocery store here at that time and remembers that a number of Mexican families purchased extra supplies at that time and said that they were going to the hills, but would not give a reason or say just where they were going. It appears that the story published in The Grizzly Bear was founded on fact, but that the details are not entirely correct.

"Discussion of this event reminded several persons that a number of years later, probably in the early '90s, a religious fanatic in Oakland predicted a tidal wave which would destroy the city, and large numbers of persons from that city were so influenced as to dispose of their homes and move into the hills. Thos. Green remembers seeing several hundred camped in the Palomares district between Dublin and Hayward, and Livermore people remember seeing others camped in the mountains south of this valley. The tidal wave failed to materialize, as had the flood of ten years before."

"This will be more than just a meeting," writes Robert J. Deward to The Grizzly Bear in Quartz Parlor's behalf, "for Grass Valley is the center of the gold-rush country, and in precincts can still be found much of the glamor and color which made it famous as a mining camp. In spite of the fact that Grass Valley is an old mining town, it has kept pace with the world in progress, and all the conveniences of any modern city will be found there. Set aside May 15 to 18 on your calendar for the journey to Grass Valley and the Fifty-sixth Grand Parlor."

A Sketch of the Entertainment.

First—For those fortunate enough to reach Grass Valley by Sunday noon, May 14, there is a trip to the famous gold mines, a chance to see them producing the yellow metal, and a trip 9,000 feet down into the depths of the earth to see the quartz gold being taken from the veins.

Second — Welcome entertainment Monday night, May 15.

Third—Grand Parlor banquet. Also, a grand ball and, as Sluice Box Ike says, "If yuh ain't never been t' a gran' ball in these yere hills yuh ain't seen nothin' yet!"

Fourth—An all-day tour of the gold country and forgotten mining camps; stalking the trail of the '49er through the famous hydraulic diggings and along the high Sierran streams.

Note—Room reservations may be made through the Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce. State the number of people, number of rooms desired, with or without bath, etc.

Candidates for Grand Parlor Offices.

Grand President Seth Millington (Colusa No. 69) will preside at the Grass Valley Grand Parlor, and at its close will automatically become the Junior Past Grand. Koenig (Golden Gate No. 29) to Grand First Vice, and Grand Third Vice Harmon D. Skillin (Castro No. 232) to Grand Second Vice. Candidates for other elective offices are:

Grand Treasurer—John A. Corotto (San Jose No. 22) of San Jose, incumbent.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Grand Outside Sentinel William A. Reuter (Sepulveda No. 263) of San Pedro.

Grand Trustees (seven to be chosen)—Jesse H. Miller (California No. 1) of San Francisco, incumbent; Henry S. Lyon (Placerville No. 9) of Placerville, incumbent; Horace J. Leavitt (Mount Bally No. 87) of Weaverville, incumbent; Charles H. Spengemann (Hesperian No. 137) of San Francisco, incumbent; Eldred L. Meyer (Santa Monica Bay No. 267) of Santa Monica, incumbent.

Plentiful rumors of other candidates for various Grand Parlor offices have reached The Grizzly Bear; in fact, as regards one particular office they have been persistent, and have originated at several different sources. All rumored candidates for every office have been communicated with. Those only who have supplied definite information are listed above. Some prospective candidates are, no doubt, waiting for their Parlors to select delegates, and as all Subordinate Parlors must elect at the first meetings in April, there may shortly be several hats, some of them new, thrown into the Grand Parlor office freeforall. The Grizzly Bear for May will have specially interesting news.—C.M.H.

Forty-ninth Anniversary Celebrated.

Santa Rosa—Native Sons by the hundreds flocked here March 18 to help Santa Rosa No. 28 celebrate its forty-ninth institution anniversary. From the Parlors of Marin, Napa, Sonoma, Alameda and San Francisco they came in large delegations, several being accompanied by drum and bugle corps. At 8:30 a parade was formed and, led by the drum and bugle corps of Mount Tamalpais No. 64, paraded the principal streets, gaily decorated and illuminated for the event. At the Parlor meeting two candidates were initiated, the officers of the Parlor, headed by President George Eckman, exemplifying the ritual in a very efficient manner. This was also the occasion of the official visit of Grand Trustee Charles H. Spengemann, who brought with him twenty-five members of Hesperian No. 137 (San Francisco. Other grand officers in the crowd were Grand Second Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Third Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees Joseph J. McShane and Jesse H. Miller, and Grand Inside Sentinel Gam Hurst.

The principal address of the evening was delivered by Grand First Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell, a charter member and the first recording secretary of Santa Rosa. In a resume of the Parlor's history he stated it was originally known as "Western Star," and was instituted with thirty-two charter members March 15, 1884, by the late Dr. Charles W. Decker, then a district deputy and subsequently a Grand President. He spoke hopefully of the state of the Order, and declared "We are holding our membership better than any other order in California. Despite the present financial stringency the prospects for the future are bright, but the Order can not and must not stand still—it must be progressive." Thomas Hutchinson, another of the three remaining charter members, was a participant in the festivities. A sumptuous banquet concluded the most enjoyable affair.

During the evening attention was called to the fact that Justice Seawell will, in May, become the Grand President of the Order, and it was urged that, in recognition of his fifty years of activity in the Order, all Parlors enthusiastically endeavor to increase their membership under his leadership. Representatives of San Francisco and other Parlors pledged 100 percent support for the Admission Day, September 9, celebration to be held in Santa Rosa.

Olney Pedigo, Wesley Colgan and James Brucker have been named a committee to arrange a membership drive for No. 28. Practice season opened March 19 for the Parlor's baseball team. Matt Rogina, athletic chairman, expects to turn out a fast club.

Cornerstone Federal Building Laid.

Marysville—The cornerstone of this city's $150,000 federal building was laid March 11 by Grand President Seth Millington, assisted by Past Grands Fred H. Greeley and Lewis F. Byington, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, and Grand Trustees Joseph J. McShane and Charles H. Spengemann. A crowd of 300 witnessed the ceremonies.

Peter J. Delay (Marysville No. 6) was chairman of the day, and addresses were made by Mayor Dan E. Bryant of Marysville, Grand President Millington, Postmaster James M Cremin of Marysville, Postmaster Harold J McCurry of Sacramento, Past Grand Greeley, Past Grand Byington, and Past Grands Esther R Sullivan and Alison E. Watt of the Native Daughters. The Marysville highschool band, directed by F. D. Silver, contributed several selections.

Plan Landmarks' Restoration.

San Diego—San Diego No. 108 had a birthday party March 15 for members born in March. The program was arranged by President Martin J. Spangler, who was assisted by Jack Spencer, Dr. Clinton H. Henderson, Virgil Bruschi Jr., Charles H. Korander, James Navarro, John P. Murphy, Marshall V. Cruze and Burt W. Pauter. District Deputy Edward H. Dowell explained immigration legislation in which the Order is interested.

Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer outlined a program for the restoration of two San Diego County landmarks conspicuous in early California history—El Campo Santo and the Butterfield stage station in Vallecitos Valley.

Splendid Talk.

Sonora—Grand Trustee Jesse H. Miller officially visited Tuolumne No. 144 and Columbia No. 258 in joint session here. He gave a splendid talk and in referring to the difficulties of fraternal orders expressed the opinion that "local lodges were the better qualified to shape their own destinies and map out a course to carry on during the present conditions." Other speakers at the enthusiastic meeting were John J. Slattery and Fred Ehlers (California No. 1), President T. M. Wilzinski of Tuolumne and Rowan Hardin. A chicken-pie repast concluded the gathering.

Proud of Basketball Laurels.

Oakland—Claremont No. 240 has a membership committee, headed by George Davis, securing new recruits. Two class initiations have been held, and another large class of candidates will be initiated in the near-future. A benefit whist drew a large crowd and, through the generosity of Harry Burns, a neat sum was realized for the homeless children. The Parlor has voted to send The Grizzly Bear to the Golden Gate Branch Public Library, believing that it will further the aims and objects of the Order in the community. The overseas flag of No. 240 is on display at the library.

Claremont has the honor of being the first Alameda County Parlor to win the basketball trophy in the San Francisco Bay area. After winning the largest percentage of games in the Alameda County tournament the Claremonters clashed with the team of Castro No. 232 (San Francisco) and carried off the laurels by a large majority. A large crowd witnessed the game. No. 240 hopes to have as well-organized a team next season, and to retain the prize it labored so hard to win.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 January 1, 1933, as follows, together with their membership figures March 20, 1933:

Large Class Initiated.

Merced—A large class of candidates, rounded up by Deputy Grand President Al Lobree, were added to the membership roll of Yosemite No. 24, March 27. The ritual was exemplified by a team made up of A. B. Gibson (Arrowhead No. 110), president; George H. Medina (Modesto No. 11), second vice; P. A. Dillard, A. E. Daneri, P. R. Murray, P. V. Bell and I. H. Reuter of Yosemite. Modesto No. 11 sent over a large delegation, headed by a committee composed of L. E. Bither (chairman), Carol Downer, Myron Moyle, Guy Allen and M. V. Wilson.

Saint Patrick's Dance.

San Bernardino—There was a big crowd at the March 1 meeting of Arrowhead No. 110, when Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer paid his official visit. Officers of Los Angeles No. 45, headed by President Leslie A. Packard, exemplified the ritual, and Past Grand John T. Newell

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

THE EVENING OF MARCH 10 A SEvere earthquake shock occurred in Los Angeles and Orange Counties, and caused the loss of several lives and millions of dollars. The Cities of Long Beach, Compton, San Pedro and Santa Ana were the hardest hit, but all other communities, including Los Angeles City, were well shaken. Some grossly exaggerated statements of the catastrophe and, also, some minimizing the havoc wrought, have been published. The Grizzly Bear, therefore, presents "The Facts About the Earthquake" compiled by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, believing them to be conservative:

"At about 5:55 p.m. a temblor that apparently, according to experts, originated in the Pacific Ocean and moved eastwardly, shook southern California. Those communities that were nearest the origin of the quake felt it the most severely. Communication of all kinds was interrupted, and in the ensuing confusion rumor followed rumor in rapid succession. At first it was stated that entire communities were razed. Subsequent check the next morning revealed a very different situation. The appalling loss of life prematurely announced proved to be a great deal less. While the loss of a single life is to be regretted, and no one would minimize the suffering of the 119 who died and the scores of others who were injured to a more or less serious degree, this figure is not enormous compared to the total population of approximately three millions who reside in this area.

"The loss of buildings in some communities was more severe than in others. In nearly every case those buildings which collapsed were ones that had been built for many years or were not modern in their construction.

"One community with an assessed valuation of $165,000,000 and a population of 140,000 sustained a loss estimated at $25,000,000. Other communities received considerable damage to their business districts, which consisted largely of one-story buildings rather poorly constructed. The total amount of damage in the entire area is estimated at not to exceed $45,000,000.

"Work was begun the next day to clear away the debris. The reconstruction program is already well under way. At this writing, March 14, all communities affected have already undertaken a program to reconstruct their buildings not only upon the most modern lines, but also in the modernizing to include provision for beautification. . . . The assessed valuation of these two counties [Los Angeles and Orange] most affected by the shake is approximately three and three-quarters billions, which would equal an actual valuation of over seven billions. The ratio of forty-five millions to seven billions gives an approximation of the amount of physical damage. . . .

"Southern California has not lost its faith or confidence in itself or in its future. With the courage characteristic of this entire community, we are proceeding with our task of rebuilding damaged structures and strengthening others. Business is going on as usual."

The American Red Cross is conducting a drive for funds to aid sufferers in the earthquake zone, particularly small-home owners, who were heavy losers. The cause is most worthy, so contribute liberally!

NATIVE DAUGHTERS CARRY ON— PRESENT FLAG TO "CONSTITUTION."

Long Beach—Still nervous and a bit pale, the members of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. carried on, with the indomitable spirit of their forebears, March 16, escorting Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong to the United States Frigate "Constitution," where they were most cordially received by Commander Louis J. Gulliver. Passes to proceed through the quake zone were issued by Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz.

President Eleanor Johnson introduced Mrs. Armstrong who, on behalf of Long Beach Parlor, presented to the "Constitution" the emblem of the Order—the "California Republic" Flag—attractively framed and appropriately inscribed. She told "the purpose it had served in 1846, when the Pioneers wrested California from the Mexicans and held it until the Flag of the Union replaced it." In accepting the gift, Commander Gulliver paid high tribute to California.

Arrangements for the flag's presentation were made by the history and landmarks committee of Long Beach Parlor—Mms. Ana Begue Packman, Gertrude Riddle and Julie Pedroli. Others in attendance were Grand Outside Sentinel Hazel B. Hansen, Supervising Deputy Florence Dodson Schoneman, Deputy Kate McFadyen, Gladys Neiman (Woodland No. 90), President Mattie Labory-Gara and Teresa Labory-Bouttier (Los Angeles No. 124). Under date of March 17, Mrs. Packman received the following letter:

"I write to thank you for the beautiful flag of the California Republic, presented by the Native Daughters of the Golden West, Long Beach Parlor No. 154. This flag, representing as it does, part of the glorious traditions of the sovereign State of California, will form a much cherished and highly valuable addition to the collection on board 'Old Ironsides.'

"I want also to express my appreciation for your thrilling account of the origin of California as a State of the United States; it made me realize more than ever the fact that those who pioneered into California were of the same caliber as the men of iron who manned this gallant ship in her heyday. Please accept the thanks of the officers and crew for this gift, and for the fine spirit of patriotism which accentuated it. With my deep appreciation, I have the pleasure to remain, very sincerely yours, LOUIS J. GULLIVER, Commander, U. S. Navy, Commanding United States Frigate Constitution."

QUAKE STALLS INITIATION.

Compton—Compton Parlor No. 273 N.S.G.W. had initiation February 28, six candidates being received and the ritual being exemplified by a team from Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 (San Pedro), with President Patrick H. Doran in charge. Grand Outside Sentinel William A. Reuter was among the many visitors.

Another class of candidates was to have been initiated by Compton, with its own ritual team officiating, March 14, but the quake demolished its meetingplace. The Parlor will soon be operating again, however, and it has a "live" membership committee in the field composed of Reid Young (chairman), Dr. Morgan S. Ralls and Secretary William Don Castillo.

HISTORIC SPOT PLAQUED.

At a colorful ceremony March 12, Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. marked with a copper plaque—made and donated by Mrs. Lucy and Miss Dolores Malin—one of Los Angeles County's many historic spots, the Rocha adobe, located on Cadillac avenue, Culver City. This old homesite was originally part of one of the early Mexican grants and was deeded to Jose

Rocha November 8, 1872. About one hundred guests were present, with several of the Parlor's members in Spanish costumes.

Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer was mistress of ceremonies, and a prayer was offered by Archbishop Francisco Orozco Jeminez of Mexico. Miss Marvel Thomas delivered the dedicatory message. The plaque was unveiled by Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong, and in the name of the Rocha family was accepted by Mrs Ascension Simon. The ceremonies concluded with the singing of "I Love You, California," led by Mrs John B. Stewart.

HELP HOLLYWOOD CELEBRATE!

Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. is making extraordinary arrangements for its institution anniversary party, which will be held Wednesday evening, April 19, at the Hollywood Athletic Club, 6521 Sunset boulevard. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. The fee is $1.50 per plate.

This year Hollywood's annual will be a strictly stag affair, "in keeping with the traditional manner of old Corona." The committee in charge—W. L. O'Meara (chairman), John J. Ford and Lee Owen—promises the best of entertainment. President Henry G. Bodkin extends an invitation to all members of the Order to join in and help Hollywood celebrate. April 17, the Parlor will initiate several candidates. "Gene" Murphy, well and favorably known to all Native Sons, has again donned the "harness" and is now the first vice-president of No. 196.

"SWEET ARE ALL THINGS."

March 15, Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong paid her official visit to Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 and Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. in joint session. Owing to the earthquake turmoil, No. 124, the hostess, invited Long Beach Parlor No. 154 and Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 (San Pedro) to participate, and they accepted. Among the many in attendance were representatives of several other Parlors, Founder Lily O. Reichling-Dyer, Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer, Grand Outside Sentinel Hazel B. Hansen and Supervising Deputy Florence Schoneman.

For the meeting, which was preceded by a supper, the hall was adorned with baskets of spring flowers. Eighteen candidates were initiated, thirteen for Los Angeles, three for Santa Monica Bay and two for Long Beach. Grand President Armstrong gave a most inspiring talk on the Order's projects and complimented No. 124 on the letter-perfect rendition of the ritual. Other speakers were Founder Dyer, Past Grand Stoermer, Alice M. Lane (Castro No. 178) of San Francisco, Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish and Deputy Rita Smith. Reports from members of participating Parlors showed activity in all of the Order's projects, and Los Angeles adopted a baby.

A delightful surprise of the evening was the presentation to ever-faithful Annie L. Adair by President Matty Gara of a life membership in Los Angeles Parlor. Grand President Armstrong was the recipient of many gifts, a specially unique one being that of Rudecinda Parlor—a mailbox, designed by Carrie Northway, containing five dollars in currency; Carrie Kuhlman made the presentation address. Home-made refreshments, in charge of Edna Holcomb, concluded a most delightful gathering pervaded by a true fraternal atmosphere.

Los Angeles Parlor's April calendar includes: monthly card party, 12th, Ella Steinbeck chairman; potluck dinner and speaker, 19th; thirty-second birthday party, Jennie Raymond chairman, 26th. President Matty Gara's Easter greetings: "Sweet are all things, when we learn to prize them. Not for their sake, but His who grants them or denies them."

COME, ALL YE NATIVE SONS!

Santa Monica—April 5, Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. will inaugurate a series of past presidents nights. The first will honor Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz. A large class of candidates will be presented for initiation, and the ritual will be exemplified by the officers of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45. A program of entertainment up to the standard set by No. 267 will be featured, and refreshments will be served. President Art Leonard says, "Come on, all ye Native Sons, and we will make you happy."

APRIL FOOL DANCE, AT GLENDALE.

Glendale—Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong was honored by Verdugo Parlor No. 240 N.D.G.W. at a dinner March 14. Miniature orange trees and orange blossoms were the California decorative motif. Other guests were Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer, Supervising Deputy

Native Daughters of the Golden West

THE FORTY-SEVENTH GRAND PARlor of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West convenes Monday, June 19, and "shall continue in session for not more than four days." The meetingplace has not, as yet, been determined. The 1932 (Merced) Grand Parlor voted to hold the 1933 session in Alameda County, and the grand officers will fix the place. Subordinate Parlors are required to elect their delegates—one at large and one additional for each fifty members at the time of election—at the first regular meeting in May.

Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong (Woodland No. 90) of Woodland will preside at the 1933 Grand Parlor. Grand Vice-president Irma Laird (Alturas No. 159) of Alturas will, unless the usual custom be reversed, be selected to succeed her as head of the Order.

Indications are that there will be a considerable number of candidates for the other Grand Parlors elective offices. The Grizzly Bear has communicated with all "suspicioned" and rumored candidates, and from information received announces these:

Grand Marshal—Grand Trustee Anna Thuesen (Alta No. 3) of San Francisco; Grand Trustee Edna B. Briggs (La Bandera No. 110) of Sacramento.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Grand Outside Sentinel Hazel B. Hansen (Verdugo No. 240) of Glendale.

Grand Outside Sentinel—Alice Mathias (El Carmelo No. 181) of Daly City.

Grand Organist—Clara Gairaud (Vendome No. 100) of San Jose, incumbent.

Grand Trustees (seven to be selected)—Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda G. Giannini (Orinda No. 56) of San Francisco; Minna Kane Horn (Eschscholtzia No. 112) of Etna, incumbent; Alice M. Lane (Castro No. 178) of San Francisco; Florence D. Boyle (Gold of Ophir No. 190) of Oroville, incumbent; Ethel S. Begley (Marinita No. 198) of San Rafael, incumbent.

The Grizzly Bear has additional first-hand information which leads to the conclusion that there will likely be other aspirants for all the Grand Parlor offices, excepting of course the grand presidency and the grand vice-presidency. So, look for future announcements.—C.M.H.

Revival of Interest in the Home.

Bakersfield—Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong officially visited El Tejon No. 239 and Miocene No. 228 (Taft) in joint session here March 3. "More applications to adopt children have been made since the depression than ever before, a fact we ascribe to definite revival of interest in the home," declared Mrs. Armstrong in the course of an address dealing with the Order's worth-while projects.

One candidate was initiated, the ritual being exemplified by the officers of El Tejon, with Georgia Florence Sanders as president. Seven Parlors were represented, and among the visitors were Grand Outside Sentinel Hazel B. Hansen, Supervising Deputies Florence Schoneman and Minnie B. Heath, and Deputy Jennie Dennis. The hall was decorated in spring flowers, and presentations were made. March 12, in recognition of Arbor Day, El Tejon planted trees at Kern County Park. Etta Borgwardt, Grace Dorris and Ernestine Edwards were in charge.

Past Presidents To Meet.

San Francisco—The sixth annual meeting of the Past Presidents General Association will be held April 22 at the N.D.G.W. Home, 555 Baker street, with Chief President Cora Stobing presiding. Other officers are: Lily May Tilden, senior chief president; Josephine Clark, junior chief president; Winifred Halter, vice-president; Mary Frances Mitchell, marshal; Antha Locklin, organist; Anna G. Loser, secretary; Emma G. Foley, treasurer; Margaret Grote Hill, inside sentinel; Emilie J. Clifford, outside sentinel.

Leah M. Williams founded the association, and the past chief presidents include Beda Pacheco, Winnie Buckingham, Anna G. Loser, Josephine Schmidt, Susie K. Christ, Eldora F. McCarty and Millie Tietjen. May R. Barry, Jennie Brown and Emma G. Foley are permanent members.

Eventful Occasion.

Hollister—Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong officially visited Copa de Oro No. 105 and San Juan Bautista No. 179 in joint session here February 23. Other visitors were Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Trustee Anna Thuesen, Grand Organist Clara A. Gairaud, Past Grand Bertha A. Briggs, Supervising Deputy Rose Rhyner and Deputy Edna Butterfield. A potluck dinner and program preceded the meeting.

The eventful occasion marked also the thirty-fourth anniversary of Copa de Oro and the twenty-third of San Juan Bautista. Three candidates were initiated for the former Parlor. Mrs. Armstrong delivered an inspiring address. Numerous presentations were made, among them flower vases to the hostess Parlors by President Gladys Dodd on behalf of Aleli No. 102 (Salinas). The following morning Deputy Butterfield entertained at breakfast in honor of Grand President Armstrong.

March 9, Copa de Oro had a hilarious party in honor of Saint Patrick and initiated one candidate. "Tay" was poured at a table made attractive with refreshments of green. Representatives of Ireland's first families were on hand to engage in appropriate contests.

Eight Redwoods Planted and Dedicated.

San Jose—Vendome No. 100 had a get-together dinner March 8, and some 150 were in attendance. President Dorothy Salas extended greetings, and Past Grand President Thomas Monahan of the Native Sons and President Dorothy Koeber of San Jose No. 81 were the speakers. Mrs. Herbert Stockton was general chairman of the affair. A jolly "Irish night" was held March 5 with Grand Organist Clara Gairaud as chairman. She was assisted by Gertrude Musser, Julia Waddington, Alice Roll, Martha Waddington and Eleanor Thompson. A class of candidates will be initiated during April. The past presidents club of the Parlor met March 7 at the home of Julia Waddington and arranged for the annual Easter treat for the tubercular children at the Preventorium.

Eight redwood trees were planted and dedicated March 12 in the Rose Gardens. John Burnett, Grand Trustee N.S., was the principal speaker. The affair was under the auspices of San Jose No. 22 and Observatory No. 177 N.S.G.W., and San Jose No. 81 and Vendome No. 100 N.D.G.W. Grand Organist Clara Gairaud sends, through The Grizzly Bear, thanks to the hundreds of Natives who sent messages to her expressing hope for her complete recovery from the terrible auto accident of August 12. "I can never thank those members enough for their wonderful kindness," she says. "Thank God, I am myself again."

Sonoma-Marin District Meet.

Sonoma—The annual district meeting of the Sonoma and Marin Counties Parlors attracted some 300, among them Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Trustees Willow Borba, Ethel Begley and Anna Thuesen, Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grands Emma Foley, Margaret Hill and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Supervising Deputy Clytie Lewis. Sonoma No. 209 was the hostess. Three candidates were initiated for Santa Rosa No. 217, the ritual being faultlessly rendered by a team headed by Deputy Mary Vogt as president.

Grand President Armstrong gave a fine talk on the California State (Bear) Flag, and made a most impressive appeal for support of the Order's homeless children program. Several presentations were made, and a humorous program was presented by members from San Rafael, Santa Rosa and Fairfax. Refreshments, served under the direction of Gertrude Groskopf, concluded a most delightful gathering.

Benefit Card Party.

Vallejo—With President Mabel Thompson presiding, Vallejo No. 195 initiated three candidates March 15. Among the many in attendance

ORATORY FLIGHTS

THE PIONEER ERA WAS NOT ONLY A golden era for material things, but also the Golden Age of Oratory. Then was a time in which the spoken word was triumphant, and he who was preeminent rhetorically was also destined to become preeminent in law, public office and kindred endeavors.

As we survey our oratorical past, we conclude that orators of that era were of a different calibre than popular public speakers of today. A reading of public addresses and orations of the fifties and sixties leaves the reader with one impression—that those orators were academic, that they carefully prepared their addresses, that they were skilled in metaphysics, logic, literature, law, and knew well the wide and lengthy channels of history. Particularly did they have an absolute knowledge of Greek and Roman mythology, and often did they parade their gods and godesses as they were needed to embellish the subject.

As we review California's forensic past, the wonder grows that this state in its babyhood could have been so blessed with such artists of the spoken word. Recently the writer reviewed a book published in San Francisco in 1870. It contains biographical sketches of the coast's prominent citizens from the Mexican era to the year 1869. As one reads, he is astounded that men of such rare ability should be so little known today. It might be added that capable public speakers were plentiful, and one who gained prominence in such a class was capable indeed.

Another thing which marks that era as distinctive is the fact that most of those learned men were not college bred but had a prescribed education but little longer than did Abraham Lincoln. But ambition, that mighty fire which can burn so brightly, spurred them on to do what appears today to be almost the impossible, and proves, as an American recently said, that "education is a matter of desire."

Despite the splendidness of those masterly addresses it is doubtful if present audiences would be responsive and appreciative. The principal reason for doubt is that they were academic and dealt with subjects and references not altogether familiar with a present-day general assemblage. Also, they were lengthy. It must have taken the speakers at least two hours to have concluded their addresses. What gathering would be satisfied today to sit, even in comfortable chairs and amid pleasant surroundings, to hear such lengthy discourses? Cannot you hear the comment "longwinded," "baloney," "applesauce," and kindred expressions which oft greet the spoken word?

One of the foremost speakers of his day was Frank Tilford. Of true pioneer stock, he sprang from ancestors who had driven the Indian tribes from the Mississippi River. At the age of 27, in the year 1849, he turned his face westward and arrived the same year in San Francisco. There he lived the remainder of his days. This is no place to trace his legal and political career. For the purpose of depicting his style and as this article is written, St. Patrick's Day is being celebrated it is not amiss to revert back to that other day in San Francisco when, on the 17th of March, 1863, at the Metropolitan Theater he delivered an oration on St. Patrick. This is but a fragment of his utterances:

"On the banks of the Shannon, in the mines of Australia, amid the orange groves of the Tropics, in the ruined cities of the Orient, and under the shade of the primeval forests which fringe the waters of the Mississippi, thousands of eyes will beam with rapture as they behold unfurled to the breeze, and radiant in the bright light of heaven, that symbol of nationality and emblem of freedom, the ancient banner of the 'Harp and Sunburst.' Thousands of generous hearts will throb with exultation, as they recall the glorious memories of the Emerald Isle; memories, musical and immortal as the leaves of the Tooba tree which blooms only in the Garden of Paradise, and 'whose scent is the breath of eternity.' The history of Ireland!—the very words awaken feelings unutterable in the heart of the exile. What intellect can do justice to the theme? As the rainbow is formed by the tears of the clouds and the rays of the sun, so are the annals of Erin colored and varied; now by the tears of sorrow, now by the flashes of wit and sunshine of joy."

Edward J. C. Kewen was another of the array who could indulge in the artistry of words and mould his mental thoughts into expressions of beauty and intelligence. On the 9th of September, 1854, before the Society of California Pioneers at San Francisco, on the occasion of the fourth celebration of California's entry into statehood, this brilliant, self-educated man said:

"In the history of Greece, we are enchanted with the descriptions of consecrated groves; we read with rapture of azure mountains, of flowing plains, of golden isles, and sunny fountains; but beneath this western sky are revealed as splendid attributes of nature as ever attracted the eye of the Grecian in the palmiest period of his country's glory. Ionia never boasted of fairer skies, Italy never rejoiced in a firmament more deeply blue, France never produced the luscious grape in more luxuriance, and never exhibited greener fields or more exuberant gardens; Germany never revealed sublimer forests, and Switzerland grander mountains, nor more romantic scenery than meets the gaze of the wanderer on the Pacific slope. But lovelier than the cerulean of its skies, more to be prized than the estuaries of its coast, sublimer than the undulations of its surface, greater than the exuberance of its products, more magnificent than the sublimity of its mountains, the placidity of its lakes, the abruptness and grandeur of its scenery, is the symmetrical edifice of its republican construction. Virtue and industry form the basis of its morality; shrewdness, wisdom and sagacity the distinguishing features of its mind; simplicity the proof of social excellence, and progress the aim and end of its political aspirations."

Twenty other orators are the equal to the two selected as exemplars. Is it any wonder that we may justly claim that past age as "California's Golden Age of Oratory?"

were Supervising Deputy Wilma Mitchell, Deputy Emma McGlumphy, and large delegations from Eschol No. 16 (Napa) and La Junta No. 203 (Saint Helena). Refreshments were served.

The Parlor and Vallejo No. 77 N.S.G.W. had a card party for the benefit of the homeless children March 14. The committee in charge included Anna Johnson (chairman), Elizabeth Bruno, Mabel Thompson, Mary Combs, John Combs, Fermin Segoria, Mike Higuera and Frank J. Holdener.

Message of Inspiration.

San Bernardino — Grand President Anna Dixon Armstrong paid an official visit March 8 to Lugonia No. 241, and was accompanied by Grand Outside Sentinel Hazel Hansen, Supervising Deputy Florence D. Schoneman and Deputy Genevieve Hiskey. Neighboring Parlors were well represented among the visitors. Spring flowers decorated the meetingplace, and three candidates were initiated.

Mrs. Armstrong's message was one of inspiration, encouragement and fellowship. Active in arranging for the occasion were Lois A. Johnson and Clara Barton. March 25, for the benefit of the Parlor, a silver tea was held at the home of Miss Barton, with members of the history and landmarks committee as hostesses.

SUBORDINATE PARLORS DOINGS.

Placerville—Marguerite No. 12 observed Arbor Day at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Hancock. In honor of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, a birch tree was planted by President Dorian Sutton. A program was presented, games were played and refreshments were served. Ruth Baumhoff, the chairman, was assisted by Annie Jaeger, Agnes Schiff and Eva Shuman.

Lodi—Ivy No. 88 enjoyed cards and refreshments March 15. The Saint Patrick motif prevailed, and Juanita Pope and Sara Elwood were in charge. President Verna Weesner will give a card party April 4, the proceeds to go to the milk fund for the Parlor's adopted baby.

Oakland—Aloha No. 106 observed its thirty-second institution anniversary at a dinner Feb-

Florence Schoneman, Deputy Gertrude Allen and Grand Outside Sentinel Hazel Hansen. At the Parlor meeting three candidates were initiated, and Grand President Armstrong spoke on "True Fraternity." Dorothy Courtney sang "The Hand of You," and President Vera Carlson, on Verdugo's behalf, presented a gift to Mrs. Armstrong. Active in arranging for the delightful occasion were Myrteze Tregea, Ada Steele and Margaret Donlan.

Verdugo and Glendale Parlor No. 264 N.S.G.W. will feature an "all fools" dance Saturday evening, April 1, at Masonic Temple, 234 South Brand boulevard. The joint committee promises this will be a bigger and better dance than any previous one. April 11, Verdugo will have a dinner and card party; a magician will be there, too; all for forty cents. Everybody invited. Make reservations by April 9; phone Douglas 7781-R. To aid the Central Homeless Children Committee, Verdugo has adopted a baby.

A beautiful side of the character of Mrs. Anna Mixon Armstrong, Grand President N.D.G.W., was shown the members of the Order in the southland during her official visits last month. Usually all is joy and gaiety when the distinguished visitor comes, and Parlors vie with one another to make her stay happy and carefree. But this year it was her misfortune, or perhaps good fortune, to be here during the earthquake, and to witness the sufferings of the people in the stricken area. She proved a great comfort, and her sisterly sympathy and womanly understanding will always remain with the people in the southland as a tender memory.

Grand President Armstrong paid her official visit, as scheduled, to Californiana Parlor No. 247, March 14. Luncheon was served, and the bright and cheery appointments helped to dispel the gloom. At the speakers' table with the honor-guest were President Ernestine Aylward; Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish, toastmistress; Mayor and Mrs. John C. Porter; Superior Judges Howell Smith and William Aggeler; Supervising Deputy Florence Schoneman; Mattie B. Edwards and Helen B. Anderson (Grace No. 242); Gladys Nieman (Woodland No. 90), sister of the Grand President; Mary Foy; Francis Hickson, the speaker of the day, who graphically described the "Mission Play of Monterey."

At the Parlor meeting, four candidates were initiated, and Mrs. Armstrong highly complimented Californiana on its activities and accomplishments. On behalf of No. 247, Mrs. Irish presented to her a gift, and a presentation was made by Past President Gertrude Tuttle to Mrs. Edwards, the Parlor's former deputy.—O.L.

DON'T FORGET THE BENEFIT DANCE!

To raise much-needed funds to carry on the homeless children work, the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Homeless Children Committee is sponsoring a dance Saturday, April 22, at the Breakfast Club. Mrs. Hazel B. Hansen heads the arrangements committee. "Cast your bread upon the waters;"—give this most deserving charity wholehearted support.

BENEFIT FOR BOY SCOUTS.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. has initiated several candidates, among them William H. Burroughs, grandson of Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger. Good work in the Parlor's behalf is being done by Scoutmaster Bob Dunn, Fieldman Ralph Harbison, Curator Homer Chapelle and First Vice-president Charles Straube.

Ramona's April calendar includes: 7th, election Grass Valley Grand Parlor delegates. 14th, initiation. 21st, 6:30 dinner, complimentary to the members born in April; entertainment for benefit Ramona Boy Scouts Troop No. 109; dinner "stag," free for all members of Parlor, public invited to entertainment. 28th, reception for members initiated during April, regardless of the year.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Rudolph Guenther Weyse, brother of Henry G. Weyse (Ramona N.S.), died at Pasadena, February 22.

John Cozzaglio, affiliated with Ramona Parlor N.S.G.W., died February 24. He was born in Sierra County, May 28, 1886.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz (Santa Monica Bay N.S.) has been elected president of the Los Angeles County Peace Officers Association.

Congressman William I. Traeger (Past Grand President N.S.) and wife (Los Angeles N.D.) departed by airplane March 6 for Washington, D. C.

Miss Mary E. Brusie (Argonaut N.D.) of San Francisco, secretary N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Central Homeless Children Committee, was a visitor last month.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

by millions and not lessen government efficiency. In the interest of the near-bankrupt taxpayers, its program should have the unanimous support of the legislative and the executive branches of the State Government.

San Francisco is after the "charity racketeers." It appears that some 2,000 of them, with substantial balances in banks, have been "horning in" on funds and commodities collected for the benefit of those actually in need.

"The same sort of investigation ought to be instituted in Los Angeles," suggests a newspaper of that city, "where, in all probability, the same sort of thing has been going on." If half the rumors be true, charity racketeering is, and for a long time has been, a common practice in Los Angeles. It is doubtful, however, if the example of San Francisco will be followed there and the "charity racketeers" exposed, prosecuted, and removed from the enormous aid-list.

The "new-deal" in national affairs is, apparently, going to be a square deal, from the top, as well as from the bottom, of the pack. Instance the arrest of a couple of high-powered "nationally [in]famous financiers." Looks like the sponsors of "the hidden things of dishonesty" are, at last, to be brought to justice.

This is certain: vigorous prosecution of the highboy political, financial and business racketeers will do more to restore confidence than anything else. PROVE to the masses that "Crime [dishonesty] does not pay!", whether committed by the uppercrusters or the lowercrusters of society!

The revelations anent the disposal of worthless foreign bonds to innocent investors are appalling. Should not every individual, irrespective of who or what he be, be prosecuted for using the United States mails to defraud?

The California Garden Club Federation is anxious to have Section 384a of the State Penal Code amended so as to provide protection to any "herb or bulb or flower" similar to that now given "any native tree or shrub, or any fern." There is no good reason why the State Legislature should not provide the asked-for protection.

DEATH RECALLS EARLY-DAY ROMANCE.

Healdsburg (Sonoma County)—The recent death here of Mrs. Anita Fitch Grant recalls an early-day California romance in which Josefa Carillo and Captain Henry Fitch were the principals. Owing to religious scruples, they eloped in the early '40s to Valparaiso, where they were wed, and then returned to California. Mrs. Grant was the youngest child of that union. Captain Fitch died in 1849, and the following year the Fitch family moved from Sonoma to Healdsburg. Here, in 1862, Anita was wedded to John D. Grant. She is survived by four children.

OH, FOR A LINCOLN NOW.
(GEORGE E. PHAIR.)

His was the hand that broke the iron chain
And raised the burden from a bonded race.
His was the hand predestined to efface
A Nation's guilt and wipe away the stain.
And now across the years he hears again
The cries he strove to make the world forget:
Despairing farmers chained by hopeless debt,
White-collar slaves reduced to want and pain.
Slaves of the bread line standing in the cold
Begging a humble crust of bread to eat,
While granaries are overwhelmed with wheat
And in the banks the coffers burst with gold.
Oh, for a Lincoln now with dauntless hand
To break the golden chain that grips the land!
—Exchange.

"True greatness, if it be anywhere on earth, is in private virtue, removed from the notion of pomp and vanity, confined to a contemplation of itself, and centering on itself."—Dryden.

"When thou camest into the world, all about thee were laughing! So live that when thou goest out of the world all about thee may be weeping!"

In Memoriam

LUCY E. CLARK.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed sister, Lucy E. Clark, respectfully submit the following:

Another member of Forrest Parlor No. 86 N.D.G.W. has gone from us to join the Heavenly Parlor on High; and while in all reverence, we submit our minds and hearts to the will of Him who ordereth all things for the best, we mourn our loss and feel the deepest sympathy for the family of our departed sister in their even greater loss. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That, as a mark of our sense of loss, our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, and these resolutions be spread in full upon the minutes of this Parlor, and, as evidence of our sympathy for our sister's family, a copy of these resolutions be sent to her bereaved husband and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

SAN FRANCISCO

"CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY Years Ago," to be found elsewhere in this issue of The Grizzly Bear, refer briefly to the Sixth Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, in session at San Francisco, April 9-12, 1883. The reports submitted disclosed that, as of December 31, 1882, the Order had thirteen Subordinate Parlors, with a total membership of 696. Of that total, 173 were affiliated with California No. 1 (San Francisco), 138 with Sacramento No. 3 and 122 with Pacific No. 10 (San Francisco). At that session, as noted in the "Proceedings":

"The [Legislation] Committee recommended the changing of the word 'Parlor,' wherever found in the Constitution, to the word 'Lodge,' and also changing the words 'Native Sons Golden West' to 'Native Sons of California,' but the minority report . . . , protesting against said changes, was adopted by a large majority."

"The Committee on Petitions reported unfavorably upon the institution of a Parlor at Tombstone [Arizona Territory], which report was adopted, and the Grand Secretary instructed to notify those interested of the action of the Grand Parlor."

Among the officials of the Grand Parlor at that time was the Grand Lecturer. Leonidas Clay Branch, whose death was recorded in The Grizzly Bear for February 1933, was the incumbent. He was affiliated with Modesto No. 11. His report to the Sixth (1883) Grand Parlor concluded with:

"The fires of patriotism are kept burning, and a reverence for the memories of our fathers —the pioneers—exists among the brotherhood. I have on all occasions endeavored to excite them to an emulation of the examples of industry and frugality set us by our sires; . . .

"I find many young men who are anxious to become members, but who are at present excluded on account of their age; and I am satisfied, from my observations, that the membership of the Order would have greatly increased during the past ten months had the maximum age remained at eighteen years; and I earnestly recommend a repeal of the present law, which deprives some of the brightest and most desirable material from membership and fellowship with those who chance to be a few years their seniors. . . . Prevailing everywhere within the sacred precincts of every Parlor there is a profound veneration for the pioneers. Their work is done, ours is but begun.

" 'They need
No statue nor inscription to reveal
Their greatness. It is round them; and the joy
With which their children tread the hallowed ground
That holds their venerated bones, the peace
That smiles on all they fought for, and the wealth
That clothes the land they rescued—these though mute
As feeling ever is when deepest—these
Are monuments more lasting than the fanes
Rear'd to the kings and demi-gods of old.' "

The recommendation of Grand Lecturer Branch concerning age-limit bore fruit, for the law was amended to read: "Candidates [for membership in Subordinate Parlors] must be of the age of eighteen or upwards, but each Subordinate Parlor may fix the limit of age beyond eighteen."—C.M.H.

N.D.G.W. HOME BREAKFAST.

Past Grand President Emma G. Foley and Supervising Deputy Alice M. Lane were hostesses at the N.D.G.W. Home breakfast Sunday, March 12, and in tribute to them members of Orinda No. 56 and Castro No. 178 Parlors attended in numbers. The decorations were in token of Saint Patrick's Day, and each guest was presented with a cake shaped like a frog, with a bit of shamrock in its mouth. Marin County Parlors attended, to carry out the "Marin County Day" designation for the breakfast.

Mrs. Foley presided, and prayer was offered by Mrs. Lane. Postmaster Harry L. Todd spoke on "The Constitution of the United States," and said its adoption was due to the arguments advanced by Benjamin Franklin, and the one-minute and only public address of George Washington. Vocal numbers were rendered by Mildred Gibson and the N.D.G.W. Glee Club. Among the guests introduced were Past Grand Presidents Dr. Mariana Bertola, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron and Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand Trustee Ethel Begley and Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda Giannini. N.D.G.W. Parlors represented included Portola No. 172, Buena Vista No. 68, Genevieve No. 132, Golden State No. 50, Alta No. 3, Dolores No. 169, Twin Peaks No. 185, La Estrella No. 89, San Diego No. 208, Gabrielle No. 139, El Carmelo No. 181, Marinita No. 198, Sea Point No. 196, Castro No. 178 and Orinda No. 56.

OPTIMISTIC SPIRIT CREATED.

Grand Trustee Jesse H. Miller made his official visit to South San Francisco Parlor No. 157 N.S.G.W. March 15. This was also the occasion of the Parlor's annual Saint Patrick's Day banquet. Over two hundred members of the Order were in attendance. Grand Trustee Miller, after listening to the initiatory ceremony by the officers of the Parlor, paid them a very high compliment for the efficient manner in which they rendered the ritual, as well as for the conduct of the business of the Parlor. He made a splendid address on the work the Order is engaged in, and the possibilities for the future. His remarks seemed to leave the spirit of optimism with those assembled—a splendid spirit to create under present conditions.

Addresses were also made by Grand Second Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Eugene H. O'Donnell (Dolores No. 208) and George H. Barron (Precita No. 187), the latter speaking on the "Life of Saint Patrick." Community singing was engaged in, and solos were rendered by Carl Prignitz, Bert Cuevas, George Kendall, Jim Williams and Jack Brady. Organist Lionel (Babe) Smith was the accompanist. This annual celebration of Saint Patrick's Day is conducted by members of South San Francisco of German extraction in honor of the descendants of the Irish race. It has been an event in the Parlor for a great many years, and seems to grow in spirit and enthusiasm as the years go on. As additional entertainment, moving pictures were shown of three of the principal football games held on the coast last session. The evening was voted by all a very enjoyable one.

BIRTHDAY BANQUET.

March 9, Minerva Parlor No. 2 N.D.G.W. held its forty-sixth birthday banquet. Among the many present were Mrs. E. Kroder, a charter member, and Deputy Ida Mesquite. During the course of the evening's entertainment a letter of congratulation was received from Founder Lily Reichling-Dyer, with which was enclosed a newspaper clipping of the election of officers in Minerva at the time of its organization. The Parlor is the second oldest of the Order, having been organized and granted a charter in 1887.

DRILL TEAM TO APPEAR PUBLICLY.

March 8, Dolores Parlor No. 169 N.D.G.W. tendered a surprise Saint Patrick's party to Ida Carrigan, who has served as chairman of the social committee for many years. She received a beautiful coffee table from the Parlor, in appreciation of faithful services, and was also the recipient of many other gifts. Dainty refreshments were served at beautifully decorated tables. Junior Past Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson was chairman of the occasion. The same evening, the Parlor voted to adopt a baby boy from the Central Homeless Children Committee. The baby will be named "Carlson," in honor of Past Grand Carlson. Dolores extends sincere greetings to the Parlors of the southland, and wishes them speedy recovery from the recent catastrophe.

The newly-organized drill team of the Parlor meets every week, and within a short time will make its initial public appearance. Josephine Doray has been appointed captain, while Alvina Burkhardt and Helen Lokken serve as lieutenants. Chairman Betty Both of the veterans welfare committee visited the tubercular ward of Letterman Hospital February 26 and served the GRAND OFFICERS N.S. VISIT.

Stanford Parlor No. 76 N.S.G.W. had an "Irish Night" stag dinner March 14. Ticket distribution was in charge of "representatives of the league of nations": Theo. Schmidt, Arthur Poheim, Frank F. Morris and Harry Kamphoefner. The arrangements committee included Dr. Thos. R. Flinn (chairman), Wm. F. Burke Jr., Hubert J. Caveney, Jos. T. Curley, Elmer B. Dooley, Arthur Finnegan, Wm. J. Flinn, Harry M. Kelly Jr., Michael D. McGill, Dr. Leo J. McMahon, Joseph I. McNamara, Hugh J. McGuire, Thos. J. Moran, Dan Murphy Jr., Martin M. Murphy and Dr. John T. Scully.

Grand Third Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin paid the Parlor an official visit March 7, and Grand First Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell was a guest speaker March 21. The monthly whist party March 28 was in charge of Frank F. Morris (chairman), Pfesident Charles J. Barry and Recording Secretary Charles T. O'Kane. April 22, Stanford will feature a dinner-dance.

LUNCHEON AND CARD PARTY.

Alta Parlor No. 3 N.D.G.W. celebrated its forty-sixth birthday at a banquet March 13. Treasured as souvenirs were the favors, potted cacti. Mrs. Agnese L. Hughes, chairman of the affair, presented a fine vaudeville program, and Grand Trustee Annie C. Thuesen gave an original reading. Among those who enjoyed this delightful anniversary were Deputy May A. McCarthy, Past Grand Presidents Eliza D. Keith and Margaret Grote Hill, and nine charter members.

Members of Alta are now looking forward with interest to a luncheon and card party to be given at the Home, April 27. This will be the first activity of the Parlor after the Lenten season, and success is assured since it is under the chairmanship of Past President May L. McDonald. Tickets are fifty cents.

WHIST PARTIES TO RAISE FUNDS.

Castro Parlor No. 178 N.D.G.W. is giving a series of whist parties to raise funds for the return of a loan. They are well attended, and the response is generous. Mae Edwards will be the April hostess, and the party will be held at her home the 4th of that month.

At the March 15 meeting of the Parlor the married members entertained the unmarried sisters, and a jolly good time prevailed. Muttonleg sleeves and other style fashions of the gay nineties were much in evidence.

DAYS OF GOLD

The roaring campfire, with rude humor, painted
The ruddy tints of health
On haggard face and form that drooped and fainted
In the fierce race for wealth.

Their famous camps were, at first, given descriptive names such as Hangtown, Poker Flat, Whisky Diggings, Rich Bar, Brandy City, Fiddle Town, Poverty Flat, Poorman's Gulch, Jimtown and Piety Hill. Never in the history of the world were so many poor men made rich in so short a time. Nuggets worth from $4,000 to $10,000 were often picked up. The celebrated monumental nugget from near Downieville, Sierra County, weighing 141 pounds and 4 ounces, was exhibited at Woodward's Gardens, San Francisco, and smelted brought the owners about $30,000. In 1848, the year of Marshall's discovery, our mines added $5,000,000 in gold to the supply of the world, and in 1853 the record was $65,000,000. The total production of the California gold mines has been over $1,852,000,000. The gold from California saved the nation at the time of the Civil War.

As to the extent and boundaries of a mining claim we have the court opinion ascribed to an early day Downieville justice. A man was building a house on Jersey Flat and before the work had proceeded far was advised not to build as the ground was another's mining claim which he intended to work. The man, nevertheless, continued work on the house and the miner began operations, tearing away the earth near the foundations, which resulted in a lawsuit and the matter of title being brought into court. Attorney Spear argued for the house builder and the justice asked him if his client had not received a warning from the mine owner. This the attorney admitted, but continued arguing for surface rights when the justice jumped to his feet and shouted: "Mr. Spear, what is the use of all this talk? You admitted that your client had a warning, and it is the opinion of this court that a mining claim reaches up to heaven and down to hell. Now, Mr. Spear, if you can't get above or below that, sit down."

Into California, at the time of the discovery of gold, poured all kinds and conditions of men, but the dominant force was the spirit of the American youth, trained to respect the law, strong and self-reliant. There were men of education and legal attainments who, spurred on by the urge of adventure, were the first to pioneer the West. They quickly placed themselves in touch with one another, called public meetings, organized local governments, and framed mining laws and other laws to govern themselves and to control men of violence.

As indicative of the character of the men of those days a political convention was held in Downieville just prior to July 4, 1851, and attended by Stephen J. Field, afterwards justice of the United States Supreme Court; William M. Stewart, afterwards United States Senator from Nevada; Chas. N. Felton, future United States Senator from California, and the magnetic William Walker who, in later years led expeditions into Mexico and Nicaragua and was known as the "Gray-eyed Man of Destiny." The convention was followed by a celebration on July 4, which drew a large crowd from the surrounding country, and a young miner, somewhat intoxicated, attempted to enter the house of an attractive Spanish woman, named Juanita, and she stabbed him in the breast, death resulting. Feeling ran high; a court was hastily organized from the miners, the woman convicted and hanged from the bridge crossing the Yuba River. Field strongly protested against the acts of those who participated. It is the only case of the execution of a woman in California.

A movement has been started, which we hope will be carried forward, to construct through the beautiful and picturesque Sierra Nevada Mountains the Mother Lode highway, from Downieville to Mariposa, and linking together the historic towns and settlements of the mining region of California which tend to preserve the memory of the Pioneer and the recounting of whose deeds of daring thrills the heart.

We, the citizens of California, and the traveler from abroad, should take pleasure in visiting the scenes where the early Pioneers dug the gold from our mountains. They were the bold spirits who carved out the destiny of the great West,—the builders of a state,—the Pioneers of Freedom. One by one they have crossed the last divide. Their claims are no longer worked, —their camps are silent. They have bequeathed to us a golden heritage,—California; and yet, too often the sole monument which stands to commemorate their greatness is a dismantled cabin or crumbling chimney around which the wild vine trails its creeping tendrils. Their dreams were always of the golden future, and the poet Joaquin Miller has thus expressed their hopes and thoughts:

We have worked our claims,
We have spent our gold,
Our barks are astrand on the bars
We are battered and old
Yet at night we behold
Outcroppings of gold in the stars
Tho' battered and old
Our hearts are bold
Yet oft do we repine
For the days of old,
For the days of gold,
For the days of forty nine

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

THE NEWEST AND SMARTEST THING to wear at the neck of your dark dress is white organdy, in the form of an ascot jabot or in a great big bow tied under the chin. Plain organdy is all right, but seersucker is better, newer, fresher, crisper and more frosty. Women this spring will follow two distinct vogues, one favoring mannish garments, which will dominate daytime wear, and the other, for formal occasions, will follow fashions quite feminine, like those which characterized the day of the Gibson girl.

The introduction of the straight-line tailored and quite-boyish modes, including slacks, for daytime wear and sports, brings the smart swagger coat into popularity again. It is so easy to wear over these stylish garments. A new swagger coat, such as we see today, is made of a broken plaid in brown and white tweed with straight mannish lines. When the coat is of figured material, the dress and accessories should be of monotone pattern, but when the coat features a plain color, the accessories should be gaily contrasted. According to the fashionists carrying this idea in mind, a plain brown stitched hat and monogramed scarf are worn with the plain coat, and shoes and gloves emphasize the brown tone of the garment.

The tendency toward starched or cired finishes in sheer fabrics is definitely a youthful fashion, and one that none but the younger girl or the younger woman should attempt. These new fabrics are a happy substitute for the organdy of other years. Their lightness, without ungainly stiffness, makes them graceful in their airy fullness, and they are admirably suited to winter or summer dancing. The black dress with the flowered shoulders is made of cired chiffon, which is braided to form a sash at the low waistline. The simple bodice has a square neckline in front, and the white flowers, starting high at the shoulders, form a flattering frame for the face. The skirt is full and light.

Next in order, and the newest of the young dance frocks, is the almost-tailored dress. It boasts of long sleeves, and bases its claim to the dance floor on the soft starched chiffon of which it is made. One is made of red, with a high neckline tying in a soft bow under the chin. Cartridge pleats give a fullness to the sleeves, that diminish toward the tightly buttoned wrists. The godets on the skirt are cleverly set to help the sleeves in accenting a slender waistline. Another new idea in white starched mousseline-de-soie, with fine check stripes in black, makes a dress that will find its way into many a youthful wardrobe. The skirt is gracefully full, and short puff sleeves and a wide red suede belt produce an effect that is lovely in its simplicity.

Taffeta rustles into the spring style picture and should be warmly welcomed, if only as a variant to the softly draping and closely clinging fabrics which have held the spotlight for so long a time. Its scope will, of necessity, be limited, but its advent in the mode gives promise of some refreshing interpretations, whether alone or in the role of a contrasting fabric. In the latter connection we have the new cloque taffetas and the embroidered taffetas. Celanese taffeta, in the luscious pastel colorings of the new season, qualifies for enchanting dinner and dance frocks for youthful sophisticates. Organdy over taffeta is reminiscent of the gay nineties. Taffeta, in one form or another, will be much in evidence during this busy month of parties and crowded social calendars.

With the returned popularity of the suit comes the blouse, in many new designs and styles. What woman ever has blouses enough for her suit, no matter how many she possesses? A lovely little affair is made of crepe and net, the latter forming the smart tucked yoke. The color is the very popular beige-gray. Fullness in the sleeves centers around the three folds coming from under the arm of each sleeve. Another dainty one, of triple sheer chiffon, is in a pale pastel pink shade, having especially attractive puff sleeves with shirring and dainty ruffled edges. The model may be worn either as a tuck-in or an over blouse, as can so many of the new spring and summer blouses.

A really good black frock for afternoon or dinner wear is an outlay that more than pays for itself when one finds that she always can present a smart appearance without having to rush out, perhaps, and buy a frock every time a sudden invitation comes along. A black crepe is combined with shirred sheer materials to give a striking effect. Jeweled clips are worn at either side of the square-cut neckline. The sash always gives a soft, flattering touch.

Quite the newest wrap in fashion is the cape, as everyone knows by this time. Just now, the smartest cape of all is made of check material, and is to be worn with a plain wool skirt or a dress of the check color. Capes also are smart as the third piece of a suit. Imagine one in dark oxford gray with a suit of lighter gray.

All women love prints, but they must be small. The material may be rough or ribbed like a silk serge, smooth as the foulard in men's ties, or have a close resemblance to a patterned woolen. They can be gay or gray, and they are combined with almost any fabric. For instance, a three-piece costume combines a dress, jacket and detachable cape. The figured silk makes the top of the dress and decorations. The cape is of blue, with dots in greenish yellow, and is combined with the plain blue wool of the dress. Either jacket or cape may be worn. The dress follows the lines of the cape in its use of the print, with small jabots instead of the large scarf. The collarless jacket buttons high at the neck.

voted against President Roosevelt's economy bill! Also, when an amendment was proposed to the bill in the Senate, to reduce the mileage allowance of senators and representatives, it was voted down, although the allowance is excessive.

Numerous persons, including lawmakers, howl for a reduction in the cost of government, but they want the reducing processes to exclude themselves, their friends and their pet hobbies. That's why it is so difficult to balance government budgets. The substantial lawmaker, national and state, will, in these days of stress, forget lobbies and hobbies and think of the masses. Reduction should be applied all down the line, with not a single exception.

In a scathing denunciation of the New York Stock Exchange, Samuel Untermyer, in Los Angeles March 8, expressed the hope that the Federal Congress will put stock exchanges under government regulation and make them answerable to the courts of law. He said that if the proposed regulatory bill of 1912 had been enacted, "much of the recent scandals, misfortune and misery that have overtaken millions of small investors over the country would have been averted." The bill, he said, was defeated "by the lobby of the black horse cavalry of high finance."

"Of all the anomalous and incongruous evidences," said the famed lawyer, "that ours is not an orderly government of laws but a government of, by and for the favorites of finance and special privilege at the expense of the masses, the fact that in the face of its long history of crimes and misdemeanors the stock exchange continues immune from all legal regulation, restriction and control, is the most conclusive proof. . . . It has been in the past years the one and only known safe, lawful, respectable, crooked confidence game, and one that can be and has been practiced with immunity every day in the year except Sundays and holidays by the most devout of its members."

"But the blood that is unjustly spilt is not again gathered up from the ground by repentance."—Raleigh.

"RECOGNIZE AND WIPE OUT MISTAKES, AND PLAN FOR THE FUTURE"

Seth Millington

(GRAND PRESIDENT N.S.G.W.)

"THE CONVENING OF THE FIFTY-sixth Grand Parlor at Grass Valley, Nevada County, this year will bring to a close almost fifty-eight years of existence of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, founded on the 11th day of July, 1875. All of the evidence points to the fact that the altruistic purposes of its founding, and the ideals behind the suggestion that brought it into existence, was California history. While we must concede that there might have been other motives, not so altruistic or so idealistic, that may have rested in the mind of the founder, the only thing that survives today is the purity of the main idea, free from all blemishes, selfishness and self-seeking.

"During the past year, I have become thoroughly convinced that almost without exception the membership of the Order is true to the main thought, and that all of the members recognize our true purpose, and desire to see the historic idea behind the formation of this Order brought to its fullest consummation. The only difficulty, apparently, is the difference of opinion as to how that may be brought about.

"With the thought in mind that the purpose of the organization of the Native Sons of the Golden West is to preserve and perpetuate the beauty and romance of California's golden, colorful history, to preserve the written record that future generations may read and know, to restore the historic landmarks that they might see and appreciate, and to mark the spots with proper monuments where events of historic importance took place, let us consolidate our gains, recognize and wipe out our mistakes, and plan for the future.

"From the day I entered the Order, I never was able to reconcile an honorary historic society with the signs, words and pretended mysticism of a secret fraternity, and after all these years the two are just as irreconcilable as they were in the beginning. We are either an honorary historic society, in which the right to enrollment is a privilege and an honor, or we are a secret fraternity, copied largely from older fraternities, with, of course, our work adjusted to our unique eligibility requirements, and faced with the fact that we have concealed our light under a bushel, or rather behind the closed doors of secret meetings.

"Analyzing the situation, I can see only one reason why this Order originally was instituted as a secret society. In 1875 the secret society in America was at the hey-day of its existence, the social center about which revolved all activities, and in the absence of the modern vehicles of entertainment such as radio, moving pictures, automobiles and a host of other things that afford amusement, the meeting of the secret society easily attracted all of its members, who were physically able to attend, as the almost only outlet for pleasure in a rather drab existence. Consequently, the secret society flourished and the Native Sons, coming into existence at that period, fell into the line that was characteristic of that time and it became a secret society with its ritual; with its initiation ceremonies; with its habiliments, signs and words,—pure mummery, so far as meaning was concerned, and useless surplusage, so far as effect is concerned,—all with secret drapery behind which was concealed the real worth of the society.

"During the last few years, I have been very forcibly impressed with the fact, that is beyond contradiction, that the secret society in this State is rapidly losing ground, most of the societies with a rapidity that is almost devastating. While we have suffered losses, they have been trifling, in comparison with others, and I attribute our maintaining of our strength not to our ritual, not to our secret work, not to our closed doors, but to the fact that we have a background of achievement, of development of historic research work in our State, of preserving the record, of restoring the edifices and the old towns, and of properly marking the historic spots. Five years ago, the Order abandoned the secret signs, and that, in my opinion, was the start in the direction of ultimately clearing the record of surplusage and leaving us what we really are, an honorary historic society, dedicated to the preservation of the memories and glories of our forebears who crossed the continent to give us this magnificent empire, within whose limits can be found every physical feature of the rest of the globe:

"The delta of the Sacramento and San Joaquin, equaling the fertility of the delta of the Nile; the snow-clad granite peaks of the Sierras, rivaling the peaks of the Alps; the harbor of San Francisco, unequaled elsewhere on this earth, where the fleets of the world could be anchored in safety; the beaches of the Southland, with their mellow warmth of air and water, excelling the Riviera; the North coast, with mountains meeting the sea, comparable to the rugged fjord indented coast of Norway; deserts of the Mojave and the Colorado, similar in effect if not in size to the Sahara, but changed by the industry of man to earth's most fertile spot; the lakes of Lake County, as beautiful as the lakes of Scotland; a State with snow-clad Shasta, at the north, looking down the length of the fertile Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, to the Tehachapi, and beyond to the luxuriant tropical groves of the Southland. Amid these scenes were enacted two of time's finest dramas, each distinctive and each unique.

"When Gaspar DePortola and Father Junipero Serra, in the spring of 1769, wended their way northward along the coastal plain of California, stopping at intervals to designate a site and ultimately to build a Christian mission, another method of occupying and developing a new and raw land and of civilizing the barbarous aborigines began. Twenty-three mission buildings ultimately dotted the Pacific border of the Western continent from San Diego to Sonoma, and from the bell towers of some sounded the chimes before the liberty bell rang in Philadelphia. Without war, without oppression and without malice, these fathers of old, almost unaided by soldiery, developed and made fertile a new land.

"True, they failed in their ultimate aim in raising the California Indian to their own state of civilization, not because of their own lack of effort or ability, but because of the crude human clay from which they tried to mold. Today, many of their old buildings are falling to ruin, and one of the finest historic heritages of California has been squandered by the devastating hand of time. No finer monuments to an era that stands out so distinctive on the pages of history could be found than these old mission buildings. The fortune of birth has placed upon us, as one of our paramount duties, the obligation of seeing that the wastage of wind and weather is stopped and that these old missions are restored, so that not only Californians, but visitors to our State, for all times can see this distinctive architecture, representing a period of a century and half ago that will not again be duplicated.

"We turn from the coastal plain of California, from the gentle tread of the sandaled feet of the Padres and the soft, euphonious tones of the Spanish nomenclature, to the canyons of the Sierras, and there hear, echoing from the granite walls, the harsh clanging of the hobnail boot of the Forty-niners, with the rough but forcible designations of the Anglo-Saxon tongue, contrasting Santa Barbara, Ventura, San Luis Obispo, Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Mateo, Santa Clara and San Francisco of the Spanish tongue with Hangtown, Poker Flat, Murderers Gulch, Shirt Tail Canyon, Rich Bar, Fiddle Town and other descriptive names of the Forty-niners.

"Here in these canyons, for the brief period of the existence of placer mines, lived and mined a hardy race who crossed two thousand miles of mountains and desert, lured by the irresistible call of gold, the marks of their brief, but vigorous, stay in the mother lode country now all but obliterated. Still, up there in the vastness of the Sierras, remain part of Columbia, Downieville, Old Shasta, the old part of Auburn, Nevada City, Placerville, as well as other remnants of the days of the Forty-niners that still may be seen at Rough and Ready, Georgetown and Weaverville. But unless the hand of the vandal is stayed and the consuming effect of fire is stopped and the wear of winter rains and snows is retarded, they will soon be gone.

"No state in America can equal either of these periods in California's history, and yet this organization, brought into existence for the purpose of saving these very things, has been handicapped in the ultimate achievement of its purpose by concealing its altruistic desires behind a cloak of secrecy and the habiliments of a secret society.

"The records show that a man of prominence and ability rarely joins a secret society if he has passed his youth. While most of the big men of California belong to our Order, I think that almost without exception they joined while young. Few men of affairs have either the time or the inclination to go through the initiation ceremony of a secret society, and I am thoroughly convinced that we have lost thousands of men from our Order who would deem it a privilege to join if they could do so without offering themselves for initiation,—for two reasons: First, they may hesitate to give the time. Second, the elaborate words and sounding phrases do not affect the modern man as they did his father. He is not enthralled with beautiful words arranged in sounding, but sometimes meaningless, phrases, but is rather irritated and sometimes disgusted. This last statement is no reflection on our ritual, but is a general statement as to the reaction that many times comes to a candidate who, upon being initiated, feels that he spends hours as the target of empty oratory.

"How much better it would be, so far as practical achievement of our purposes is concerned, to bring in members by subscribing their names to a brief, but carefully worded, pledge of loyalty to the organization; and, for those who appreciate and enjoy the ceremony of initiation, to let them have it. By permitting the enrollment of members without subjecting the candidate to the initiation ceremonies, unless he desires it, I am firmly convinced that thousands of men would apply for membership.

"I believe that our initiatory work should embody a general outline of California's past, so that the candidate upon final acceptance and at the conclusion of the initiatory ceremony should have a good, substantial, general idea of the history of our native State. Whether this will be presented to the Grass Valley Grand Parlor, is at this time problematical. The change has been somewhat revolutionary, and it is questionable whether the proposed new ritual will be in that stage of development that makes me feel justified in asking the members to accept it. I am very doubtful that that will happen.

"Many years ago, the Order went into the insurance business. This is rather a brutal way of stating that we endeavored to assist distressed brothers with sick benefits. That it has not been a success, is demonstrated by the record. I have examined the books of many Subordinate Parlors that have surrendered their charters and, without one single exception, the surrender of the charter was preceded by an epidemic of sickness that exhausted the treasury through sick benefits and prevented, through financial inability, the carrying on of social affairs, with the resulting loss of interest and the eventual disintegration. There is no doubt that many years ago, due to lack of facilities by the ordinary run of insurance companies, that this activity may have had its justification. Today, legal commercial insurance companies will furnish this service fully as cheaply and with greater certainty.

"The fraternal society is presented with another difficulty in the sick benefit administration that does not confront a cold-blooded insurance company, and that is the malingerer. It is no coincidence that the call for sick relief bears a direct relation to the prosperity of the times. A malingerer would get short shift at the hands of an insurance company; sympathy and fraternal relationship place a heavy hand on the effort of the administration of sick benefits by a fraternity. Furthermore, the weekly benefits bear no relation to the dues. One Parlor, for the same monthly dues, may pay three times as much as another. Obviously, one of them must be wrong, and a comparison with insurance rates, based upon the American mortality rate, shows that we pay too much. But the final answer is, that the insurance business bears no relation to a historic society and cannot be reconciled with the thought.

"I fully appreciate the fact, so far as our old members are concerned,—those who joined when sick benefits were payable,—we are probably in somewhat of a contractional relation and, without their consent, they possibly could not be deprived of their rights to sick benefits. Many Parlors are changing their by-laws to have two classes of members, beneficial and non-beneficial. The beneficial members pay, in addition to the regular Parlor dues, such sum as is commensurate with the value of the agreed benefit payment. I believe that we can strengthen our Order by not taking in any more beneficial members, although I am thoroughly committed to the idea of assisting a brother when in need, not because of the cold-blooded wording of a contract, but because of sympathy and love, and then not in a stated sum, but in whatever amount of money is required, within the limitation of the ability of the treasury of the Parlor.

"Some years back the Order, in conjunction with our sister Order, the Native Daughters of the Golden West, instituted the Central Committee of Homeless Children. In my opinion, this is one of the finest and most idealistic activities ever instituted by any society. Without reference to race, color or religion, to accept a homeless child and endeavor to place that child in a home where it can become a useful citizen of the Nation, without hope of reward on the part of the society, stands out as a magnificen display of unselfishness. Why a historic societ should have come into that line of endeavor i one of the things that I have never been able t understand, although having committed our selves to that object we can never take a back ward step, and I believe that we are committe and held, by both the demands of pride and c charity, to forever carry on the work of placin homeless children in childless homes.

"During the past year, five new Parlors hav been instituted, and no charters surrendered. had planned during the year to institute twent parlors, but it was a very short time after I wa installed that the effects of the economic de pression were brought home to me in no unmis takable form. The men who would have becom members of the prospective parlor, in too man instances, while desiring the association wit us, were simply unable to either raise or spar the initiation fee, consequently, the work i which I had such confidence was forced to slo down. However, the field remains and there ar literally dozens of towns in California, if no hundreds, that are not only able to, but woul be glad to, maintain a Native Son parlor. Som day prosperity will return to our fair land, an what I had hoped to do will be accomplished b some Grand President in happier days.

"No man with a real affection for our Orde could spend a year as Grand President, with th daily association with the problems of the dif ferent Parlors, without getting a reasonabl clear picture of the needs and requirements, th strength and weaknesses of our Order, and have endeavored in this article to give you m idea of our Order, both historically as to it past and, I hope, prophetically as to its future For, during the eleven years since 1922, when first became a Grand Officer, I have had plent of opportunity to see and appreciate both ou strength and our weaknesses. And I firmly be lieve that the day is coming when we will abolis the last vestige of secrecy, with the possible ex ception of retaining a password for holdin meetings with none but members present, if w so desire; that if we retain a ritual, it will b changed to embody the historic thought that wa behind the suggestion of our organization; tha we will eventually do away with sick and deat benefits; that we will, when times become bette and money easier, restore our financial assist ance to educational work; that we will, both through our own monetary contributions an the advancing of the legislature enactment, se that every historic mission and mining town l restored to what each was in the days of th Padres and the days of the Forty-niners re spectively; that we will erect suitable monu ments from one end of the State to the other that through our efforts the road-signs of Cali fornia will point out these spots, and that al things historically will be done so that our ac complishments will eventually meet the highes requirements of the only thing that justifies ou existence and places us among the organization of the world as unique and distinctive with ou peculiar, but proper, eligibility requirements Upon no one but the son and the daughter o the soil of California so strongly devolves the duty and the privilege of doing the things that I have tried to set forth in this article."

DESTINY

The Indian knew the priest
The priest, the ranchero.
A time of prayer.
Warm sunny days and singing nights
Adored and rare!
Before the days of gold
Were consecrated hours
When native trod
Adobe missions, meekly calm,
To worship God.

But shifting tides brought change
And fickle fortune lured
To western lands
A swarm of nationalities
In restless bands.
No time since the Crusades
Had men so thundered on
With dauntless feet.
They came to California
Blind fate to meet.

They came from foreign lands
The Malays, Hindoos, Dutch
Pig-tailed Chinese!
Americans from every state
New wealth to seize.
The young of every race
Adaptable and shrewd.
The good, the bad,
A modern Babylonia
All strangely clad.

In camp they met and lived
Eye met eye, hand met hand
When life was hard,
Heart-hunger coined a sacred word
The soul-word, "Pard."

HISTORY WORK DEDICATED TO DR. BOLTON BY FORMER STUDENTS

In recognition of the services of Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, sather professor and chairman of history at the University of California, in training teachers of history during the past two decades, a group of his former students, now connected with universities in all parts of the country, are issuing a dedicatory collection of historical writings under the name of "New Spain and the Anglo-American West."

The books contain documents and essays, dealing with the northward advance of the frontiers of New Spain and the westward movement of Anglo-Americans, which have been contributed by twenty-four of Professor Bolton's former students. Also, a complete bibliography of his writings, and a separate analytical index for each volume.

The documents included come from the archives of Spain, Mexico and France, as well as from several American repositories. They throw new light on the history of North America from the time of Cortes to the California gold rush. It is the opinion of the editors that the work will serve as an invaluable body of source materials and interpretative essays for Spanish colonial administration, the Spanish borderlands and the American frontier.

GRASS VALLEY, LAND OF THE PIONEER,
CENTRAL POINT OF THE SIERRA PLAYGROUND

Robert J. Deward

ROAMING BACK OVER THE TRAILS OF the Forty-niner, up through the valley of the Sacramento and into the forested foothills of the Sierra, delegates to the 1933 Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West will come nto the city of Grass Valley, Nevada County, he home of Quartz Parlor No. 58, host to the Native Sons of California.

In its setting of pine-clad hills, its air of peace nd detachment, the visitor will soon perceive he atmosphere of this little city hidden away mong the foothills of the Sierra,—the atmosphere of sufficiency unto itself. Perhaps it is an nheritance from those self-sufficient people who rossed the prairies by oxcart, or took the equally perilous journey around the Horn. The mark eft by the Forty-niner is still there, easily perceived in the crooked, narrow streets sided by eather-beaten brick buildings with their stout ron doors and iron shuttered windows.

Any native son with the history of the gold ush in his mind can visualize a party of laborrs, artisans, merchants and farmers who came nto the little settlement f Boston Ravine in 1849, ollowing the trail to the ot of gold at the end of he rainbow. It had been hard path for many, nd only the few kept heir rich harvests from he creek bottoms. Bosn Ravine grew from a nt city to one of log abins and rough-lumber tores, interspersed with n occasional brick buildng fortified with twoot walls and iron doors nd shutters, not to keep onest people out, but to eep the dross of the elting-pot from leaking n. Many fortunes came ut of the creeks, and ngle claims yielded om $10,000 to $50,000 a comparatively short me.

EARLY SETTLEMENT AND MINING.

From Boston Ravine he settlement spread rther along the bed of olf Creek, and a new wn, Centerville, sprang up. The name of this ttlement was later changed to Grass Valley. hile placer and hydraulic mining was still in s infancy around Grass Valley, gold in quartz as discovered on what is now known as Gold ill, the prominence overlooking Boston Ravine. was here that James Knight first discovered old in the white rock, and from his discovery rung one of the richest gold mines of the reion. Shortly after gold in quartz was discovred on this location another discovery was ade on the opposite divide, about a half-mile way. It was on this quartz ledge that the Empire mine was started.

Since 1851 the Empire mine has been runng continuously in that same location and has oduced over $65,000,000 in gold. Today, the operty is still producing at a profit, and men ave burrowed into the earth to a depth of 000 feet. Miles of tunnels extend in every rection from the main shaft, and in spite of e millions of tons of rock which have been illed for gold there is still an unlimited supy to be mined.

LAW ENFORCEMENT.

With the early growth of Grass Valley, there me an influx of people from all over the naon,—lawyers, doctors, merchants, artisans, iners, clerks, and dregs from the slums of the ties. Government was a problem, but justice, a kind, was meted out swiftly to offenders. operty and mining laws were strictly enforced, id the basis of all mining law in this country as established in this vicinity. That it was uitable and just, is shown by the fact that it as persisted almost intact to this day. Much the law concerning water rights and water propriation from the streams originated in is region, and local residents still hold water ghts handed down to them by their families, ttlers of the early fifties.

In spite of the fact that measures to enforce the law were drawn up in fairness to everyone, it was a difficult matter, especially in the seventies and eighties, to give much protection to Chinese and Negroes. The former were often robbed and swindled of their earnings, which often ran as high as $1.25 per day, and the Chinese placer miner was often relieved of his dust without much effort being made to recover his property.

While Grass Valley was still full of the wild and woolly miners, and Negroes in the South were still slaves, a Negro came into town astride a white horse. A Negro on the loose was enough to cause a sensation anywhere, but to have one ride sedately into town on a white horse was beyond the comprehension of the miners. They immediately concluded that the horse must have been stolen, because Negroes were not supposed to own horses, much less any other form of property. He was promptly arrested, and given a trial. It took but a few minutes to hear the evidence, and less time to find the Negro guilty of stealing a horse. He maintained that he had purchased the horse in Marysville, which subsequently proved to be true. However, a necktie party was promptly arranged, and the Negro was duly hanged. A doctor happened to be present at the hanging, and examined the Negro after the crime had been expiated. His examination disclosed that the Negro was not dead, but would revive if left alone. Knowing that the man could not be hanged twice for the same crime, the officials promptly got busy and buried the unfortunate wretch before he could revive.

ENTERTAINMENT FEATURES.

But there was the better side to the life of the miner, and in spite of the crudity of his method of living, he did have a variety of entertainment. Lola Montez was acclaimed far and wide by the miners of Grass Valley, and no doubt her entertaining helped to lighten the burden of dreary hours spent on the creek bottoms. Her home still stands on Mill street in Grass Valley, the sole reminder of her palmy days in the roaring mining camp. Lotta Crabtree, another entertainer of those early days, specialized in dancing for the boys, and the story went the rounds that upon occasion the miners filled her dainty slippers with virgin nuggets from the stream beds. She held a warm spot in the hearts of those rough-and-ready miners, and Lotta was at her best when performing for them. Lotta also is reputed to have lived on Mill street, and her residence is now a roominghouse and, curiously enough, for miners.

ROUGH AND READY VS. NEVADA CITY.

While Grass Valley was still in its infancy, Nevada City, four miles to the north, was the center of life for miners along the Yuba and the various small creeks adjacent to it. But even then it had a rival, and strange as it seems at this time, Rough and Ready, now a ghost town with little left to mark it as a thriving city of the early fifties, was putting in a strong bid for the county seat. It had been settled by people from the Southern states to a great extent, and many of them proved to be highly enterprising individuals. Rivalry between Rough and Ready and Nevada City grew tense during the Civil War days, and upon one occasion a messenger rode into Nevada with the word that the Southerners from Rough and Ready were planning a raid on the county seat and meant to take it in the name of the Confederacy. The rumor spread like wildfire, and in a short time a great body of miners and townspeople were organized and armed, and hasty defenses were thrown up. Streets were barricaded, and the army kept its vigil all night long. The attack did not come that night, as expected, but the defenders were wary.

As the next day wore on and the army grew impatient for the conflict, it was decided to send out scouts to determine the position of the enemy, as well as their number and equipment. Stealing cautiously over the intervening hills and valleys, the scouts were amazed at not seeing the invaders. Pushing on to the hills surrounding Rough and Ready, the scouts still failed to find the hostile forces and finally decided to ride into the town. Everything was peaceable there, and no signs of armed activity could be found. The guides meekly turned around to go back and lift the seige of Nevada City.

As the Civil War progressed without decisiveness on either side, the people of Rough and Ready, strong Southern sympathizers, became more and more disgruntled with the administration of Abraham Lincoln. The climax was reached when those reckless souls decided to take matters in their own hands and secede from the Union. In all formality the Republic of Rough and Ready was established, and so came into being the smallest republic in the history of the world. The republic, however, was short-lived, and died of its own inertia, combined with the lack of interest among unsympathizing communities.

THE "HUNGRY CONVENTION."

The Rough and Ready "revolution" had a close parallel in Grass Valley shortly after the miners along the creeks became more numerous. As there was no agriculture in the county at the time, the whole region was dependent upon the outside for foodstuffs and supplies. Practically all of the merchants had been buying their foodstuffs in San Francisco, and since the existence of the whole populace was more or less of a hand-to-mouth proposition no great reserves of stock were carried. One particularly hard winter, '52-'53, supplies ran perilously low and a good part of the people were on rations. Supplies had been ordered from San Francisco many weeks previously, but had not been delivered. Exorbitant prices had been put upon the little foodstuff remaining. The situation demanded a public meeting, and the citizenry gathered at Beatty's Hotel, on Main street, with the house filled to overflowing with excited miners.

An early-day writer, describing the event, said: "Judge Murphy took the chair, and if he had discharged the office of governor with as much zeal and ability as he did that of the presiding officer of the hungry convention, he deserves the thanks of unborn millions, and probably will get it."

A number of town wags saw the opportunity, and stole the show. Working upon the sympathies of the crude miners, who were always more or less ready to flaunt the gauntlet in the face of the devil, the assemblage agreed to draw up some resolutions, as well as to take foodstuffs away from the soulless speculators who were driving them to starvation. So, "At a meeting of the miners and citizens of Grass Valley, in convention assembled, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted: Whereas, When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for a people to protect themselves against want and starvation, when they are at the mercy of soulless speculators, who demand all their earnings for the support of life, we deem it right to act in self-defense, and demand provisions for our need, and at prices which we are able to give. A decent respect for the opinions of the world induces us to give a catalogue of our grievances, in order to show the justice of our cause. Therefore, we declare

"That in consequence of the impassable roads we are short of supplies necessary to the support of human life. That the merchants refuse to sell at reasonable prices. That there are abundant supplies of flour and other necessaries in San Francisco, which soulless speculators, taking advantage of our position, are holding for exorbitant prices, and refuse to sell. Therefore, be it resolved, That appealing to high heaven for the justice of our cause, we will go to San Francisco and obtain the necessary supplies, 'Peaceably if we can, but forcibly if we must'."

MILL STREET, IN THE BUSINESS SECTION OF GRASS VALLEY.

It was a motley army which was hastily recruited—armed with long toms, picks, shovels and other odd weapons. The "war" was under way. A body of scouts were sent out as an advance guard to lead the way, and after proceeding as far as Rough and Ready, four miles to the south, they came upon a train of wagons mired in the mud and loaded with the long-awaited supplies. The war was forgotten, and the probable demolition of San Francisco averted.

THE PICTURE AFTER THE FIRE OF '51.

As was to be expected, fires proved a great menace to the early-day mining camps, and the flimsy structures were so much tinder when a fire started. Bucket brigades were of no value in combating the flames, and the only recourse was to let a fire burn itself out. Both Grass Valley and Nevada City were wholly or partially destroyed by fire at various times, the first coming in Nevada in 1850, and in Grass Valley in 1851. In spite of these reverses the towns rapidly built up again, and each rebuilding was an improvement. The final result was attained with the construction of fireproof brick buildings.

Writing of Grass Valley in 1851, A. A. Sargent, later a power in state politics, presented a picture which should be impressed upon the mind of the visitor. He related: "The dwellings among the trees, the gentle swelling of the hills, the beautiful broad valleys, and the air of mixed primitiveness and business bustle, all go to make a delightful spot. In addition to all this, the heavy pulsations of the many quartz mills that are laboring tirelessly day and night, save on the Sabbath, give an air of permanence and solidity to the town unlike the many ephemeral, mine-created towns that have arisen, prospered, and become deserted in California within a few years. The improvements taking place in Grass Valley are all of a solid nature: handsome houses are being erected, and stores, with heavy stocks of goods, are being prepared for the coming winter. There are many families already in the town, and more are coming, and when the pleasant, harmonizing influences of female society are more largely added to Grass Valley, the sun will not shine on a more desirable residence.

"The miracles that enterprise can accomplish have no better example than this town. Two or three years ago the echoes of its woods were awakened only by the cry of the wild bird and beast, or of the almost equally wild and degraded Indian. The riches of its ravines first attracted notice, then the treasure locked up in quartz, requiring skill and energy to obtain it. The demand created the supply; and, as the result, powerful machinery is in motion, a permanent town grown up, and the wilderness has changed to a cheerful and crowded haunt of men."

The visitor to Grass Valley today should keep this description of Sargent's in mind, and practically the only changes he will notice are the greater signs of permanence, and the vanishing of the Indians.

FOLLOWING THE LURE OF GOLD.

At the same time the country around Grass Valley was swarming with miners, untold numbers of adventurers were working their way all over the western slopes of the Sierras. All along the North, Middle and South Yuba Rivers men were washing the stream-bed sands in cradles and sluices, and at other places miles of ditches had been constructed to bring water to inaccessable places, that the hillsides might be washed away for the gold in the gravel. Along the San Juan Ridge, at French Corral and North Bloomfield there were great hydraulic mines, with huge monitors gnawing at the earth and washing their silt into the rivers. At the little town of Washington, on the South Yuba River, there were hundreds of miners working in the diggings of Alpha and Omega. On the edge of the Omega diggings the celebrated Emma Nevada was born, her name later becoming known throughout the whole country.

With the coming of the early eighties, the cry against hydraulic mining became so persistent that it was finally banned, and the once-populous villages of the Sierras became the ghost towns of the West. Little remains of French Corral and North San Juan, Washington, Rough and Ready, You Bet and Red Dog. The vanishing of the prosperity and happiness of the people living in contentment in these places might well be called the tragedy of the golden age of the Sierras.

impregnated with gold, and that the particle came from a quartz ledge, the character of mining changed, to a great extent, around Grass Valley. McKnight's "boot," made in 1850, brought a great rush of miners to follow the trail of the quartz vein. Crude stampmills were set up, and the hillsides became dotted with the "dumps" of mine shafts. Not a great many of the earliest mines succeeded, because the methods of mining were so crude, but as the years passed improvements came, and soon the quartz mines of Grass Valley were the sustenance of the community. After the Empire became a steady producer the North Star, the Idaho-Maryland, Bullion, Pennsylvania and many other lesser properties came into being. The North Star has run almost continuously since 1875, and the Idaho-Maryland has been operating for the past twelve years after a long shut-down period, and is at the present time one of the finest mines in the district. The Bullion, closed since 1917, has again started operations, and with new water-pumping equipment installed, is expected to take its place as a big producer of gold.

WHITE SPOTS OF THE NATION.

While the rest of the nation has been suffering the pangs of depression and nations have been maneuvering to gain control of the world's supply of gold, the demand for the yellow metal has steadily increased, and with the falling prices it became possible to work mines of low-grade ore and make them yield profits. Since 1929, Grass Valley and Nevada City have become more prosperous than at any time since the early days of their history, and new properties have been constantly opening. Men who were released from the copper and silver mines of the Western states have flocked to this area, and great numbers of them have found profitable employment. Once again there came a gold rush to the creeks, but the yield to the average amateur has been very slight, but the life in the open and the ability to sustain themselves has served to keep up their morale and keep them out of the breadlines in the cities.

A GRASS VALLEY RESIDENCE.

The great hordes of Chinese who combed over the hydraulic tailings during the seventies, eighties and nineties did not leave a great deal of the yellow metal behind, and with the vanishing of quantities of free gold along the creek beds the Orientals went down into the valleys to farm. Grass Valley and Nevada City, as well as all of the Sierra mining camps, were at one time heavily populated with the Chinese, and in Grass Valley two of the famous old joss houses still stand, preserved with all their relics since the early days.

GRASS VALLEY TODAY.

Changing conditions elsewhere have also changed Grass Valley from a helter-skelter mining camp to a modern city of paved streets, city parks, fine homes and modern schools. The high Sierra at its back door, with lakes and streams and virgin forests, each year becomes more popular with the residents of the crowded metropolitan areas. With fish and game in abundance, the region has become a vacationer's paradise, and has changed many a visitor's dream of retirement to a home among its pine-clad hills.

Aside from the points of interest to the visitor seeking a delve into the throbbing past of the Forty-niner, the city of Grass Valley is the central point of the Sierra playground. But a two-hour drive away is Lake Tahoe, the ideal of the vacationist. Within that driving range are the famous Sierra Buttes, Lakes Fordyce, Faucherie, Spaulding; the Salmons, Sardines, and a great chain of some twenty other mountain lakes.

To the delegate who does not care to stray, Grass Valley offers the facilities of tennis courts, a golf course, swimming pools, boating, hiking and picnicking. In all of the miles of the country to be traveled, the visitor never gets away from the influences of the lure of gold. The roar of stamp mills, the great gashes left in the earth by the huge hydraulic monitors, the remains of ghost towns, and the prosperity of the whole region all lead back to the precious yellow metal.

GOLD PRODUCTION.

With the mines of Nevada City and Grass Valley combined from the production standpoint, they have yielded hundreds of millions of dollars in gold. The Empire has produced about $65,000,000, the North Star $35,000,000, the Idaho-Maryland $30,000,000, Champion group about $25,000,000, and other smaller producers another $50,000,000. To this huge pile of gold may be added the unknown millions taken out of the hydraulic, gravel and placer mines, estimated in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 to $150,000,000.

Although these mines have been operating since the fifties, engineers estimate that there is still over $400,000,000 left in these hills in placer gold alone! Surely, as the old prospector said, "There's gold in them thar hills."

Much of the vision, courage and tenacity of the miners of the earlier days still exists among the miners of today, for gold mining is still considerable of a gamble, and gold is still where they find it. So the spirit of the Forty-niner still lives among the physical traces of his habitation, among the old mine dumps and deserted shafts which remain as monuments more graphic and enduring than all of the plaques and marble shafts erected in his memory.

Grass Valley is the land of the Pioneer, the original virile type of manhood from which sprung the best in our Golden State today, for only the strong survived and only the courageous stayed. It is to this primitive land that Quartz Parlor invites all Native Sons,—a land with much of its virgin beauty unsullied by the progress of industrialism, its rural life as serene and undisturbed as it has existed through decades past. The spirit of mountain hospitality still prevails. The doctrine of live and let live has stayed with the spirit of the past.

QUARTZ PARLOR
HOST TO THE N.S.G.W. GRAND PARLOR

(ROBERT J. DEWARD.)

OVER FORTY-EIGHT YEARS AGO, A group of the young men who were leaders in the civic life of Grass Valley, Nevada County, received a charter from John A. Steinbach, then Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, for Quartz Parlor No. 58. For many weeks prior to receiving the charter, they had worked diligently interesting young men in the Order, and on March 28, 1885, there were thirty-four members present to form the nucleus of the parlor. The "Grass Valley Union" of March 30 said of the meeting:

"After the installation ceremonies a fine banquet was held at the Wisconsin Hotel, where eighty-six of the Sons sat down to partake of the good things spread before them. There was an absence of wines and liquors, which are not permitted by the rules of the Order, but this was no drawback to the good cheer and fellowship of the occasion, as it was a season of real enjoyment to all. J. A. Steinbach, Grand President, did not arrive on the early train, and in consequence a delay of several hours was occasioned until his arrival from Colfax, he having come by overland, so it was near the hour of 1 a.m. before the installation ceremonies were commenced."

FRANK J. ROWE, President.

The charter of Quartz Parlor was kept open, and when it was finally closed there were sixty charter members. The first president was Thomas C. Hocking, who passed away just recently at Modesto, Stanislaus County, and the first recording secretary was Robert D. Finnie [now affiliated with Sacramento Parlor No. 3]. Other charter members still living are C. W. Kitts, Charles Othet, John Frank, C. B. Adams,

H. RAY GEORGE, Recording Secretary.

Lucius C. Duval and F. J. Thomas. The Parlor now has a membership of 186.

Charter Member Othet, in reminiscing states that the first few years of Quartz Parlor were rather trying, with frequent assessments necessary to keep solvent. The heavy drain on finances was occasioned by the fact that the Parlor had to pay for the upkeep of the meeting halls. The first meeting place was in a building which burned in one of Grass Valley's many fires. From there the Parlor went to the old Temperance Hall, but as it was replaced by more modern buildings and more of the elite of the townspeople joined the Parlor, the meeting place was moved to the more modern Lord's Hall, on lower Main street. That, too, grew outmoded, and the next shift was to Wm. George's Hall, still standing on the corner of Auburn and Neal streets. From there the Parlor moved to the present meeting place, the Auditorium Building. Being tired of the constant shiftings of its meeting place, Quartz decided to erect a structure that would be a credit to the town. Not having sufficient funds, it interested other fraternal organizations, and with pooled resources the hall was constructed.

Quartz Parlor occupied an enviable position in the early history of Grass Valley, and provided most of the civic leaders of the day. Practically all of the school buildings in the city were dedicated by the Native Sons, including the new and modern high school. Other public buildings also were dedicated by the Parlor. On one occasion Quartz staged an Admission Day celebration which, for technical detail and impressiveness, has never been equaled in the history of the city.

Of late years the endeavors of Quartz Parlor have been directed toward the perpetuation of the history of early California, and particularly as affecting the gold country. Only last year the Native Sons and Native Daughters of Grass Valley erected a monument to the memory of George McKnight, on the spot where he made the original discovery of quartz gold, and staged an elaborate two-day celebration.

Quartz Parlor has interested itself not only in California history, but also in perpetuating the spirit and patriotism of the Pioneers. Flags have been presented to the schools of the city, and the Parlor still has in its possession a flag presented to it by Mrs. George W. Starr in 1887. Judge George L. Jones is the only member in the history of Quartz Parlor who has served as a grand officer, he having been elected Grand Trustee.

In securing the Grand Parlor for Grass Valley, Quartz Parlor did so with the hopes of being able to impress upon the visiting delegates some of the glamor of California's early history, especially that reflected in the mining camps of the gold rush. It has prepared a program which will interest every Native Son, and arouse in him a feeling of belonging to the land.

The present officers of Quartz Parlor are: Frank J. Rowe, president; Robert Kohler, past president; Frank L. Hooper, first vice-president; John Thomas, second vice-president; Henry Beretta, third vice-president; H. Ray George, recording secretary; W. R. Vincent, financial secretary; Loyle Freeman, treasurer; W. P. Fox, marshal; William Phillips, inside sentinel; Charles Beloud, outside sentinel; James E. Oliver, R. L. Payne, Chester Edwards, trustees.

Quartz Parlor cordially invites every Native Son to Grass Valley for the Grand Parlor, from May 15 to 18, and promises one of the most interesting sessions ever held.

Real Beauty—"Beauty is a virtue. Longing for beauty is not vanity. Only the unworthy pride of beauty and its vulgar exposition is vanity, a contemptible vanity. If we philosophize that the good is the beautiful, then genuine beauty must have a foundation in goodness. . . . Beauty, to my way of thinking, is as essential to human life and happiness as the very air we breathe and the food we eat. This dreary old world needs beauty to enliven it."—Frederic B. Acosta.

Must Observe Memorial Day.

San Francisco—The Grand Parlor Printing and Supplies Committee—Fred H. Nickelson (chairman), J. G. Schroeder and W. G. Maison—has advised the Subordinate Parlors that it is mandatory for them to observe Memorial Day, May 30, in either of the two ways prescribed by the Grand Parlor Constitution. Arrangements should, the committee urges, be made not later than May 10.

Golden Anniversary Celebrated.

Pescadero—Mr. and Mrs. William A. Moore celebrated their golden wedding anniversary April 9 surrounded by many relatives and friends. Better known as "Uncle Bill," Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Moore, who crossed the plains to California in 1847. He was born at Santa Cruz City, July 19, 1851, and in 1854 came with his parents to Pescadero, where he has ever since resided. His parents celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1897, and his sister and her husband, Mrs. and Mr. Charles Steele Sr., celebrated theirs in 1930. Mrs. Moore, the former Miss Hattie Huff, is 79 years of age.

"Uncle Bill" is a prominent member of Pebble Beach No. 230, and the Parlor presented him with a life membership, and Ano Nuevo No. 180 N.D.G.W. remembered the couple with a golden basket of flowers. Moore is the uncle of Ida Mesquite, Louise Williamson and Harriet Williamson, members of Ano Nuevo. Telegrams of congratulations were received by the golden wedding couple from many relatives and friends. —I.M.M.

Annual Get-Together May 7.

San Diego—At a splendid meeting of San Diego No. 108 April 12, the ritual team of Arrowhead No. 110 (San Bernardino) initiated two candidates for the Parlor. Among the number in attendance were President F. L. McGarvey, Treasurer John Andreson and Judge Donald VanLuven of Arrowhead, and District Deputy Walter Hiskey and Leo Young of Santa Ana No. 265.

April 24, the Parlor presented to San Diego City a California State (Bear) Flag, which stands at the right of the mayor's chair in the councilroom. El Campo Santo, Old Town cemetery, is being restored; the adobe walls will soon be up. The Butterfield stage station in Vallecitos Valley is also to be restored.

May 7, San Diego will have its annual picnic and barbecue in El Monte Park. This is the reunion that brings all the oldtimers and the Natives together. James Murphy will have charge of the barbecue, Marshall Cruze the refreshments, and Bob Mahony the sports.

Twenty-Year Buttons Presented.

Livermore—At an oldtimers night April 13, Las Positas No. 96 presented twenty-year buttons to all who have been affiliated with the Parlor twenty years or more. The list includes: J. M. Beazell, Roy Beck, C. G. Clarke, N. D. Dutcher Jr., E. T. Ellis, H. T. Holley, H. W. Hupers, C. E. Livermore, Norman McLeod, Clarence B. Mally, Fred M. Mally, Wm. Medau, R. L. Ruetz, M. L. Silva, all of Livermore; A. C. McLeod of San Francisco, Arthur J. St. Clair of Gustine, Jos. A. Guanziroli of Richmond, George H. Jackson of Berkeley. Each year, as others reach their twentieth milestone in the Parlor, they will be given similar tokens.

Balancing the Budget.

Plymouth—As a means to balancing the budget of Plymouth No. 48, members donned workaday clothes April 9 and, armed with axes and saws, spent the day gathering wood to be used in the Parlor's recently acquired home next winter. The timber was donated by Harvey Jameson of Shenandoah Valley, who was also on the wood-gathering job with President Chester Johnson, First Vice-president D. A. Upton, Secretary T. D. Davis, S. K. Davis of Sacramento, an oldtimer, and several others. Another economy day is scheduled for the near-future, for there is plenty of timber to be converted into stovewood.

Nineteen Initiated.

Colusa—Colusa No. 69 initiated a class of nineteen candidates—the largest since its institution in 1903. Grand President Seth Millington, a member of the Parlor, was the honored guest, and spoke on the historical significance of the Order. Other speakers were District Deputy Elton Fitch, Charter Members J. J. O'Rourke, President R. A. Gray, and Warren G. Davison and Everett Bowes of the initiates.

A vote of thanks was given Erwin Burtis, who signed up most of the candidates. Following the ceremonies a chicken pie supper was enjoyed. Arrangements for the successful evening were made by a committee composed of Bill Yopp (chairman), Julius Ferriauolo, Adair Wilson and Glenn Muttersbach.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 January 1, 1933, as follows, together with their membership figures April 20, 1933:

Arranging for Big Celebration.

Santa Rosa—Santa Rosa No. 28 is busy working out plans for the Admission Day, September 9, celebration which, it is expected, will be awarded by the Grass Valley Grand Parlor to the City of Roses. An enthusiastic meeting of the general committee, of which Wesley Colgan is chairman, was held April 14. Every Sonoma County Parlor was represented. The line of march was presented by Dr. W. C. Shipley chairman of the parade committee, and approved. Several San Francisco and Alameda County Parlors have already arranged for headquarters.

Several members of the Parlor attended the reception to Grand President Seth Millington in San Francisco April 28. Santa Rosa's newly organized drum corps, Art Janssen chairman will make its first public appearance in a parade here May 17, and it will also appear in the Rose Carnival parade May 20.

Twenty-two Initiated.

Merced—Yosemite No. 24 added twenty-two names to its muster roll March 27, the class being rounded up by Deputy Grand President Al Lobree. A. E. Daneri headed the initiatory team. Modesto No. 11 and Los Banos No. 206 were represented by large delegations headed respectively, by President Charles Blaine and First Vice-president M. Ambrosio.

Addresses were delivered by Grand Second Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, District Deputy L. E. Bither, and President J. J. Thornton of Yosemite. J. C. Cocanour was in charge of the banquet and entertainment which followed the initiatory ceremonies.

ENTERTAINMENT PRODUCES GOOD RESULTS

Santa Barbara—Santa Barbara No. 116 during the past few months has been most active in presenting various types of social entertainment for the dual purpose of increasing its numerical strength and attracting members to the regular meetings. The plan has been most successful, the membership having been increased more than twenty five, with many applications on file, and the attendance at the meetings has increased nearly one hundred percent. "This is interesting news for all Parlors," says District Deputy A. C. Dinsmore, "when one takes into consideration that the past year has been a very hard one for most of us."

The accompanying illustration pictures but one—the Saint Patrick's banquet—of the many very fine affairs put on by Frank Castro and his good of the order committee. First Vice-president James E. Sloan was the master of ceremonies, and was assisted by Percy Johnston. The music was furnished by No. 116's Native Sons boys band, and the decorations were handled by Frank Calderon, A. C. Dinsmore and C. Wesley McCormick. The upper picture shows members of the Parlor at the festive board; the center, the committee that handled the successful affair, and the lower, the band. Santa Barbara has moved to new quarters, in Pythian Castle, one of the city's finest halls.

entertainment by the dancing class of Mrs. Ruth McKenzie. After the program a feast was given the Native Son baseball team and friends. Initiation will be held May 1. The Parlor wants the Fifty-seventh (1934) Grand Parlor held in Ukiah, and a letter signed by President W. B. Davis and Secretary Ben Hofman says: "The Ukiah Chamber of Commerce and all civic and municipal bodies are prepared to give us full co-operation to make 1934 an outstanding Grand Parlor session."

Historical Review.

San Jose—The Santa Clara County Pioneer Association had a historical review of Spanish California April 18. President Rosalie Younger Andrews extended a welcome, and Grand Trustee John M. Burnett was master of ceremonies. The speaker of the evening was Past Grand Lewis F. Byington, whose subject was "Important Periods in the History of California." Other speakers were Judge William F. James and Clara Gairaud, Grand Organist N.D.G.W. A one-act play by Lutheria Cunningham, "Rosa de Castilla," brought back remembrances of old Spain in 1776, and "the new home in California" ten years later.

SUBORDINATE PARLORS DOINGS.

Lincoln—Silver Star No. 63 was host April 19 to Fred H. Greely Past Presidents Assembly. Sacramento County past presidents were special guests. Plans for the open-air initiation to be held in June at Weaverville, Trinity County, were advanced.

Watsonville—Watsonville No. 65 was visited April 11 by Grand Trustee John M. Burnett and Past Grand Thomas Monahan, and the members heard interesting discussions by both on affairs of the Order.

Santa Cruz—Grand Trustee John M. Burnett officially visited Santa Cruz No. 90 March 31 and in the course of an address recalled the early history of California. Among the other speakers were Past Grand Thomas Monahan. A number of visitors were present from Watsonville No. 65. Refreshments were served.

Downieville—Downieville No. 92 is sponsoring a dance May 6 to raise funds with which to entertain the Grass Valley Grand Parlor caravan that will pay a visit May 15 to Sierra County and lunch at Downieville.

Santa Clara—George Peter Fallon, a member of Santa Clara No. 100 and head of this city's police department, has completed twenty-two years of fearless devotion to duty with the forces of law and order. Public opinion has placed its approval on his record by retaining him in office.—C.C.

Deputy Grand President Al Lobree, who is engaged in field work for the Grand Parlor, advises The Grizzly Bear that he will institute a parlor at Turlock, Stanislaus County, May 5. He attended a special meeting of Bakersfield No. 42 April 17; the Parlor has a list of 3,500 eligibles, he says, and he expects to have a class for initiation there late in May or in June. April 18, Lobree paid a visit to Visalia No. 19, and the next day was back in Turlock.

"If we work upon marble, it will perish; if we work upon brass, time will efface it; if we rear temples, they will crumble to the dust. But if we work on men's immortal minds, if we imbue them with high principles, with the just fear of God and love of their fellowmen, we engrave on those tablets something which not time can efface and which will brighten to all eternity."—Webster.

Air Base Commissioned—The $5,000,000 air base at Sunnyvale, Santa Clara County, was officially commissioned a part of the United States Navy, April 12.

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE PICNIC SEASON WAS IN FULL swing in California during May 1883, and fraternal and social organizations as well as churches in practically every city and town of the state were daily providing outings for their members in the woods, gorgeous with flowers of myriad hues. The May Day picnic at Woodward's Gardens, San Francisco, attracted 20,000 children and 5,000 parents; a feature was the maypole dance, in which 200 girls participated.

May had ten rainy days. The month's precipitation was 2.85 inches, bringing the season's total rainfall to 17.90 inches. This was sufficient to assure a prosperous year for miners and farmers.

There was a migration May 19 of Mexican families into Cantua Canyon, in the Coast Range about fifty miles west of Firebaugh Ferry, on the San Joaquin River. A Mexican from Sonora, Mexico, came to the San Joaquin Valley and spread the information that at Joaquin Murietta's old retreat in the Coast Range was a mineral spring, the waters of which had a cure for all bodily ailments, and the superstitious Mexicans believed him.

I. N. Hoag of Yolo County was sent by the Central Pacific Railway to Chicago to encourage immigration from Eastern states to California. He was to deliver lectures and to circulate literature extolling the state's climate and resources. Subsequently, immigration bureaus were also established in London, Berlin and Bordeaux, to induce Europeans to come to California.

Memorial Day, May 30, was given statewide observance under the auspices of various posts of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The California Sportsmen Association had a state convention at Gilroy, Santa Clara County. Twenty-six clubs were represented by 228 delegates. A resolution favoring protection for mallard ducks was given unanimous approval.

Another fifty-mile riding contest was staged at Los Angeles May 15 between Charles Anderson and Carl DePugh. The latter won, in one hour and fifty minutes, the fastest time yet made.

May 1, San Francisco's city and county government went temporarily broke. The April salaries of the police force could not be paid, and members of the fire department had to take half-pay. The gas was shut off from the city's street lights, much to the delight of night prowlers.

Citizens of Sacramento were greatly agitated over a bonded indebtedness of the city amounting to $2,608,000 falling due in 1884. The commissioners had been trying to buy it up at thirty-five cents on the dollar.

Two-thirds of the voters of San Bernardino County presented to the Board of Supervisors a petition asking that saloon licenses be increased to $25 a month, and thereby close ninety percent of the saloons operating in the county.

In Merced County, the Board of Supervisors fixed the saloon license at $45 a month.

The Society of California Pioneers, in Stockton, advanced the claim that Curtis H. Lindley was the first White boy born in Yuba County, and James H. Tam the first in San Joaquin County.

In Colusa County lived a Chinese lawyer who was retained by the Mongolians there to take care of their legal needs.

The salmon run up the Sacramento River was at its maximum. More than 200 boats, manned by over 600 fishermen, were seining in Carquinez Straits, and the canneries were working to capacity.

A Tuolumne County rancher was said to be having a steady income from a skunk ranch. Chinamen were his principal customers.

The new state prison at Folsom, Sacramento County, was being inclosed with a stone wall four feet thick and twenty feet high. Two hundred and ninety-eight prisoners were confined there.

A cable 18,000 feet long and weighing thirty tons was produced in a San Francisco factory for the street railway system of that city.

The 1001 mine in Sierra County was washing gravel that paid an average of three dollars in gold dust to the pan.

A gold nugget weighing ten ounces was picked up on a street in Shasta Town.

Fire May 15 destroyed a block of Maxwell, Colusa County, structures, causing a $15,000 loss.

A portion of the business section of Guerneville, Sonoma County, burned May 23.

The court house, at the corner of Commercial and Main streets, Los Angeles, was partially destroyed by fire May 24. The loss was $7,000.

Four business houses of Suisun, Solano County, burned May 25, with a $25,000 loss.

Samuel R. Throckmorton, Pioneer of '49 and one of the state's largest landowners, died May 28 at the age of 74. He owned a domain in Marin County.

At Los Angeles City, May 19, Charles McAffrey stole a horse, which he sold for two dollars. He got drunk, was arrested, pleaded guilty, was sentenced to two years in San Quentin, and was taken to the prison—all in one day.

The boiler of the ferry steamer "Pilot," enroute from Petaluma, Sonoma County, to San Francisco, exploded May 25 opposite Donahue. Mrs. G. McNear was thrown a thousand feet and killed, as were also the four sons of W. F. Mather, aged from 18 years to 6 months, who were seated on the deck over the boiler. The parents of the children, elsewhere on the boat, were not hurt. Five other people were killed, and several badly injured.

Rains undermined the path up Telegraph Hill, San Francisco, which James Rigney had followed since he established his domicile atop the eminence in 1853. May 14 he fell from the path down a bluff and was killed.

Charles Avat, painting the spire of a San Leandro, Alameda County, church May 8, fell seventy-five feet to his death.

Leon Slusser, well-known Sonoma County citizen, committeed suicide May 12. His wife, being advised of his act, dropped dead.

Charles Hensch, in San Francisco May 13, attempted to prevent his wife being struck by a Baker-street cable car. He rescued her, but was himself killed.

Incensed at a jocose remark made by Robert Elwell, a lookeron at a card game in a Hicksville saloon May 14, the proprietor, McPorter, hit him with a wooden maul and killed him.

Charles Fisher was caught in the flywheel of a San Francisco factory May 31 and whirled to his death.

GRASS VALLEY, THE STIRRING MOUNtain town of the '50s where romance, life, wealth and color blended to make its name ring down through the passing years, will feel again the pulse of dead and forgotten days when the Native Sons there assemble the middle of May. Their presence will call from the past the spirits of those who lived there awhile when California was young and then passed on, leaving behind them a heritage of history seldom equaled.

It had been suggested that people whose lives once brightened the Grass Valley of old, be touched upon in this article. It is not possible to go to lengthy discussions of a few whose lives were entwined in the past of a town which still lives progressively, but around whose existence the halo of former greatness still shines bright.

Grass Valley of old knew two women who walked the gilded path of fame to its end. A part of their lives were there lived and, having lived there, will always be associated with that pioneer town. Both of these women were children of the public. One, Lola Montez, a toast of the courts of Europe and particularly of a rather loose king, Louis the First of Bavaria. The other, a simple child whose animation, loveliness and talent established her the toast and joy of rough men, miners, small merchants and others made rough by a rough age in rough communities. The child was Lotta Crabtree, whose twinkling toes, gay voice, pretty face and enthralling personal charm made her the idol of her era and around whose name all the romance and glory of departed days still linger.

In this pioneer town is still pointed out the home once occupied by Lola Montez, and adown the street a short way is the dwelling where Lotta, as a child of six, lived. Lola Montez, born Maria Dolores Gilbert in the county of Limerick, Ireland, on July 3, 1818, was of Irish and Spanish ancestry. Raised in India, the imprint of that country of mysticism and loose morals soon left their imprint on a girl made susceptible by blood and temperament, with a grace of carriage and a beautiful face. It is no wonder that this child of destiny walked the path she trod. It is unbelievable that she could have done otherwise.

Her mother, scenting the possibility of the daughter straying from the normal path, became an ardent matchmaker and soon arranged a match with her 18-year-old daughter and an estimable Englishman, but of the age of 60. This wedding of May and December did not appeal to the impetuous Lola, and her answer was to elope with a young officer, Thomas James, of the Bengal Guards. The hasty marriage soon brought unhappiness to both parties, and Lola was divorced. The reason for the separation was her relations with not one man, but many. Thus we see that, at an early age, she started to tread the primrose path.

Rapidly she flitted from place to place, ensnaring this man and that. Enjoying her existence and setting her cap for bigger and bigger fish in the sea of men, she decides that Louis the First, king of Bavaria, should fall before her wiles and the conquest is not difficult. An enraged country tears her from the side of her king consort and she leaves the country. Then follow more affairs, marriages and still more affairs until the New World beckons and she arrives in New York in 1851. She moves southward to New Orleans and hears the call of the glamorous West, just the place to suit her bubbling nature.

In 1853 she arrived in San Francisco, and after a brief courtship married a newspaperman by the name of Patrick Hull. At the Mission Dolores this strange, exotic woman again plighted her troth at the altar of that sacred edifice. A brief honeymoon to Sacramento by river steamer, and the newlyweds appear in Grass Valley. Biographers are not in accord with how long they lived together as man and wife at Grass Valley, but it is safe to assume that most of her life was spent there without her husband.

Into the roughness and gaiety of this newborn mining town she plunged with all her lightheartedness and exuberance, and soon became its best-known female resident. She built a pretentious home, called it a "castle" and carried out the effect by placing a cupola on an ornamental roof. Little of the original house remains today, but the location is unchanged, and that is something dear to the heart of him who follows the trail of history. Her former career did not seem to be a social detriment. Gay parties, gay men and women there assembled, and hearts that were light reveled in the glow of bright lamps, and romance held its sway although, perchance, sordidness may have crept in now and then. She publicly horsewhipped an editor who had written disparagingly of her; at least Lola thought he had, and her point of view was sufficient to justify such punishment.

As she stepped along the gay pathway of her then happy, if not moderate, life, into her existence came a child who was destined to sing and dance her way into the hearts of the surging mobs of rugged California. Lotta Crabtree's career can scarcely be more than touched. Born in New York of an improvident father and a capable and talented mother, Lotta, with her parents, soon joined the gold rush to California. The family arrived in California, and Crabtree found it just as difficult to make headway here as he had in New York. Mining was too arduous for him, and he seemed to possess talents for no other pursuit or calling. However, as many profligate men, he seemed to be able to give birth to ideas which would put other people to work. He conceived the idea that Grass Valley needed a private boarding house. He wrote to his wife to come to Grass Valley, that a great

PRACTICE RECIPROCITY BY ALWAYS PATRONIZING GRIZZLY BEAR ADVERTISERS

CALIFORNIA'S ROMANTIC HISTORY

ADMISSION TO THE SISTERHOOD OF STATES

Lewis F. Byington
(PAST GRAND PRESIDENT N.S.G.W.)

(Continuing the series of California history talks commenced in The Grizzly Bear for December 1932.)

AT THE JUNCTION OF MARKET AND Mason streets, in the City of San Francisco, stands an artistic monument, presented to the city by former Mayor James D. Phelan, and commemorating the admission of California into the Union. On the base of that monument is carved the prophetic sentence: "The unity of our Empire hangs on the decision of this day." This prophecy was uttered on the floor of the United States Senate in the year 1850, during the debate preceding the admission of California, and by that farseeing American statesman, Senator William H. Seward, afterwards Secretary of State in the cabinet of President Abraham Lincoln.

Well did Seward glimpse the future of the Nation. Without territorial childhood, California was knocking at the doors of Congress with a constitution in her hand which provided that she should enter as a free and not as a slave state. This would turn the balance of power in the Senate, there having been, theretofore, an equal number of free and slave states. When the war eventually came, which was to determine whether the Union of States should be forever preserved or the ties severed which bound the South to the North, it was the stream of gold from the mines of California, in the days when gold was so much needed, that, more than any other one thing, maintained the credit and preserved the life of the Nation.

The news of the discovery of gold at Coloma, on the American River, January 24, 1848, had spread to all quarters of the globe. Into the harbor of San Francisco had come vessels from every known sea of the world, bearing adventurous spirits bound for the gold fields. Across the prairies, over deserts and mountains, facing innumerable dangers and privations, pressed the long emigrant trains made up of the young, the strong and the daring of every land. There will never be such another march in the history of civilization, or in the progress of the world, as that of these American Pioneers. From the rock-bound coast of the Atlantic, the great valleys of the Ohio and Mississippi, the farms and prairies on the then frontier, and from other lands, ever westward they marched—through forest, over river, across desert and mountain—to the gold mines of California. In less than ten years after the discovery, it is estimated that over $500,000,000 in gold was taken from our mountains.

The early "Argonauts" were not mere adventurers, for among the Pioneers of California were many men of education, of broad vision and constructive minds, and of dauntless spirit; men trained in the ways of a republican form of government, and qualified to organize a free state. And so we find that within two years after the discovery of gold, they met at Monterey, adopted a constitution for the government of a new state, and elected two United States Senators, who at once proceeded to Washington and demanded that California be admitted into the Union. And so, without any probationary period of territorial childhood, on September 9, 1850, she was admitted as a sovereign state. In this respect California was unique among the states of the Union. It is no wonder that the people of this favored land, with her romantic and colorful history, proud of their golden heritage of mountain, valley and stream, should unite in patriotic and joyful celebration on the occasion of September 9, the anniversary of her admission into the Sisterhood of American States.

We have heretofore traced many important events in the colorful history of California leading up to her admission: we have recalled the days of the adventurous navigators, who were the first White men to reach these shores, starting with Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo in 1542, and followed by Sir Francis Drake in 1579, and Sebastian Viscaino in 1603. Then came the immortal pathfinders led by the intrepid and saintly Junipero Serra, his soul filled with unquenchable zeal for the conversion of the Indians, and who, with his followers, established the twenty-one mission of California; beginning with San Diego, in 1769, and ending with Sonoma, in 1823. Again we see Captain Anza, the valiant soldier, sent by orders from Spain to found a permanent settlement on San Francisco Bay, standing at the entrance of the great harbor with the cross uplifted and the standard of Spain unfurled, proclaiming that this was the port of ports and that here should be built the city of St. Francis. There also rises before us the vision of Lieutenant Juan Ayala, of the Spanish navy, on the deck of the "San Carlos," sailing through the uncharted Golden Gate on the evening of August 5, 1775, the first navigator to cast anchor in the San Francisco Bay. Again we see Governor Felipe de Neve leading the way from Mission San Gabriel to found the pueblo of Los Angeles, September 4, 1781.

We have reviewed the romantic period from 1769 to 1822 when Spain ruled California, defined her boundaries and gave the beautiful Spanish names to her counties, rivers and bays. Then followed the period when the American trapper and explorer pressed westward from the valleys of the Ohio and Mississippi. Jedediah Smith, the first American to cross the continent, in 1826; Kit Carson, the famous scout; Colonel John C. Fremont, General John A. Sutter, John Bidwell and hundreds of others who reached here prior to 1846. This was followed by the raising of the Bear Flag at Sonoma June 14, 1846, by a party of Americans who had heard that General Castro, representing the Mexican government, contemplated driving the American settlers from California; but the Americans would not be driven out and, then and there, designed and raised a new flag and declared California to be a republic.

The following month, Commodore John Drake Sloat, in command of the U.S.S. "Savannah" in the Pacific, heard that war had been declared between the United States and Mexico, and having orders from Washington to capture the California ports, in the event of war, landed American marines at Monterey, the Mexican capital, July 7, 1846, and raised the "Stars and Stripes" over the Custom House. California from that time was a part of the United States. The treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, ceding California to this country, was concluded February 2, 1848, only nine days after the discovery of gold by Marshall, January 24, and fortunately before news of that discovery had reached the city of Mexico, otherwise the treaty might not have been signed by Mexico. Then came the colorful days of old, the days of gold, the days of '49, when within a few months, from every state of the then American Union, from the countries of Europe, and the Orient and other far-distant lands, had been brought here a population of nearly one hundred thousand to take the place of the few small, scattered communities in the state. All of these events led up to the admission of California into the Union, and were the inspiration for the organization of this American commonwealth.

After the raising of the American Flag by Commodore Sloat at Monterey, military governors were appointed from Washington to control the governmental affairs of California, from the raising of the flag until the establishment of a permanent state government in 1849. These military governors were John Drake Sloat, Robert F. Stockton, John C. Fremont, Stephen W. Kearny, Richard B. Mason, Persifor F. Smith and Bennet Riley.

The people who came here, with the American idea of self government in their hearts, and with ability and courage which challenged the wonder and admiration of the world, determined to create and organize an American state on the shores of the Pacific. The first official act looking to the establishment of a state government was the issuance of a proclamation by Brigadier-General Bennet Riley, the then military governor of the territory, on June 30, 1849, recommending the formation of a state constitution. The election was held August 1, 1849, and the convention met in Colton Hall, in the town of Monterey, September 1, with forty-eight delegates present. It was composed, in most part, of young men in the full vigor of life, many of whom were men of talent, and also of education and refinement.

Bayard Taylor, the writer, who was present during the sessions of this constitutional convention, declared that it was composed of many men of ability who were well versed in the history of representative government, and was a gathering which would have reflected credit upon any of the older states. There were six natives of California in the convention, and men from New York, Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Ohio. Among the native California delegates were General Vallejo, Pablo de la Guerra and Jose Carillo. Among the Americans present, who afterwards became well known, were General Henry W. Halleck; William M. Gwin and John McDougal, later United States Senators; Rodman M. Price, afterwards Governor of New Jersey; Thomas O. Larkin, United States Consul; Edward Gilbert, editor of the "Alta California;" Robert Semple, General John A. Sutter and Francis Lippett.

The convention selected Robert Semple president, and William G. Marcy secretary. It completed its labors October 12, 1849. During the signing of the instrument by the members, General Sutter was called to the chair. When the last signature was attached the event was celebrated by a salute of thirty-one shots from a cannon near by, California being the thirty-first state to enter the Union. As the last shot was heard, old General Sutter leaped to his feet with tears rolling down his cheeks and, waving his arm as though he held a sword, cried out, "That's for California. Thank God, California has come into the Union!" Colton Hall was cleared for a grand ball, which was a great success, and attended by General Riley, military governor, the officers of the Presidios and the well-known people of Monterey and the State.

The constitution was ratified by vote of the people November 13, 1849, and at the same election the officers for the new state were selected, Peter H. Burnett being chosen the first governor of California. Governor Riley issued a proclamation declaring the constitution ratified. A great people had been brought together from every quarter of the globe, with but one idea at first, that of enriching themselves as quickly as possible and then returning to the lands whence they came; but having once seen California, they determined to remain here and, within a year after arriving, drafted a constitution and founded a great American commonwealth, an unprecedented thing in the history of the Nation.

The first State Legislature met at San Jose, December 15, 1849, and at once elected two United States Senators, John C. Fremont and William M. Gwin, who received their credentials and proceeded to Washington and knocked at the door of Congress, demanding admission for California without territorial childhood. They were not seated, however, until the following September 10. Many at first opposed the admission, as it would disturb the balance between free and slave states, and even the great Daniel Webster argued that the lands of the West were barren and unproductive, and the greater portion of the territory a desert and not adapted for statehood.

Congress, however, eventually passed the act admitting California, and on September 9, 1850, the President, Millard Fillmore, signed the act and it became effective as of that date. There was in those days no transcontinental telegraph line, and San Francisco did not receive the news until October 18, 1850, when the mail steamer "Oregon" came in through the Golden Gate gaily bedecked with bunting and bearing a streaming pennant flying from the mast with the words "California Is a State!" The news was received with the wildest excitement and rejoicing. Business was suspended. Ships were decorated. Fires were lit on the summits of the hills, cheering people filled the streets, cannon roared, and the happy citizens met in cafes and at bars to toast in sparkling beakers of champagne the new State of their adoption and love. On October 29, the official celebration was held, when there was a great parade through the street, patriotic songs, the music of bands and orations in the Plaza. In the evening there was a grand ball, fireworks and the discharge of cannon. California has, all down through the years, continued to celebrate her birthday, September 9.

California, at the end of eighty-two years of statehood, celebrates a development unrivaled in the history of the world. No other land has such scenic grandeur, such matchless mountains, lakes and streams, such diversified resources and industries. The products of her mines, her fields and her orchards have added billions of dollars to the wealth of the Nation. The value of the gold alone that has come from her river beds and mountains is $1,852,000,000. The broad-armed bay of San Francisco welcomes the commerce of the world, and from this bay

DESPITE THE SERIOUS FINANCIAL depression which has brought difficulties not only to industry but to educational institutions as well, the University of Southern California has been able to maintain a high level of work and activities during the current academic year. The student enrollment has held up remarkably well, some departments being even more largely attended than ever before. Nevertheless, it has been necessary to curtail expenses and to proceed as economically as possible.

An unusually large number of students have this year applied for some form of financial assistance, and the University has responded with a generous spirit, thus making it possible for many to continue their studies who otherwise would have felt compelled to leave college. It is this spirit of service, this human touch, that distinguishes the University of Southern California and is so greatly appreciated.

During the year there have been some notable developments, which may be mentioned: The Department of Journalism has been organized into a School of Journalism, headed by Director Roy French. This school is now planning to add a graduate department, which is expected to offer facilities for the regular master of arts degree within the next year or two.

The University has also announced the Junior College program, which will be opened next September under the direction of Dr. Frank C. Touton, vice-president of the University. The program, which will be entirely separate from the regular divisions of the University, will comprise a two-year curriculum of letters, arts and sciences courses selected with special reference to training for general culture and American citizenship.

Curricula of the new University Junior College are provided especially for the following classes of students, all graduates of accredited secondary schools: (1) Those who have a limited time to give to college training. (2) Those who need and wish more than the usual amount of work and guidance in the pursuit of the work of the first two years of the college curriculum. (3) Those who do not meet satisfactorily the requirements of the college divisions of the University. (4) Those who transfer from other collegiate institutions but do not meet the requirements of the college or the university to which they apply.

Southern California is the second university in the United States to establish a Junior College, the University of Minnesota having founded a division last fall. Commenting on the new University Junior College, Dr. Touton issued the following statement: "In establishing the University Junior College as a minor division of the University of Southern California, the administration of the University is continuing and extending the program of instruction and research which was initiated two years ago as an experimental entrance procedure. Through the University Junior College, it is the plan of the University to offer on the University campus a two-year opportunity of study to that considerable group of secondary school graduates who fail to meet fully the stated entrance requirements of the other college divisions of the University.

"Students admitted in the University Junior College will in each case present from their preparatory schools academic and personnel records which indicate scholarly interests and achievements in several courses and fields of effort. Students admitted to the University Junior College will be given opportunity under well planned guidance to develop and demonstrate those traits of character and habits of study which are necessary to college success. The curriculum guarantees basic training for culture and citizenship while the groups of electives offer opportunities for the selection of courses in several fields of student interests."

LONG BEACH TO CELEBRATE.

Long Beach will stage a rehabilitation celebration—"Neptune's Electrical Extravaganza"—Saturday, May 6. As a climax to the day's festivities an illuminated maritime spectacle will be staged in the Long Beach Marine Stadium. The entire day will be given over to demonstrating how Long Beach plans to carry on and put the recent earthquake on the ancient-history list.

The celebration has the endorsement of the Los Angeles and the Long Beach Chambers of Commerce. The Long Beach committee in charge includes Charles H. Tucker (general chairman), Charles S. Henderson (finance chairman), A. A. Miller, Karl Gibbs, Harry Buffum, Graydon Hoffman, Frank H. Church, W. F. Prisk, Lloyd C. Leedom, C. E. Demarest, Jonah Jones Jr., Richard H. Loynes, Paul Peek, Walter Scott and Jack Horner.

LARGE CROWD AT BENEFIT.

The homeless children benefit ball, given April 22 by the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Homeless Children Committee of Los Angeles and Orange Counties, drew a large crowd to the Breakfast Club and was a complete social success. Mrs. Hazel B. Hanseu, Grand Outside Sentinel N.D.G.W., general chairman, was assisted by a large committee who for weeks worked faithfully in preparation for the affair. During the evening several entertainment features were presented under the guidance of Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish.

ATTEND, ALL YE N.S., THE N.D. BAZAR.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. has adopted a homeless child, little Diann. Dolores Malin of the history and landmarks committee states that a rose arbor in memory of the Pioneer Mothers is to be built in Griffith Park by the Parlor. The sewing circle met at the home of Mildred Ripling, who served delicious refreshments; Esther Rinne could not attend, but she sent a bundle of lovely little garments, made by her. The April card party under the chairmanship of Ella Steinbeck was a social and financial success. The Parlor's veteran welfare committee took twelve Easter baskets to shutins at the Sawtelle National Soldiers Home.

April 19, President Louise Ward Watkins of the Friday Morning Club gave a talk on "The Founders of the Missions." Prior to the Parlor meeting a potluck dinner was enjoyed. Past

FIFTY-SIXTH N.S.G.W. GRAND PARLOR

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE FIFTY-SIXTH GRAND PARLOR OF the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West will convene at Grass Valley, Nevada County, Monday, May 15, at 10:30 a.m. Sessions will be held in the Veterans Memorial Building, South Auburn street, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. Grand President Seth Millington (Colusa Parlor No. 69) of Gridley, Butte County, will preside throughout the deliberations, and at their close will automatically become the Junior Past Grand President.

This will be the fourth Grand Parlor meeting in Nevada County, the Tenth (1887) and the Twenty-first (1898) sessions having been held at Nevada City, and the Forty-first (1918) at Truckee. Past Grand President Dr. Charles W. Decker, lately deceased, presided in 1887, Past Grand President George D. Clark in 1898, and Past Grand President Jo V. Snyder, now among the honored dead, in 1918.

The reports of the grand officers and the Grand Parlor committees at the Grass Valley session will deal with the Order's activities during 1932. Some most important legislation proposals will, it is believed, be submitted, and there will undoubtedly be the usual flood of resolutions.

The report of Grand Secretary John T. Regan will deal with the condition of the Subordinate Parlors as of December 31, 1932. Those of 450 or more members, with their assets-figures include:

VETERANS MEMORIAL BUILDING, GRASS VALLEY, where the Grand Parlor will meet, and all other activities, including social, will be centered.

During 1932, the Board of Grand Officers, headed by Grand President Millington, dedicated and laid the cornerstones of many public buildings in various sections of the state. At all these events, the ceremonies were very largely attended, indicating the general public's interest in that phase of the Order's many worthwhile endeavors. During the year, also, the Subordinate Parlors made numerous presentations of United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags.

CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE.

If there be any fact-foundation for the numerous rumors that are floating about, there will be several surprise candidates for Grand Parlor offices presented at the Grass Valley session. The Grizzly Bear has been on the trail of the "darkhorses;" some have repudiated the rumors, while others, if they responded at all to the query, gave evasive answers. So, there may be, at nomination-hour, some proverbial "darkhued" boys bob up in the office-woodpile. Be that as it may, the following list of candidates is compiled from authentic information received direct by The Grizzly Bear from authoritative sources:

GRAND PARLOR PROGRAM

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

QUARTZ PARLOR NO. 58 OF GRASS Valley has completed arrangements for the entertainment of the Fifty-sixth N.S.G.W. Grand Parlor which meets in the little Nevada County city May 15. And what a program! There will not be an idle moment. All of the affairs will be held in the Veterans Memorial Building, South Auburn street. There has been some concern expressed in various quarters about accommodations, but The Grizzly Bear assures that there need be no worry on that score. Grass Valley can accommodate all who choose to visit there during the Grand Parlor and, what is more, Quartz Parlor extends an unlimited invitation.

The festivities begin Sunday, May 14, when a reception committee from the "twin" cities Parlors—Quartz of Grass Valley and Hydraulic of Nevada City—will welcome the arrivals. A special train will arrive from San Francisco some time that evening. The registration headquarters will open that day, too. For those who get to Grass Valley in time, a trip through the gold mines is on this day's program. In the evening there will be an informal reception.

Monday evening will be given over to a formal reception. An outstanding feature will be the Gold Miners Glee Club. The program includes: Orchestra selection, Grass Valley high school orchestra; addresses of welcome, Mayor M. J. Brock for Grass Valley, and Superior Judge Raglan Tuttle for Nevada County; response, Grand President Seth Millington; selection, Miners Glee Club of forty voices; vocal solo, Mrs. Jack Wolff; selection, Grass Valley high school orchestra; vocal solo, Mrs. Gove Celio; selection, Miners Glee Club.

Tuesday evening has been set aside for the grand ball. It will be informal, and visitors will enjoy themselves at a "shindig" such as they have never before attended.

Wednesday will be devoted to an all-day tour of the Yuba River Canyon country, to Downieville and Sierra City, in Sierra County. At the former place, Downieville Parlor No. 92 N.S.G.W. will be host at a lunch in the public square. Some idea of the glories of this trip through God's country may be had from the accompanying brief outline.

Wednesday evening will be the Grand Parlor banquet, and it will be different than the general run. There will be a few talks, and a fine program of musical numbers.

For Thursday night, Quartz Parlor will present some surprise entertainment features for the pleasure of those not in too big a rush to get homeward bound.

All the affairs above mentioned, except the banquet, are open and free to all visitors, male and female. Members of the Grand Parlor will be Quartz Parlor's guests at the banquet; all other Native Sons may purchase tickets.

Special entertainment features for the womenfolks have been arranged by Manzanita Parlor No. 29 N.D.G.W. of Grass Valley and Laurel Parlor No. 6 N.D.G.W. of Nevada City. They include: Monday afternoon, reception at the Empire Country Club; Tuesday afternoon, drive and picnic in the mountains; Wednesday evening, bridge party at the Elks Club, Main and School streets.

For some weeks, Quartz Parlor has had a large committee busily engaged in arranging the details for the Grand Parlor, and it has had splendid co-operation from the neighbor Parlor, Hydraulic. The general committee of Quartz includes: Loyle Freeman (chairman), John R. Thomas, Fred Coombs, Allen Joyner, Frank J. Rowe, Ralph Vincent, Frank L. Hooper, James Oliver. Subcommittees are composed as follows:

Finance—William Sampson (chairman), Alvon Jones, Earl Bonham, Frank J. Rowe.

THE TOUR OF GOD'S COUNTRY

THE TRIP THAT HAS BEEN PLANNED by Quartz Parlor No. 58 N.S.G.W. for the outing day for the delegates to the Grass Valley Grand Parlor is through a most interesting mining region of California's early-day history, the Yuba River country in Nevada and Sierra Counties. Leaving Grass Valley the morning of May 17, we will follow the Yuba Pass state highway through Nevada City. The South Fork of the Yuba River is the first of the Yubas to cross. It was on this stream that the first hydro-electric power plant in California was operated. It was the old Rome power house, which is situated a few miles above the highway crossing.

About seven miles further we come to the town of North San Juan, situated on the San Juan Ridge, where extensive early-day hydraulic mining was in full blast when the debris law closed down all of the hydraulic mines of the Yubas. San Juan was then a thriving town of some five thousand inhabitants. It is now a small hamlet, a ghost of the former thriving town. The old brick buildings are still standing as relics of the past.

Just after leaving North San Juan, the caravan will enter the Tahoe National Forest and then cross the Middle Yuba River. Here you will note the itinerant "snipers" along the river with their rockers, "long toms" and sluice boxes, trying to make an honest living by mining for gold along the river bars.

This stream and many of the creeks and gulches from here to Sierra City are lined with several thousand of these miners. They come from the crowded cities and towns to get away from paying rent, water, light and fuel bills, and to earn an average of twenty cents a day from these streams where Nature has deposited, in the bedrock crevices and in the gravel, the golden nuggets. They are honest workers, and sometimes one will see father, mother and the children working in the "diggings" to make an honest living during these hard times. Leaving the river you wind up Oregon Creek. The towns of Alleghany and Forest lie at the head of this stream, both old mining towns. But your road does not pass through them.

At the top of the grade lies the town of Camptonville where, many years ago, the Pelton waterwheel was invented. This is another old placer "diggings" town. It will pay you, on your return from Downieville, to take the road into this town and meet Bill Meek, an old Native Son who can tell you more of the romance of the golden days than any man in California. He was driving stages and packtrains to the mining towns of this region long before most of us were born. The town is only a few minutes' drive from the highway, and you will find Bill at the Meek mercantile store. You will also see the monument that honors Pelton, the inventor of the waterwheel, which was dedicated a few years ago by the Masonic Order. It was at Galena Hill, a few miles from Camptonville, just off the highway, that Past Grand President Fred H. Greely was born. You can see the "diggings," across Willow Creek as you go up the highway after passing Camptonville, where Fred's father mined in the early '50s.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

MANY THINGS OF OUTSTANDING IMportance to every citizen of the United States are daily happening in the National Capital. President Franklin Roosevelt is "on the job," and is not permitting the Federal Congress to loaf. In a few quarters, his proposals, particularly those relating to finances, are condemned, but there is no doubt that the masses have every confidence in his ability to solve the nation's distressing problems, for the benefit of the majority. The President cannot work miracles and, being human, he probably will make mistakes. If he does, however, he will readily acknowledge them, and change the course. He is endeavoring to lead this nation back to normalcy, and the people must aid him by forgetting self and follow, cheerfully, willingly and unitedly, his leadership.

At Sacramento, the State Legislature continues the budget-balancing show. Little, however, has been accomplished, due to the activities of the lobbies. Every one agrees that government cost must come down, but no one wants the pruning directed his way. Numerous wasteful extravagances that could, and unhesitatingly should, be eliminated have been pointed out, but "stalling" is the general policy. There must be drastic reductions, all down the line, and the sooner the legislators recognize that fact and act accordingly, the better for them and the state. If they fail, for any reason, to do extensive pruning without fear or favor, the indications are the taxpayers will seize the shears and perform the task.

The plan now is, for the Legislature to recess until July, and in the interim submit to the voters, probably in June, several measures dealing with revenue and taxation. Among them will be more bond proposals, to which the electorate should give most careful attention, for we are already bond-burdened to a near-confiscatory degree. A measure should, but probably will not, be on the ballot to repeal all enactments exempting churches and other private interests from taxation. That would ease the tax burden on the small-home owner, the backbone of the state and the nation, and would go a long way toward balancing the state government budget.

Some of the legislation passed by the Legislature and already in force, such as the mortgage moratorium and the reduction of the interest rate on building and loan investment certificates, is, it would seem from past court decisions, purely unconstitutional, in that obligations of existing contracts are impaired. This might be termed "bluff" legislation, enacted, however, to relieve existing conditions and to save many institutions and individuals from bankruptcy. If no one calls the "bluff,"—and no one should, for the welfare of all,—the provisions of the legislation will be generally respected. This might be termed unconstitutional, but needful, legislation. Everyone must give—take his losses goodnaturedly—to aid in routing the depression.

A movement is under way in the State Legislature, and gaining supporters, to force the return to Sacramento,—the constitutional seat of state government, the capital of California,—of the many state offices now located in various other cities. It is declared that "The policy of scattering the state government is wrong in principle, decidedly expensive to the taxpayers and a great inconvenience to the public. It is the duty of the Legislature to see that the practice of scatterization of government is abolished." This scatterization of state offices is another of the many government abuses which should be corrected now, for the very excellent reasons cited.

Anent the Jap situation: The "California Council on Oriental Relations," a suspicioned auxiliary of the misnamed "California State Chamber of Commerce," through Samuel Hume is aggressively continuing its activities in favor of repeal of the Federal Exclusion Law and the grant of quota to Japan. Service and civic organizations are being addressed, in an effort to gain their support. Keep your eyes on this outfit, and combat its activities!

Representative Charles Kramer of California has proposed in the Federal Congress legislation to prohibit future entry to the United States of foreign-born children of Jap or Chinese parentage. This proposal was offered as an amendment to a measure now pending before the House Immigration Committee which would permit a mother to transmit her American citizenship to a foreign-born child in the manner now reserved to the father. Kramer proposes to require that both parents be citizens, or of a race eligible to citizenship. Give this measure wholehearted support!

Inspired by a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court upholding the California Alien Land Law in a case appealed from Sonoma County, the district attorney has taken steps to oust alien Japs from agricultural and garden lands in San Diego County. More power to him, and may the district attorney of every county become similarly inspired to do his duty, before it is too late! Incidentally, there are no Japs in Nevada County.

Colonel William Mitchell, testifying recently before the military affairs committee of the House of Representatives, said America's principal defense problems now center on the Pacific Coast. "There is a very virile, strong outfit there seeking mastery of the world," he testified. "I have been around them in Siberia and Manchuria and Japan and I know. They are out on a 'Genghis Khan' expedition, if there ever was one. Of course, we are going to have a conflict with them sooner or later, whether we want to or not. Under the circumstances we are making a tremendous mistake in not developing our air power. Nobody is going to build battleships—they aren't silly enough."

"Gold is the only commodity that has withstood the ravages of the greatest depression the world has ever known," declared State Treasurer Charles Johnson in a recent address. "Production of gold in California created adventure and romance, wealth and prosperity. It provided for and contributed directly and indirectly to building the gigantic empire of the Pacific, lovingly known throughout the world as California. The flow of gold from our mines created a prosperity that knew no bound. It was a direct benefit to every human endeavor within and beyond the borders of our state. In this period of general depression, why not turn the energy of our thousands of unemployed to reviving the mining industry of California?"

Since 1929, there has been a substantial yearly increase in the world production of gold, $420,000,000 in 1930, $440,000,000 in 1931, and $491,120,000 in 1932.

With his regulations reducing payments to veterans, President Franklin Roosevelt issued the following statement April 1: "In connection with the publication today of the regulations having to do with veterans' benefits, I do not want any veteran to feel that he and his comrades are being singled out to make sacrifices. On the contrary, I want them to know that the regulations issued are but an integral part of our economy program embracing every department and agency of the Government to which every employe is making his or her contribution. I ask them to appreciate that not only does their welfare but also the welfare of every American citizen depend upon the maintenance of the credit of their Government and that they also bear in mind that every citizen in every walk of life is being called upon, directly or otherwise, to share in this."

The proportion of married women among the gainfully employed females in the United States is growing, according to the Women's Bureau. That's one of many reasons why unemployment among males is on the increase. Also, it accounts for the increase in the number of divorce actions, and the decrease in the nation's birth rate. The growth should be stopped, insofar as married women with able-bodied husbands are concerned.

Commemorating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the issuance of the Proclamation of Peace at Newburgh, New York, April 10, 1783,—marking the formal close of the Revolutionary War—a special postage stamp was placed on sale April 19. Of the three-cent denomination, the stamp, printed in purple ink, shows Washington's headquarters at Newburgh, with his flag flying from the staff, and depicts the surrounding mountains and rivers; at the top is "U. S. Postage." A statement of the Federal Postoffice Department contains this information:

"The Hasbrouck House, at Newburgh, which Washington occupied as his headquarters and which is still standing, claims to be among our most cherished and famous Revolutionary shrines. Washington occupied the home from April 1, 1782, to Aug. 19, 1783. It was from this house that he wrote his famous letter of advice to the Governors of the States, and also his reply to Colonel Nicola, disdaining the offer of a crown. The headquarters are often referred to both as the first White House and the Cradle of the Republic. It was here, on April 19, 1783, that General Washington issued the formal Proclamation of Peace with the British and from here that many of the continental troops were disbanded. Martha Washington spent considerable time at the Newburgh headquarters, and helped to receive the distinguished guests and to entertain the Generals and their wives. The headquarters and surrounding park are owned by the State of New York. The official order, issued by General Washington, containing the Proclamation of Peace, reads as follows:

"'Headquarters,
"'Newburgh, April 18, 1783.

"'The Commander-in-Chief orders the cessation of hostilities between the United States of America and the King of Great Britain to be publicly proclaimed tomorrow at 12 o'clock at the new building, and that the proclamation which will be communicated herewith will be read tomorrow evening at the head of every regiment and corps of the Army, after which the chaplain will render thanks to Almighty God for all his mercies, particularly for his overruling the wrath of man to his own glory and causing the rage of war to cease among the Nations.'"

Facts concerning the life of Emma Marwedel have been assembled by Dr. F. H. Swift, professor of education in the University of California. He says she established, at Los Angeles in 1876, the first kindergarten to be conducted in California, and in 1878 and 1879 established in Oakland and Berkeley classes for training kindergartens.

"Emma Marwedel's life," writes Dr. Swift, "was animated by the belief that through the kindergarten, and the extension of Froebelian principles to the home, motherhood, and higher levels of education, lay the path to prevention of crime and regeneration of human society. She thus became one of the most important educational pioneers, not only in the kindergarten

THE LITTLE THINGS THAT MOTHERS DO

(A. L. SMITH.)

The little things that mothers do—
Their labor that is never through,
Urged by a love that won't expire
In hearts that, it seems, never tire;
The tearing sacrifices made,
The many plans aside they've laid
For us. Yet still their spirit sings,
Content to do these "little things."

The little things that mothers do—
The smiles when tears are breaking through,
The prayers that in the night are said,
The hearts that have in silence bled,
The courage rising o'er shame's tide
That brings them to the culprit's side;
Yes, even hearts of stone it wrings
To contemplate these "little things."

The little things that mothers do—
A broken heart to build anew,
A shattered life to mold again,
The soothing of a soul in pain;
A man, a miracle would ask,
To her 'tis just a mother's task;
But angels halt their speeding wings
To mark what she calls "little things."

The little things that mothers do—
But this, God bless them, isn't true,
And some day, in the courts of heaven,
When from God's hand rewards are given,
A radiant angel, from the throne,
Will fly to where she sits alone;
And the glittering treasure that he brings
She won by doing "little things."

(The above came to The Grizzly Bear from A. L. Smith, a member of Argonaut Parlor No. 8 N S G W residing in Brookside, Pennsylvania. "California's Wandering Minstrel" says, in an accompanying letter: "Perhaps you can use this poem in May, for Mothers Day. It is one of my own, never before published. I know of no publication where I would rather see it born than in our magazine." Editor.)

Grand Grace S. Stoermer was among the many in attendance. Twelve dollars from the April card party was donated to the American Red Cross for relief work in Long Beach. In observance of its institution anniversary, No. 124 had a truly typical birthday party April 26 under the joint chairmanship of Jennie Raymond and Marvel Thomas. The entertainment was splendid, and the occasion was heartily enjoyed.

Los Angeles' calendar includes: May 10, card party, Peggie Ambler chairman. May 13, sewing club meets at the home of Louise McNary. May 17, initiation; speaker, Supervising Deputy Florence D. Schoneman. May 24, grand bazar, Grace Haven in charge; dancing and all kinds of games; "come, all ye N.S., spend a happy evening and help the N.D." May 30, memorial ceremonies, 10:30 a.m. in the N.S. and N.D. Memorial Park, Western-avenue entrance of Griffith Park. COMPTON TO INITIATE CLASS.

Compton—Compton Parlor No. 273 N.S.G.W. had its first meeting since the March 10 shock in its new quarters at the Compton Elks Club, 6172 North Long Beach boulevard, North Long Beach, where it will meet regularly, the second and fourth Tuesdays, until such time as a suitable meetingplace is available in Compton. Undaunted by the experience undergone, there was a good attendance of members, and keen interest was shown in the program for building a better and larger Compton. Visitors were present from Sepulveda No. 263 (San Pedro) and Santa Monica Bay No. 267 Parlors, and District Deputy Harry T. Honn was sincerely thanked for services rendered in a great emergency.

May 9, Compton plans to receive a large class of candidates, many of them having been ready for initiation at the time the shock temporarily made meetings of the Parlor impossible. Through Secretary William Don Castillo, No. 273 extends thanks to all Parlors for their interest in its welfare.

BUSY, SEWING FOR THE NEEDY.

Long Beach—Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. met April 5 at the home of President Eleanor Johnson, where meetings will be held until further notice. A benefit card party was held at the home of Mrs. Lillian Lassiter April 12. The thimble club met April 13 at the home of Mrs. Leola Temby and started another quilt as well as putting clothes in shape for needy children; luncheon was served outofdoors. At the April 20 meeting of the Parlor candidates were initiated, and refreshments were served by a committee made up of Mms. Bertha Hitt, Eleanor Johnson, Gertrude Riddle and Leola Temby.

Writing to The Grizzly Bear in behalf of Long Beach, Mrs. Leola Temby says: "Inclosed find publicity of March. Please excuse our being tardy with this, but the earthquake caused such confusion we neglected many things." Here's the news: March 2, plunkett dinner, Mrs. Lillian Lassiter chairman; bridge and five hundred followed. March 9, thimble club met at the home of Mrs. Kate McFadyen; covered-dish luncheon served, and worn clothes were put in shape for needy children. March 23, thimble club met at home of President Eleanor Johnson and fixed more clothes for the needy; a potluck luncheon was served. March 30, thimble club met at home of Mrs. Alice Waldow and made a comfort for a family in need.

SPIRIT OF OLD DAYS PERVADED.

Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. had its anniversary banquet at the Hollywood Athletic Club April 19, and many of the oldtimers were among the large number in attendance. The floral decorations were a gift from A. Goldenson. The menu was excellent. Credit for the success of the party goes largely to W. L. O'Meara, chairman of the arrangements committee. The spirit of the old days pervaded, and the party disbanded with three rousing cheers for Hollywood.

President Henry G. Bodkin was master of ceremonies, and the speakers, all of whom had to like a constant bombardment of good-natured interruptions, included Charter Member L. Zinnamon, John Costello, Municipal Judge Joseph Call, Ernest Orfila, Edward B. Lovie (the silver-tongued orator of the evening), Superior Judge Joseph Sproul, Grand Trustee Eldred Meyer, Alfred Sutro, Grand Outside Sentinel "Bill" Reuter, Robert Ford, Judge William S. Baird (a Scotch native), Fred Lovie, John Ford, John Holmes and, last but not least, First Vice-president Gene Murphy. The Germans almost stole the show from the Irish, when Past Grand Herman Lichtenberger and Arthur Schmidt sang a duet.

BENEFIT FOR CHILDREN, AT GLENDALE.

Glendale—Verdugo Parlor No. 240 N.D.G.W. had a most successful baked ham dinner and card party April 11. Margaret Donlan, in charge of the dinner, was assisted by Gussie Anderson, Ione Gillette, Betty Sanders and Maude Molen. Sarah Burleson and Dorothy Ravn had charge of the card playing. President Fae Robinson of the Glendale City Teachers Club addressed the Parlor on "Educational Week" April 25; she was introduced by President Vera Carlson.

Verdugo will have a dessert bridge for the benefit of the homeless children at the Elks Club in Glendale, May 18 at 1 p.m. The price is thirty-five cents. The arrangements committee includes Gussie Anderson, Ada Steele, Sarah Burleson, Myrtize Tregea and Margaret Donlan. Past presidents of the Parlor will entertain at dinner May 9 the members of Verdugo and their mothers. Betty Sanders is the general chairman, and Edith Dobson has arranged a wonderful "mothers nite" program.

PAST PRESIDENTS NIGHTS INAUGURATED.

Santa Monica—The first of a series of monthly past presidents nights was featured April 5 by Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz was the honor-guest, and President Arthur Leonard extended a welcome to the many in attendance. J. Edward McCurdy directed the program, which included entertainment numbers and brief addresses, among the speakers being Past Grand John T. Newell, Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer and Sheriff Biscailuz. A buffet supper was served by "Chefs" Harry Dailey and Harper Ledbetter. Past President Dike C. Freeman will be honored May 3.

ALL SET FOR CATALINA OUTING.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. had a rousing good meeting April 7, the occasion being election of Grass Valley Grand Parlor delegates. Among the many who had something to say were Senator Reginaldo Del Valle, Edwin A. Meserve, Ray Northrup, Charles Thomas, Superior Judge Rey Schauer, Paul Lombardi, Leon Leonard, Jack Lewis, Walter Odemar, Walter Baskerville, Past Grands Herman Lichtenberger and John Newell, Leo Youngworth and President Frank Adams. "Let's have more, and bigger elections," remarked Inside Sentinel Clarence S. Hunt.

The stage is all set for Ramona's anniversary

NATIVE SON FOR MAYOR OF LOS ANGELES

THE TOUR

At the head of Willow Creek, near Oak Valley, you will have the pleasure of seeing a hydraulic mine operating and the big monitor sluicing down the gravel from an ancient channel. Fred Joubert will welcome you, if you care to climb down the steep banks into the "diggings," and will let you hold the monitor that is sending an "8" stream of water against the gravel bank. This mine has paid big money for many years and is not yet exhausted of its wealth of golden nuggets.

After passing Depot Hill, where Joubert's mine is located, you descend rapidly to the North Fork of the Yuba River. Drive slowly down this grade, so that the occupants of your car can view the gorgeous canyon you are dropping into. Governor James Rolph has named this grade the seasick road to Downieville, so it is advisable to drive slowly, to save trouble in the rear seat. At Indian Valley the State Fish and Game Department operates a fish hatchery which replenishes the streams of Sierra County with the speckled beauties.

For the balance of the trip, you are following up the North Yuba River. Watch for the "snipers" along the river, and the makeshift miners' cabins where families existed during the past winter. Regular '49er miner times here during the past year—with the fights for claims, claim jumping, but no killings in this mining excitement. Shortly you will see Goodyear's Bar, an old-time mining camp of the '50s, now a small hamlet where recreationists and fishermen spend the summer. It lies across the river from the highway.

Four miles further, after rounding Cannon Point, you obtain your first view of Downieville. This is one of the most picturesque towns of California, seething with mining history of the early days. It is the government seat of Sierra County. The first bridge you see on the street to the Court House is where the first woman in California was hanged, for killing a gambler. Here the Native Sons of Downieville Parlor will serve a mountain stew with all the additions. Tony Lavezzola will meet you at the St. Charles Hotel. You all know him, who have been to the Grand Parlors for many years past. Get him to show you his gold nugget specimens, they're worth seeing. August Costa, another Native Son whom most of you know, will be leading the younger members at the tables which will be set in the main square. This Downieville Parlor lay dormant for many years, but has been revived and now all eligible young men for miles around are members, and active members, let me tell you. It is now one of the liveliest Parlors in northern California.

You have still thirteen miles of forest high way to travel before reaching Sierra City, the last town on the North Yuba River. Nestled under the Sierra Buttes, it has a setting that attracts recreationists each summer and is a picture that will thrill you. The fishing is great. Ask Ernie Ennis, at the Sierra Buttes Hotel where the fish are biting best. The Sierra Buttes mine, close to the town, has produced millions and is still being worked. There are many other quartz mines in this locality that have been worked since the early days of quartz mining.

Before you return to Downieville, you will be guided up the Yuba Pass forest highway, where you can see the heavy snow fields of the Sierra Buttes on the north side of the 10,000-foot mountain. A Forest Service lookout has a glass lookout house on the mountain and reports the starting of forest fires to the forest rangers who protect the Tahoe National Forest.

On your return to Nevada City, you will all say that the trip has been worthwhile. It will take all day, and you will travel one hundred and thirty-five miles. True, you will be tired on your return, but you will have enjoyed every minute of the outing and will have seen scenery that you will always remember. And you'll want to come back, to see more of the Tahoe National Forest.

movement, but in the extension of progressive ideas affecting every field of education. It is impossible to measure the importance of the work and influence of this educational pioneer."

Nepotism, long practiced by numerous public office holders, national, state, county, city and township, should be abolished by law! In Sacramento County, for instance, so the "Bee" says, the superintendent of schools employs in his office two married sisters, one of whom resides in Butte County. The husbands of both are employed.

In a New York address April 3, Secretary of War George H. Dern paid a fine, and deserved tribute to the Salvation Army, declaring that, a one "of the first line of defenses" in the national emergency, it must have the support of private individuals. "The Salvation Army," he said "has acted on a national scale. It has been of untold help in succoring the hungry, the shelterless and the spiritually wounded, and in keeping alive faith and hope among the victims of present conditions."

Here's pertinent advice, given by a New Jersey corporation to its employes: "President Roosevelt has done his part, now you do something. Buy something, buy anything, anywhere . . . It doesn't matter what you do, only get going and keep going. This old world is starting to move." Impossible to get anywhere, if one stands still.

Navel Orange Birthday—The sixtieth anniversary of the planting of the first Washington navel orange tree in California will be celebrated at Riverside City, May 5.

Rose Carnival—May 18, 19 and 20 are the dates selected for the annual rose carnival at Santa Rosa, Sonoma County.

PREPARE FOR GREATER EFFORT

Mary E. Brusie
(Secretary N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Central Homeless Children Committee.)

"WHERE DID YOU COME FROM?" was the greeting of the secretary to a slight, fair-haired, well-groomed young man of twenty-five years as he sat in the office of 959 Phelan building, San Francisco, one April afternoon. The sun came in the window and shone on a human bundle in his arms swathed in a pink Easter-bunny blanket—a blanket, by the way, that was given by a Native Daughter Parlor last June during Grand Parlor time. He smiled in a boyish sort of way as he proudly unwrapped the baby and said:

"This is the boy that my wife and I had decided to give for adoption. I am not working today, so I came in to thank you for the baby's clothes and basket, and bottles which your organization furnished when our baby arrived. I must confess that I hated to meet you, not knowing what you would think of us for wanting to place our baby for adoption. I often think of what you told my wife when she came in to see you before going to the hospital: 'Good foster parents are plentiful, but good, moral blood-parents mean more to a child than anything else in the world. Poverty never hurts anyone, and where there is a will you'll find a way.' We are going to find the way! It will not be easy, for work is scarce. Our parents while good are poor, and cannot help us, but we'll manage, and I want to thank you for your advice and kindness, and for recommending us to the very considerate relief agency. If you have any stray baby buggy around, I'd like it. I make an awful bungle of carrying this boy around and sometimes I have his feet where his head ought to be. You know that our apartment is pretty dark and the baby must have air and all the sunshine we can get for him, and my wife isn't as strong as she ought to be. Her arms soon tire 'cause he is a 'bouncer.' Now, don't you think that he is a fine little fellow for two months?"

"He is," we agreed, but with the answer came the oft-recurring doubt: Was it wise to persuade the parents to keep him? Is their struggle going to be too great? Would it have been fairer to the boy to have placed him where he could have had a surer prospect in one of the hundreds of outstanding homes? "Hundreds of homes," someone asks, "during these times?" Yes, hundreds of good homes—forty-three applications in October, thirty in November, forty-three in December, fifty-nine in January, one hundred eighteen in February and March, making a total of 478 for the year, and 1,141 applications now on file waiting for children; 10,342 have applied since the beginning of the work.

The conclusion that one reaches after noting the amazing number of applications during times of depression is, that in prosperous times men and women spend their money in traveling to Europe, or Florida, or the beauty spots of California, but now that their incomes have been reduced they are staying at home. They realize as never before that home is a pretty good place, but incomplete without a child, and follow the wife's suggestion: "Let's do what we always have planned to do if no children of our own came to us, adopt one. We can afford it." Eventually one finds that there are compensations in times of financial stress. There seems to come a renewed appreciation of family life and friends, a truer sympathy, and a clearer understanding of what the other fellow is going through, and a keener desire to help.

The young man and his wife and boy referred to constitute but one of the sixty-eight different families who have come to our attention during this year, and whose children we have not accepted for adoption but who have been aided by the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children. All were experiencing the pinch of poverty, and were panicky when they thought of another mouth to feed and saw as their only solution the giving of their baby for adoption. The Central Committee has been glad to be able to help with temporary care, and clothing which the Native Daughters and our foster-parents and friends have provided, and has referred the families to relief agencies, which have generously and kindly aided parents when they learned that they were facing separation from their child.

We have placed 168 children during the year, 13 have been replaced, 176 new homes have taken children, making a total of 4,199 children, 510 replacements and 4,709 homes since April 1910.

We are giving for comparison the amounts of the contributions received from the Parlors during the last four years, not with any spirit of criticism. Realizing that everyone has been affected by hard times, the Committee especially appreciates the ability of many of the Parlors to equal their usual contributions while others have exceeded their usual amount. A joint committee of Native Sons and Native Daughters which has aided largely in previous years placed its funds in a bank for safe keeping and was unable to get the money in time for this year's report. Another Native Daughter Parlor sent a check for $37.50 for the milk fund and the bank asked for a receiver before the check was cashed. Your Central Committee is alive to the danger-line, and is giving these figures that "all who read may run" and prepare for a greater effort during the next fiscal year, April 1933 to April 1934, if the work for the homeless children is to be continued.

From 1928 to 1929 the receipts from the Parlors were $16,332.10; 1929 to 1930, $17,474.83; 1930 to 1931, $16,748.75; 1931 to 1932, $14,127.98; 1932 to 1933, $10,929.91, including $879.25 from the Native Daughter milk fund, making $4,198.07 less than last year's contribution, $5,818.84 less than the year before, and $6,544.92 less than in 1930.

The cash receipts from April 1932 to March 31, 1933, totaled $29,560.19, of which amount $10,929.91 came from Native Sons and Native Daughters, $361 from friends, $742.14 from interest and dividends, $4,778.28 from board refunds, and bequests of estates of Aubrey Montgomery $12,508.23 and Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel $250.

The operating expense from April 1932 to March 31, 1933, totaled $27,005.56, leaving available cash in the commercial account $6,226.51, with bequest and interest in savings banks $12,243.54. Our expenses were $2,993.68 less than last year.

We are carrying on the work as economically as possible and with as few workers as consistent with good work. Finding homes for children ranks throughout the universe as the most important work known to social service, demanding judgment, sympathy, tact, loyalty, honest and untiring effort on the part of every worker. The members of the Central Committee recognize their full responsibility for a child's influence and training, and feel that they are accountable to the Orders, to the State of California, and to the mothers and fathers who give, as well as to the mothers and fathers who receive, a child.

The Native Daughter Parlors listed in the February issue of The Grizzly Bear as having followed Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong's suggestion to adopt a baby are sending their contributions regularly each month. We are listing the Parlors which have paid the $37.50 for the six-weeks care of a baby: Ursula No. 1 (Jackson), Orinda No. 56 (San Francisco), Aloha No. 106 (Oakland), Dolores No. 169 (San Francisco), Castro No. 178 (San Francisco) paid in full and taken a second child, El Carmelo No. 181 (Daly City), Morada No. 199 (Modesto), Plumas Pioneer No. 219 (Quincy) sent check in good faith but the bank has closed, El Tejon No. 239 (Bakersfield), Grand Parlor N.D.G.W. Home Committee, Portola No. 172 (San Francisco), Presidents Assembly of Women's Clubs.

Additional Parlors adopting a baby, and some within a few dollars of paying the full amount for the six weeks, are: Ivy No. 88 (Lodi), Copa de Oro No. 105 (Hollister), La Bandera No. 110 (Sacramento), Mary E. Bell No. 224 (Dixon). San Francisco: Minerva No. 2, Golden State No. 50, Genevieve No. 132, Golden Gate No. 158, Mission No. 227. Alameda County: Hayward

ALL ADOPTED IN ONE COMMUNITY.

No. 122, Brooklyn No. 157, Bahia Vista No. 167, Alameda County Past Presidents Association. Los Angeles and Orange Counties: Los Angeles No. 124, Santa Ana No. 235, Verdugo No. 240, Grace No. 242, Santa Monica Bay No. 245, Californiana No. 247.

Mrs. Rena Mathias of El Carmelo Parlor was instrumental in interesting the Parlors of her district in adopting a baby. The following Parlors and members have contributed toward this fund instead of spending it for a district meeting: Bonita No. 10, Vista del Mar No. 155, Ano Nuevo No. 180, El Carmelo No. 181, Menlo No. 211, San Bruno No. 246, Deputy Mary Junker of Bonita Parlor, Alta McCauley of Ano Nuevo Parlor, Alice Mathias and Rena Mathias of El Carmelo Parlor.

A Native Son or Native Daughter cannot be deaf to the words of commendation from his own communities for the willingness of fraternal organizations to promote and carry on a charitable work in the interest of children. The most indifferent Native Son or Native Daughter must be convinced of the appropriateness of a charity concerned with the future citizens of the state he or she loves. Children are an asset to any community, if given the chance of careful

Native Daughters of the Golden West

THE FORTY-SEVENTH GRAND PARLOR of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West is to be held at Oakland, Alameda County. The four-day session will convene Monday, June 19. Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong (Woodland No. 90) of Woodland, Yolo County, will preside throughout the deliberations. Past Grand President Sue J. Irwin and Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler are co-chairmen in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

Subordinate Parlors will select their delegates to the Grand Parlor at their first meeting in May. Following the choosing of delegates, quite a few new hats will, according to rumor, appear in the office-ring. There are persistent rumors, many of them from reliable sources, that there will be contests at Oakland for every Grand Parlor office, excepting the grand presidency. The Grizzly Bear endeavors to get first-hand information from candidates, and the following have, in answer to queries directed to them, definitely announced their candidacies to date:

Grand President—Grand Vice-president Irma Laird (Alturas No. 159) of Alturas, Modoc County.

Grand Secretary—Sallie R. Thaler (Aloha No. 106) of Oakland. incumbent.

Grand Treasurer—Susie K. Christ (Yosemite No. 83) of San Francisco, incumbent.

Grand Marshal—Grand Trustee Anna Thuesen (Alta No. 3) of San Francisco; Grand Trustee Edna B. Briggs (La Bandera No. 110) of Sacramento.

"A Ceremony by the River."

Sacramento—Rio Rita No. 253, the latest link in the Native Daughter chain, was instituted April 8 in the presence of 200 members of the Order. It was organized by Supervising Deputy Sadie Winn-Brainard, and is made up of a group of young women all under thirty years of age. The name, meaning "a ceremony by the river," is quite fitting, as the broad, beautiful Sacramento flows by California's Capital City, the "baby's" birthplace.

Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong, who officiated at the Parlor's institution, was assisted by Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Marshal Gladys Noce, Grand Trustees Florence Boyle, Edna Briggs and Willow Borba, Past Grands Mary E. Bell, Dr. Eva Rasmussen, Dr. Louise Heilbron and Esther Sullivan, Supervising Deputy Bessie Leitch, and Oneida Wilhelm, Sulene Cowan, Vivian Hall, Maud Cook and Clara Kenny of Califia No. 22. Officers of Rio Rita were installed by Mrs. Brainard, as follows:

Alpha Filcher, president; Evalan Earle, senior past president; Clare Rossi, junior past president; Helen Quick, past president; Alice Fredericks, first vice-president; Virginia Skeele, second vice-president; Claudia Jones, third vice-president; Dorothea Rouke, recording secretary; Edna Seydel, financial secretary; Marian Weber, treasurer; Frances Howe, marshal; Evelyn Stearns, Zelda Hanrahan, Helen King, trustees; Melba Giorgi, inside sentinel; Jeanette Eschleman, outside sentinel; Henrietta Farley, pianist.

Grand President Armstrong gave a fine talk on the Order's projects, and was presented, by the Parlor, with a gift, and numerous other speakers expressed good wishes. To Mrs. Brainard, the organizer, Rio Rita presented a pair of silver candlesticks; her response indicated to the assemblage just how dear the girls are to her. The first act of the Parlor was to adopt a homeless baby boy with the stipulation that he shall be named Winn, in honor of the N.S.G.W.

"There is no substitute for membership"

Founder. A committee was named to place a marker at some historic spot, and a subscription was made to the Order's veteran fund, used to make a little happier the lives of the veterans who are in hospitals paying with their sufferings for the country's safety. Concluding a delightful and never-to-be-forgotten evening, punch was served.

Entertainment Established Standard.

Grass Valley—Manzanita No. 29 had its forty-fifth institution anniversary celebration March 21, and what a celebration! Mrs. James Wales and a minstrel troupe of thirty members, in darkface disguise and heterogeneous garb, provided entertainment that established a standard forl merriment. Members of Quartz No. 58 N.S.G.W. were special guests of the evening.

After the show, chicken campstew, apple pie and coffee were served. At the festive board H. Ray George presided as master of ceremonies, and among the speakers were Past Grand Alison F. Watt, Deputy Adaline O'Connor, President Anna Rowe of Manzanita and President Frank Rowe of Quartz. In the minstrel group were Louise Wales, Ethel Veale, Grace Eva, Irene Eldridge, Hazel Veale, Melita Hutchinson, Beatrice George, Sue Harris, Ann Whiting, Bee Deward, Hannibelle Daley, Hilda Sandow, Florence George, Hazel Jenkins, Vashti Schwartz, Ruth Lindwall, Anna Rowe, Lorraine Keast, Sadie Bennetts, Annie Conlin, Esther Fuller, Caroline Hotchkiss, Venita Jones, Ethel Foote, Marie Foote, Inez Hammill, Jean Briggs, Betty Briggs and Dorothy Daley.

Drill Team Featured.

Stockton—Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong paid an official visit April 11 to Joaquin No. 5 at Native Sons Hall, transformed into a bower of wisteria blossoms. Mrs. J. B. Maguire Jr. presided, and among the many visitors were Past Grands Carrie R. Durham, Mamie G. Peyton, Mattie M. Stein and Pearl Lamb, Grand Trustee Edna Briggs, Supervising Deputy Grace Bessac and Deputy Frances Huck. Many gifts were presented Mrs. Armstrong, and corsages were given all officers.

A feature of the occasion was the appearance of the Parlor's noted drill team, in beruffled gowns of pink over wisteria. The team is composed of Mms. H. H. Drais (captain), C. V. Garvin, L. S. Baker, Ralph Smith, Louis Starin, Otto Kern, Charles Heineman, Charlotte Lent, George Sanguinetti, A. Worth, H. K. Valentine, H. Storms, Leo Johnson, J. E. Wilson, Brem Bessac, T. L. Porter, G. J. Schwall, Leroy Corr, Stephen Paxton; Fern Driscoll, Eva Bona, Constance Storms, Edith Beach, Tillie Bona, Doris Pettagliata. Several intricate drills were charmingly executed, and a program was presented. In charge of arrangements for the occasion were Mms. L. S. Baker (general chairman), H. H. Drais and T. L. Potter (decorations), Leroy Corr (social phases).

Joaquin celebrated its forty-sixth anniversary March 28, with the three remaining charter members as honor guests. A turkey supper was served and a suitable program staged under the chairmanship of Elizabeth Baker and Harriet Corr. In greeting the charter members, President Margaret McGuire said:

"We have assembled tonight to celebrate our forty-sixth anniversary and to pay homage to our three charter members, Miss Hannah Gray, Mrs. Carrie R. Durham and Miss Clara Steir, whom we are very happy to have as our honor guests. To Sister Gray goes the honor of having organized Joaquin Parlor, and in so doing she has not only assembled a group of women who enjoy meeting together in a social way, but she has organized a body of women who are an asset to our community and State; Sister Gray, we congratulate you on your foresight, and hope we may have you as our guiding star for many years to come. You, Sister Durham, might be compared to 'Minerva,' the chosen goddess of our State and Order; with your womanly charms and gracious manners you have been a leading figure in our Parlor, no Native Daughter in the state is loved and respected more than you, and we are proud to claim you as our own. Sister Steir, we are pleased to have you with us, a woman of keen intellect, devoting your time and energy to the educating of our future native daughters and native sons, you are an asset to any organization. These three noble women are the backbone of our Parlor, and fit examples for us to follow. May God bless them, and may we enjoy their company and good influence for many, many years."

Harmony Club Formed.

San Bernardino—Lugonia No. 241 enjoyed a potluck dinner and program April 12. Thelma Nett had charge. The table was decorated with red roses and sweetpeas. A public school educational program was presented by First Vice-president Mary Johnson April 16. Among the visitors was Florence D. Schoneman who, in the afternoon, was guest speaker on the California day program at the Woman's Club. The Parlor assisted on this occasion by exhibiting historic relics.

To arouse interest, the Harmony Club was organized at the home of Katherine McIntosh

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

NOT IN MANY SEASONS HAS INDIVIDUality played such an important part in coat fashions as is evidenced in the summer collections. Somewhat to our surprise, we find coats occupying a strategic position in the mode. The square shoulder is, of course, the distinguishing feature of coat fashions in general. We have the leg o'mutton, the melon, the cartridge-pleated top, the Gibson girl, the bicycle sleeve and many more.

Epaulettes, capelets, leis and revers emphasize smart shoulders in spirited new ways. Necklines compete with sleeves for style attention. They are draped, fitted, tied, buttoned and furred in diverse ways.

A large percentage of the more dressy coats subscribe to the vogue for detachable parts, such as capes, collars and scarfs, which add so materially to the chic of the garment. Unless all signs fail, we are due to hear more from the loose, swagger or boxy-type coat within the next few months. It is a type that has much to recommend to women in general, knee-length for the younger set and longer for the more-mature woman. These coats include types that can be worn either belted or swagger.

The new frocks are gay deceivers and, like so many of their predecessors, change their personality to suit the occasion. The dawn-to-dusk double-purpose dresses are more than ever intriguing in their styling, not to mention the beauty of their fabrics and the fineness of finished detail. Gray and beiges are finding favor with smart dressers, and in the case of these neutral shades there is a tendency to introduce laces tinted to match. On the other hand, and by way of striking contrast, we have the dramatic affinity of two colors, such as chocolate brown and chartreuse. Multicolored plaids and stripes, too, frequently ally themselves with soft monotones. It is the exceptional frock that is permitted to follow an independent course.

Every model has a complimentary jacket or cape, for many smart as well as practical purposes. These outfits are apt to be a bit tailored and quite a bit dressy. The jacket is frequently embellished with fur. Fabrics in many new versions have been introduced this season, but the favorite of them all, it would seem, is the organza, which is a sort of organdie presented in a new and slightly changed form. Its crispness is the dominant note of the season's styles, for the tendency is to accentuate one's crisp, chic appearance in every possible form. Orderly, slick styles predominate.

Cotton's popularity is definitely established for morning, afternoon or evening wear. Printed lawns and linens are in evidence everywhere. With the new type of linen, suits are heavier and less "wrinkly" than before, and dark blouses are to be worn with them. Ginghams, prints, flowered chiffons and crepes are still in favor.

Spring coats are practically all lengths, ranging from three-quarters and seven-eighths to the full-dress length. The fox trim is especially good, although many are shown without trimming. The color range runs largely to gray, beige and blue, the latter stressing the new postman or powder blues.

For the resorts, slacks and pajama suits promise to attain greater popularity than ever, and a new garment for the beach has made its appearance in the rubber bathing suit. Corsets and girdles are worn to preserve trimness of figure.

Gloves, of course, are appearing in every and all kinds of materials, matching those of the frock in many instances. Pique, taffeta and organdie are among the new glove fabrics. White hats may be worn with dark dresses or suits, provided there is a touch of white combined in the trimming of the dress. Shoe styles have adopted the rounder toe and lower heel for evening as well as day wear. The new boulevard heel averages from one to one and one-half inches in hight.

Light and heavy weight materials are being combined. For instance, pique blouses have insets of tucked dimity. Silk and cotton are combined. Taffeta jackets are worn over sheer organdie frocks. Rough materials are still good, but there is a tendency toward the smoother fabrics, and the highly lustrous satins are coming in. On the whole, the spring and summer styles allow a wide variety for individual taste and selection. The early shopper indicates a tendency to buy fewer, but better, clothes, favoring one higher priced garment over two of lesser value.

One of the most radical changes is seen in the styles of hats, with a definite trend toward the higher crowns. Slightly wider brims are shown for the smaller hats. A new popularity is promised for the wide-brim hat for dinner or formal afternoon wear. Millinery has gone "high hat;" not in the snobbish sense, of course. Perhaps we might say the additional head hight gives a balance to the squared shoulders of the mode. Higher trimmings are also sponsored, and flowers, ribbons or feathers break the silhouette. Turned-up or cuff brims and various other subtle millinery trimmings give rise to greater hights of smartness.

Checks may be large or small. They appear in many delightful varieties. They pep one up, after a long winter of monotones. They are nice all by themselves, and even nicer when they are contrasted with a plain material which repeats one of their colors. Plan to wear at least one of the checked or plaided hats with a matching scarf. All the shops have them. Tie the scarf high around the neck, knotting it under the chin or tying it in a bow. Plaid blouses are very doggy, too.

The Padre—His dear old wrinkled face was open as a child's, his wise old eyes gentle and free from guile.—Jeanette Nourland.

NATIVE DAUGHTER NEWS

March 22. It is made up of active and prospective members of Lurgonia and their mothers. It meets the first and third Tuesdays at the member home. A flower garden quilt is being made and will be disposed of to raise funds.

Living Pioneer Monuments.

Angels Camp—Princess No 84 participated in Arbor Day exercises, held April 2 in Utica Park, by planting in the Native Daughter plot of the park two trees as living monuments to "for their untiring efforts in making this state the Pioneers. In dedicating the trees President Hildred Mayo eulogized the California Pioneers the land of safety and prosperity for posterity." The trees were presented to the Parlor by D. Fricat, who raised them in Calaveras County from nuts from a tree growing on the site of the battle of Gettysburg.

Historical Fashion Show.

Chico—Annie K. Bidwell No. 168 had a historical fashion show March 23. Grace Morrow, who originated the idea, read the story as the characters representing the various periods appeared: Spanish, Antoinette Choisser; gold rush, Mabel Marshall; Civil War, Francis Snider; gay nineties, Margaret Polk; Roosevelt, Lila Roohr; World War, Charlotte Boyd; jazz, Minnie Wesbrook; modern, Lucy Girdler. Appropriate selections were sung by Alice Bass, Lois Heberlie and Katherine McEnespy, with Evelyn Boyd as accompanist. Josephine Alexander was chairman of a committee that served refreshments at tables decorated in spring flowers.

No Hall, Account of Quake.

Santa Ana—Santa Ana No. 235 not being able to find a hall since the recent quake, meetings were held March 27 at the home of First Vice-president Mae West and April 10 at the home of Past President Genevieve Hiskey. The thimble club met at the homes of Gertrude Etzold and Ruth Campbell. As the latter is to become a bride April 30, she was given a surprise shower of useful gifts. A cooked-food sale was held April 15, and a card party was given at the Balboa home of Lillian Gant April 18. May 8 the Parlor will sponsor a pioneer tea and May 22 a potluck dinner.

Members of Santa Ana will always recall the big-hearted-ness and unceasing worthiness of Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong. Through her understanding of the Parlor's position after the quake, and through the courtesy of Grace No 242 (Fullerton), No 235 was privileged to join with the latter for the official visit.

President Initiates Three Daughters.

San Rafael—At a very impressive ceremony, Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong paid her official visit to Marinita No 198 April 10. Preceding the meeting, dinner was served, the banquet hall being beautifully decorated in red and gold. California missions formed the theme for the decorative scheme of the tables, in front of the Grand President being a replica of Mission San Rafael, and at intervals were mission bells, each representing one of the missions from San Diego to Sonoma, also tiny Indian tepees, Indians, friars, etc. California poppies were the flowers used, together with cacti, and the menus were in Spanish. The meeting hall was decorated in red and gold crepe paper, poppies and ferns. Other guests, in addition to representatives of numerous Parlors were: Junior Past Grand Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley, Willow Borba, and Annie Thuesen, Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grands Emma G. Foley, Margaret G. Hill and May C. Boldemann, Supervising Deputies Clytie Lewis, Edna Richter, Sadie Brainard and Alice Lane, Deputy Delphine Todt and eleven other deputies.

Grand President Armstrong was escorted to her seat of honor by Marinita's drill team while Antoinette Hecht sang "Our Wishing Song." Seven candidates were initiated, three of them being daughters of President Mary Zappetini, who presided in a very able manner. Mrs. Armstrong commended the officers for their work, and the Parlor for furthering the Order's projects. Numerous gifts were presented and refreshments were served at the meeting's close. The very efficient committee in charge of the affair was headed by Charter Member Anna Spinney.

Bride Showered.

Oroville—A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the vaudeville show of Gold of Ophir No. 190 March 30. Betty Boyle, dressed as a clown, acted as herald and carried the posters announcing the numbers. The committee that worked diligently for the success of the affair included Mae Belle Bills (chairman), Grand Trustee Florence D. Boyle, Verna Parker, Margaret Gilbert, Alta B. Baldwin. April 5 a hobo party proved very unique. Hattie McCoy received first prize for the best sustained character. A real mulligan stew was served following the stunts. In charge were Freda Cole (chairman), Alta Baldwin, Grand Trustee Boyle and Hattie Clark.

April 11, California day, under the chairmanship of Evelyn Joslyn, was observed at the Soroptimist Club, and a program in keeping with the occasion was presented. April 17 a shower was held at the home of Verna Parker for the Parlor's latest bride, Mae Mitchell. Beautiful gifts were presented her. Bridge was the evening's diversion. Mrs. Parker, Francis O'Brien and Mary Slisman were in charge.

SAN FRANCISCO

PURITANISM, LEISURE, AND LACK OF normal fun and enjoyment are three factors definitely linked with vice and crime, Dr. Herman Adler, professor of psychiatry at the University of California, said in the course of a popular lecture on "Psychiatry and Crime" delivered recently in San Francisco. "In sex, alcohol and drugs, and gambling, factors leading to vice and crime, the common denominator is restlessness and discontent caused by the damming back of natural fundamental impulses. The spirit of adventure which is represented by gambling is a safe one, but it cannot be safely indulged in unless it is directed toward non-criminal goals. Gang activities do not furnish the only possible adventures today. Anything legitimate which counteracts in the individual the feeling that he is shut out and solitary, is desirable, and helps in preventing vicious demoralization. Group adventures, such as experiments in barter, are being worked out today."

Good times do not spell danger, Dr. Adler emphasized. It is the duty of public officials to make possible and organize such good times, the healthy use of leisure. Fun and play are especially desirable right now. Having a good time is much more desirable for the unemployed than to allow them to sit at home in solemn dejection or to wander about aimlessly in search for jobs which do not exist.

"In the changing economic order of things," he commented, "it is apparent that man is going to be faced with increasingly great amounts of time. Two groups will make adjustments without difficulty. The mentally-low-grade man will accept the situation with stolidity. The superior man, the artist, the genius, because of his great gifts, will escape, through his burning interests, the boredom of undirected activity. Between these two groups, however, is the great bulk of humanity which is neither so suggestible as to follow blindly, nor so superior as to be able to ignore lack of environmental compulsion. Individuals in this group are going to be at loose ends. As amount of leisure increases, boredom and frustration can be expected to increase."

RECEPTION FOR N.S. GRAND PRESIDENT.

The San Francisco N.S.G.W. Parlors, through the Extension of the Order Committee, sponsored a reception in honor of Grand President Seth Millington, in the auditorium of Native Sons Building April 28. There was an immense outpouring of members from all the San Francisco Bay district. It was a real oldtime reception, with fun galore.

A wonderful program of ten high-class acts was presented, and Grand President Millington delivered a brief address. From the auditorium the crowd went to the banquethall, where "A Night at the Dutchman's Corner" was featured. The committee in charge of the evening included Martin Huber (chairman), Frank Foss (master of ceremonies), Charles J. Barry, Wilbur Doyle, Frank Lynch, Al Vlautin and Albert Anderson.

NATIVE DAUGHTER PARLORS BRIEFS.

Preceding the bridge game at the Home April 27, members of Alta Parlor No. 3 and their many friends enjoyed a delicious luncheon. May L. MacDonald, the charming hostess, was assisted by Grand Trustee Anna Thuesen, Angeline Vest and a corps of workers. Not to be outdone by the April committee, the social committee for May, under the leadership of Grand Trustee Thuesen and Mary Schultz, promises an out-of-the-ordinary affair.

Members of Gabrielle Parlor No. 139 turned out in numbers to greet Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong on her official visit. Among the many visitors was Deputy Muriel Sandell. An Easter atmosphere reigned in the banquetroom. Alice Hornblower was chairwoman of the evening. Gabrille has just formed a drill team.

Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 is always busy with activities in the interest of the Order. It has adopted a baby girl, named Wilma Joy, and has agreed to supply her with milk until taken care of by new parents. Some of the Parlor members have formed a drill team, which recently sponsored a card party that was a great success.

NATIVE SON PARLORS BRIEFS.

Pacific Parlor No. 10 will have its annual picnic and outing at Wildwood, May 14. An elaborate program of games and races, with events included for both young and old, will be among the features of the day. A jazz orchestra will provide music for open-air dancing.

Stanford Parlor No. 76 had its spring dinner-dance April 22; Past President Frank F. Morris was the chairman. The card parties held the last Tuesday of each month continue to grow in popularity. The Parlor's annual picnic will be held June 4 at La Honda; Theo. Schmidt is in charge.

LOYAL CITIZEN PASSES.

George Tourny, president of the San Francisco Bank and a member of the Board of Park Commissioners, died March 21 at the age of 71, survived by a wife and two daughters. Commenting on his demise, Mayor Angelo J. Rossi (El Dorado Parlor No. 52 N.S.G.W.) declared:

"In the death of George Tourny, San Francisco has suffered a great loss. A man of the highest ideals, an executive of rare ability, a man of broad vision, intensely loyal to the interests of San Francisco, Mr. Tourny represented the highest type of American citizen. He gave his great efforts to San Francisco, the city he loved, as a member of the Park Commission for many years."

"opportunity" was theirs. She arrived with Lotta and found that she was to run a boarding house. So, close to Lola's "castle" the Crabtrees held forth in their business venture. Crabtree was happy. His wife did the work, and kept a well-filled table for him to adorn.

Soon Lotta is spending afternoons with Lola at the "big house." This woman of the world was greatly attached to the youthful and winsome Lotta. Lola had been on the stage. She danced well, and has histrionic skill. She recognized talent in the child, and found the youngster an apt and willing pupil. From her mother, Lotta had inherited a bent toward the stage. Soon pupil could outdance her teacher. She soon added singing to her accomplishments, and later banjo playing. How Lotta's mother could have permitted her daughter to have spent these hours with Lola is not quite conceivable, as we now view morals and environment, but that condition perhaps is explained by the thought that Mrs. Crabtree was an innocent woman in the ways of the world and it never dawned upon her the real truth of the rumors she must have heard concerning her neighbor. Or perhaps she knew her daughter was too young to have her morals affected.

The dancing lessons go on, and the mature woman and little child take to riding horseback together, Lola on her mount and Lotta on her pony. It is related that once, when they rode from Grass Valley to Rough and Ready, that there she stood the child on an anvil and Lotta amused a small audience with her songs. The delegates to the Grand Parlor of Native Sons may retrace the road over which Lola and Lotta rode in those forgotten days—days that were filled with delight for the child and companionable amusement for the elder woman. Lotta lived in Grass Valley until she was eight, Lola lived there in all about a year and a half.

From her debut at Rabbit Creek to her death at Boston in 1924, no effort will be made to trace the meteoric career of Lotta. She has left her trace too recent in California to recount the triumphs of a girl blessed by nature with smiling countenance, a pathos that was natural, and an aptness in singing songs that had both heart and music in her voice. Undoubtedly she was like the Al Jolson of a few years ago and sang songs with a tender appeal that brought out the best in them and left an audience with a tugging feeling at the heart strings. Perhaps it was the time and lack of competition that measured a great deal of her success. However, we cannot mitigate her greatness by taking this point of view, for when she grew older she likewise became a favorite on the Chicago stage, although she did not always register in New York, the place of her birth.

Lola left Grass Valley, lingered a time in San Francisco, and took boat to Australia. There she remained for a time, returning to New York, where she died comparatively young, at the age of 43, on January 7, 1861. Paralysis, perhaps the result of having trod the airy, fairy path for too long a spell, caused the death of this beautiful and talented woman. May both of them, the laughing girl and the woman who laughed at life and its codes, be remembered as Native Sons see the scenes their once living eyes beheld at Grass Valley.

This article cannot be concluded without reference to that miner poet, John Rollin Ridge, part Cherokee Indian, whose brilliant pen wrote undying poetry, for we remember that the skull which formerly housed that brain is resting in the eternal sleep in a Grass Valley cemetery. May the memory of this talented man be not forgotten in the lustre of his female contemporaries, and may we honor him as we read a fragment of his beautiful tribute to Mount Shasta:

"Far lifted in the boundless blue, he doth
Encircle with his gaze supreme, the broad
Dominions of the West, which lie beneath
His feet, in pictures of such sublime repose
No artist ever drew. He sees the tall, gigantic
Hills arise in silentness
And peace and in the long review of distance
Range themselves in order grand.
He sees the sunlight
Play upon the golden streams which through
The valleys glide.
He hears the music of the great and solemn sea,
And overlooks the huge old western wall
To view the birthplace of undying melody."

NEVADA, CITY OF FOUR HILLS, GOVERNMENT SEAT NEVADA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

John W. O'Neill
(Hydraulic Parlor No. 56 N.S.G.W.)

NEVADA CITY DIFFERS FROM Ancient Rome in one particular at least, whereas the city by the Tiber sat on seven hills, Nevada City finds four sufficient. Situated in a natural bowl in the mountains, surrounded by the foothills of the Sierras upon which grows the finest stand of second-growth timber in the world, this government-seat of Nevada County of close to 2,000 souls looks serenely down from an elevation of 2,500 feet to "the great Valleys of the Sacramento and the San Joaquin."

Some time in September 1849 the first habitation was built on the site of what is now Nevada City by Captain John Pennington, Thomas Cros and William McCaig, and a month later Dr. A. B. Caldwell built a log hut on the site of the present Washington schoolhouse and here opened the first mercantile establishment of what was destined to become a thriving mining community.

The town was first known as "Deer Creek Dry Diggings" or "Caldwell's Upper Store" until March 1850, when an election under Mexican law was called for the purpose of selecting an alcalde. A Mr. Stamps who, with his wife and sister and family had arrived in the fall of 1849, was elected. There were 250 votes cast, and on the day of the election it was decided to change the name of the camp. "Nevada" was chosen. It means "snowy" in Spanish, and was doubtless chosen because of the fact that the winter before had been one of deep snows. The selection has proved unfortunate, as later-day experience has shown loyal residents of Nevada City and Nevada County, because of the fact that several years later our sister state on the east was named "Nevada," and Nevada City and Nevada County have become associated with that state to the extent that many believe our city and county are a part of Nevada State.

The winter of 1849-50 was an exceedingly severe one, snow falling to the depth of several feet, and it found the hundreds of miners who were working the placers in the near-by streams ill prepared for it. The newly-built roads soon became impassible, and prices of provisions jumped to almost prohibitive demands.

In May 1850 rich deposits of gravel were found in the hills to the north of the town, and thousands of miners came as a result and the population increased rapidly. This brought about a change in the city government, and the authorities at Marysville [Yuba County], the county seat, ordered an election of justice of the peace to supplant the alcalde. A man named Olny, who had been secretary of state in Rhode Island, was elected and he had ways of his own when it came to dispensing justice. He died of tuberculosis a few months after his election, and in his dying hours asked that the "boys" take what money he had after paying funeral expenses and, as he expressed it, "have a jolly good time with it." This same spirit was typical of the men of that time.

The discovery in the gravels of the hills north of the town bearing high gold values, caused a stampede to that section, where a new town, called "Coyoteville," sprang up, lived its short life and became a memory when the gold was all worked out. The town got its name not from the coyote, but from the manner of mining, which consisted of digging shallow shafts or running short drifts, taking out the rich gravel and leaving holes that resembled the burrows of animals.

Nevada City has, in the course of its existence, had several forms of municipal government. In the summer of 1851 an election was held for officers of the newly-formed city created by special act of the Legislature. There were elected a mayor, ten aldermen and a large number of other officials. The first mayor was Moses F. Hoit. His administration, however, was destined to be short lived, for in less than a year the people demanded a change. The Legislature came to their relief, and the law creating the city was repealed, the officers ousted, and an $8,000 indebtedness which they incurred was never paid.

The city government has since operated under different enactments of the Legislature, but it is now being governed as a city of the sixth class, with five councilmen who select their presiding officer, who is designated "mayor," a clerk who is ex-officio assessor, a chief of police who is ex-officio tax collector, and other officials. The present council consists of R. J. Bennetts (mayor), A. Seaman, Fred C. Worth, C. R. Murchie and Wade Armstrong. George H. Calanan is clerk, Mrs. Emma Foley treasurer, and W. G. Robson chief of police.

The city owns its own water distributing system, profits from which pay a large part of the expense of the city government. Water comes from the mountain areas and frequent tests made by the University of California have shown it to be almost one hundred percent pure. No disease germs have ever been found in it.

The Pacific Gas & Electric Co. had its beginning in Nevada City. The first organization was known as the "Nevada County Electric Power Co.", with its plant on the South Yuba River five miles from this city, water power coming from a dam farther up the stream. Its first office was in Nevada City. Later the "Bay Counties Power Co." was organized, took over the "Nevada County Electric Co." and built a power house at Colgate, on the Middle Yuba River twenty miles from this city, and from this power house was constructed the first long-distance power transmission line in the world, taking power to San Francisco. The Bay Counties Power Co. was absorbed by the Pacific. The first gas plant was established in the late fifties by Amariah Pierce. It was located in the lower end of Coyote street, and was operated for more than fifty years, when it was dismantled and gas now comes from a plant near Grass Valley.

Benjamin Blanton was the first postmaster of Nevada City. The postoffice was established early in 1851, near where the Nevada County Court House now stands. The city became then and has since continued to be the distributing center for mail to all surrounding towns.

Upon the establishing of the Nevada County government early in 1851 an election was held to determine the location of the county seat, and Nevada City won out over Grass Valley and Rough and Ready. The latter, now just a small village, came within eight votes of being declared the seat of county government.

The first court house, a wooden building, was destroyed in the fire of 1856. The next was of two stories, with the first story of stone and the upper story of brick. This was destroyed in the fire of November 8, 1863. Later the county rebuilt the court house, and purchased near-by lots on which wooden buildings had been erected, as a protection against another fire. To this building was, in 1900, added another story of brick, constituting the court house building of today.

Like all small mining towns, Nevada City has suffered from a number of disastrous fires. The first was on May 11, 1851, and the entire town of about 250 buildings was wiped out. July 19, occurred what is known as the "big fire of '56," which wiped out practically the entire town, including the court house and other public buildings. Ten lives were lost, seven of them people who took refuge in brick buildings, believing them fireproof. November 8, 1863, another big fire occurred, destroying most of the business section, with the court house.

The city now has two active fire companies: Nevada No. 1, organized June 12, 1860, and Pennsylvania No. 2, organized June 13, 1860. They constitute one of the most modern fire departments in the state. The city also has a firealarm system. The water system is capable of supplying fourteen large streams of water at the Plaza at one time, under 180-foot pressure.

One of the greatest disasters in the history of the city was the breaking of the Laird dam on Deer Creek, six miles above the town. The water came down the narrow stream with torrential force, flooding the lower part of the city and destroying a hotel, a theater and other buildings, and causing $50,000 damages.

The first church organized in Nevada City was the Congregational. Rev. James H. Warren was the pastor, and the organization was effected September 28, 1851. It was a small house on Main street built of shakes. Later a brick building was constructed and used by the church until it disorganized about twenty years ago. Of other churches organized in the early fifties, three remain today.

The city has a free library, the building having been dedicated in 1908. It is the successor of the Nevada Library Association and the Odd Fellows Library, and many of the 10,000 books now on the shelves were handed down from these original libraries. Almost from its beginning, Nevada City has had fraternal societies. The Masonic was the first, Nevada Lodge No. 13 having been organized in November 1850. Next was the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, organized in November 1853.

Nevada City has a splendid school system, with the elementary department housed in the Washington school building, and the high school. The latter, destroyed by fire April 6, 1931, was rebuilt. There are 300 pupils in the elementary schools, and 200 in the high school.

Nevada City is situated on both sides of Deer Creek, which flows through the city from east to west. Little Deer Creek makes its confluence with the larger stream in the lower section of the city, and farther south is Gold Run. In the early days all these streams yielded large quotas of gold to the miners who flocked here. Across Deer Creek are three bridges. The largest, now known as the Galt bridge, was built in 1862. It was a suspension bridge, but owing to faulty construction collapsed in June of that year when a heavy ox-team was crossing. It was rebuilt, and remained in use until 1895, when the present steel bridge was erected. The Main and the Broad streets bridges are also of steel construction.

The city has always had splendid newspaper service. The first paper was the "Nevada Journal," established in 1851. Later the "Nevada Democrat," "Gazette," "Transcript" and other papers were established. The "Transcript," the city's first daily, was established September 6, 1863, and continued publication until absorbed by the "Nevada County Miner" in 1900. None of the papers established in Nevada City are now being published. The "Morning Union" of Nevada City and Grass Valley, printed in the latter city, covers the field, and circulates throughout Nevada County and in southern Sierra County. The "Nevada City Nugget," published twice a week, is the only other newspaper.

Nevada City is a modern little city, with hotel, theater, schools, business buildings, churches, library, paved streets, gas, electricity, splendid water, sewer system, sanitarium, and other features that are not always found in cities much larger in size. While mining has been its chief support for many years, it is finding other sources of income. Its fine climate—with winters that are not severe, summers that are not hot, health conditions that are of the best, is bringing here many summer tourists as well as permanent residents.

It is a distributing center for a wide area extending into southern Sierra County. It is the terminus of the Sacramento, Auburn, Grass Valley state highway, which connects with the Yuba Pass highway to Sierra County points and into the State of Nevada. This highway is through the most beautiful scenery in the world. The Tahoe-Ukiah highway also extends through this city from Ukiah on the west, connecting with the Victory highway to Lake Tahoe on the east. The city has an active Chamber of Commerce, with Fred F. Cassidy, prominent merchant, as president, and W. H. Griffith, experienced promotion man, as secretary. The headquarters are in the Elks Building, where a splendid display of Nevada County products may be found.

In conclusion, Nevada City bids the delegates to the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West convening in Grass Valley a hearty welcome, the typical welcome and hospitality that have come down from the Pioneers. The people urge the delegates to visit this city, get acquainted with its citizens, and investigate its possibilities for the establishing of "homes among the hills," where health and happiness reign supreme.

(DR. T. RICARDO.)

I wandered through the graveyard
Of this once lively town;
I read the tombstone names
Of Pioneers who gained renown.

I've seen them in their vim and prime;
Seen them up, seen them down;
Seen them smile, seen them frown;
Seen them hue in red this "has been" town.

They came for gold. They got it!
Some kept the gold they found,
But in their wake none did take
An ounce beyond each grassy mound.

"QUEEN OF THE SIERRA" NEVADA CITY

Edward C. Uren
(Mining Engineer.)

NEVADA CITY DATES ITS EXISTENCE from October 1849, when a Dr. A. B. Caldwell built a store near Gold Run, a tributary of Deer Creek, which passes almost through the center of the city. By the end of 1850 there were more than 250 buildings and the town was growing rapidly. Gold Run was well named, for it is claimed that the first placer miners who worked the bed of the stream cleaned up as much as a Troy-pound of gold in a day's work, which would represent in currency about $200. The first habitations were located on American Hill, on the west flank of the city, and the accounts of the first public hanging mentions the fact that fully 4,000 people were gathered here to view the spectacle. The site of the scaffold was the highest part of the hill; the victim being brought from the jail with a team and going through the ordeal with true frontier courage.

In 1856, Nevada City had its own flourmill capable of turning out 150 barrels of flour daily, and for several years this mill produced around 15,000 barrels yearly. It possessed a tannery which turned out about $2,000 worth of leather yearly, most of which was used locally for harness and sole leather, for Nevada was at this time the distributing point for many mountain towns and a great amount of teaming and freighting was carried on. In 1867, two daily papers were published here—the "Gazette" and the "Transcript."

The town was destroyed by fire four different times: in 1851, 1856, 1858 and 1863, but each time was rapidly rebuilt. After the fire of 1863 it was agreed that the streets were entirely too narrow and crooked, so they were laid out with what at the time was considered proper lines for modern needs. But the leading citizens of the time could not, of course, foresee the coming of the automobile and modern transportation. They lived in an era of rollicking, bustling good times; of spending and of pleasures of varied degree. Their community life was quite different from what we know today because they, figuratively, had to stay "put." They couldn't jump into a machine and go to outside points on the spur of the moment, because even a trip to Grass Valley, four miles distant, took about forty minutes, and thirty miles meant a whole day behind horses.

And yet, I have often wondered if the citizens of those days didn't get more real enjoyment out of life than we do today. It was but natural that the stay-at-home conditions of the times created more intimate friendships, better fraternalism and a more-active civic pride than exists in these dizzy times, when the ambition of the average human seems to be to spend most of his time away from home. It is true there was gambling, and the saloon was the most popular meetingplace, but I do not believe, indeed I know from my own remembrance of the latter days of pioneer life, that there was less delinquency among minors, that there was less petty crime, and that justice was usually more swift and certain than it is today.

Situated at an altitude of 2,500 feet and surrounded by evergreen hills of pine, spruce, cedar and oak, the city is as charming a spot as can be imagined. It has an excellent supply of pure mountain water fed by the snows of the high Sierra. Its reservoirs are 250 feet above the plaza and as many as fourteen fire streams have been playing at one time from its water mains, affording an ideal system of fire protection.

While the district is decidedly a mining community, it produces an abundance of the finest fruits, among which the Bartlett pear stands out in exceptional quality. Apples, plums and cherries do well at this altitude, and grapes have a much higher sugar content than those raised in the lowlands. Nevada County, in fact, used to produce annually from 10,000 to 20,000 gallons of wines which compared very favorably with the best wines of France and were sold as high as $2 per gallon by the cask.

The new Tahoe-Ukiah highway wends its way for four miles up the slopes of Harmony Ridge, in sight of the city, toward Truckee and the lake region. A most impressive sight of the city is gained from the higher elevations along the route, particularly at night. The ski course is situated nine miles above on the highway at an elevation of 4,200 feet. It is a matter of but twenty minutes ride to go from the usually snow-free streets of Nevada City into from three to four feet of snow in winter.

The thoroughness with which the early placer miner worked the main streams and creek bottoms of the surrounding country in search of the yellow metal is astonishing. Go where you will, anywhere within this area, on any ravine, and you will find evidences of walled-up rock and creek debris which has been overturned in an effort to reach the bedrock.

After the loose placers of the streams had been relieved of their gold, attention was directed to the ancient river channels—those old streams which derived their burden and their values from the ice age. One of them whose rugged scars are seen by all who enter Nevada City from the south, crossed 150 feet over the lowest part of the present Deer Creek basin and passed under the lava to the north of the city. It left large bodies of gravel along the edges to be washed by the hydraulic process, and the first hydraulic mining in Nevada County took place within, or close to, the north city limits on East Broad street.

That the oldtimers did not know at first what the origin of these deposits were is obvious from a quotation from the old "Nevada City Transcript" under date of January 4, 1865, which states: "The lead is of unexplored width, never found above or below certain elevations, and has a decided dip to the north. It averages 30 feet in thickness and the pay dirt about five." These old channels ran nearly east and west, and the first work done on them was apparently along the south rim, so that as they drove through this rim the bedrock dipped toward the lowest part of the trough. Later they found a corresponding rise toward the north rim. When the lava overburden became too deep to handle by hydraulicking, drifting was resorted to, and just north of the Manzanita hydraulic pit the channel has been literally honeycombed with stopes, which in the old Nebraska produced over $2,000,000 within a small area, being one of the richest placer diggings in the state.

Following the depletion of the placers attention was directed to the quartz veins of the district, which were very numerous. The first mill was built on the Gold Tunnel claim, within a quarter-mile of the business part of Nevada City, in 1852. In 1861 a mill was erected on the Murchie mine, which is now—seventy-two years later—being operated by a company of New Yorkers. The Murchie ores have their principal values in the sulphides which are now treated by flotation with an almost perfect recovery. The gold values could not be saved by the old amalgamation process.

Along the so-called "contact" west of the city, where the granite intrusion has thrust through the slate, the Champion and Providence mines were operated over a period of seventy years, and to a depth of 3,000 feet. There were 140 stamps dropping constantly down the creek and 300 men were employed. These old properties are again under option, and they will undoubtedly later be brought into production after a lapse of twelve years in idleness.

Nevada City Basin occupies an area of about fifteen square miles, and in the numerous veins which exist within it, it is safe to say that practically any and all of them contain pay shoots at some point. A good example in proof of this contention is the Hoge mine, one of the most successful and prosperous mines in this district. Starting on a ledge of but a few inches in thickness in the red, oxidized topsoil, at 300 feet it was a veritable bonanza with four to six feet of highly mineralized ore where the overlying surface gives no indications whatever of the riches beneath.

There are many properties idle today which were worked at a profit to a depth of 100 or 200 feet sixty or seventy years ago, when steam power, inefficient pumps and hand drilling only were available. The custom mill retained all the sulphides as a matter of practice; and in many mines the sulphides contain the greater proportion of the values. These properties were not abandoned by their owners or leasers because the values gave out, but rather owing to the handicap of the times. Some of them have a great deal of merit, and with modern flotation can be brought into efficient production.

Just what effect the gold embargo is going to have on gold mining is at the moment problematical, but it would seem that as gold is the very foundation of government credit not only here, but the world over, the effect will be to place gold at a premium, and if such a condition comes to pass, then Nevada City is destined to see an era of prosperity such as has not been known since the '50s.

HYDRAULIC
THE ALWAYS CO-OPERATING

(Compiled by Dr. C. W. CHAPMAN, at The Grizzly Bear's urgent request.)

ALTHOUGH THE NUMBER 56 DOES NOT suggest an early date nor a pioneer rating, yet it should be borne in mind that the first growth of any movement is likely to be rapid. So it was with the organization of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Hydraulic Parlor No. 56 of Nevada City can be fairly included in that first rapid growth of the Order. It was instituted February 27, 1885, by Grand President John A. Steinbach. Fred H. Greely of Marysville No. 6 was Grand First Vice-president at that time. He is today the senior living Past Grand President, and he still holds the full measure of our affection and esteem.

Nineteen interested native sons met together in the very same hall which has all these years been headquarters for Hydraulic Parlor and determined to institute a parlor in Nevada City.

VERNE E. GLEASON, President.

DR. C. W. CHAPMAN, Recording Secretary.

Seventeen of them were present at the second meeting, and were initiated and granted a charter. LeRoy B. Johnson was the first president, and W. T. Morgan the first secretary. The charter remained open for signatures until fifty-four had been enrolled. There are, after forty-six years, seven of Hydraulic Parlor's charter members still on its rolls—William M. Richards, charter junior past president; J. F. Colley, charter financial secretary; C. W. Chapman, Marcus M. Baruh, Frank T. Nilon, George J. Hothersoll and Levi Kendrick. George A. Black, another charter member, is now affiliated with Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116.

Several names were proposed for the new Parlor, among them that of the chief industry which maintained Nevada City and the surrounding communities. Hydraulic mining, which had its birth within the corporate limits of Nevada City, was at that time being assailed with anti-debris injunction lawsuits, and as a gesture of loyalty to home and loved ones the name "Hydraulic" was chosen.

Hydraulic Parlor has been continuously active, rarely failing a regular meeting. It strongly advocates hewing close to the line and making the Order distinctly patriotic and historical in character. Imbued with civic pride, it has frequently been the moving spirit in public-welfare undertakings, and on numerous occasions the community has looked to Hydraulic and to Laurel Parlor No. 6 N.D.G.W. to conduct its major affairs, either of a social or a business nature.

Hydraulic Parlor contributed sixty-one, two-fifths of its membership, to the American forces in the World War. Its service flag contains four gold stars, four silver stars and one silver star traced with blue. The Parlor remitted dues for all members during their period of service, and kept them eligible for benefits.

It was Hydraulic Parlor that started the fund for the Pioneer monument at Donner Lake, Nevada County, with a subscription of $100. It set that pace because it was specifically the Native Sons and the Native Daughters who should pay the tribute. The sentiment to pay tribute to the sacrifices made by the Pioneers is similar, and is typified by the historic "Lone Grave," located within the jurisdiction of Hydraulic, and the Parlor is endeavoring to fulfill its duty by fostering this enterprise.

Hydraulic Parlor has twice been host to the Grand Parlor, once in 1887 and again in 1898, both sessions being held in Nevada City. The Grand Parlor of 1887 consisted of 147, including delegates and officers. It was entertained at an expense of but $863.45, financed as follows: proceeds from a public ball, $563.00; subscriptions of Hydraulic Parlor members, $135.50; deficiency supplied from Hydraulic Parlor funds, $164.95. Carl B. Schwartz, now but one month deceased, was the Parlor's president then, and Dr. C. W. Chapman was then, as he is today, the recording secretary. At the 1898 Grand Parlor, consisting of 239 members all told, Hydraulic Parlor's delegates opposed limiting membership in the Order to those born in California prior to 1900 and their descendants born in California. They also opposed the adoption of a permanent meetingplace.

Hydraulic Parlor has had the distinction of providing from its membership three grand officers: D. E. Morgan and Fred L. Arbogast, who served several terms as Grand Trustees, and jovial Joe V. Snyder, who was, at the time of his passing, a Past Grand President. Its delegates have also, in many cases, served on important Grand Parlor committees.

It is the proud privilege of Hydraulic Parlor this year to serve, as helpful neighbor, with Quartz Parlor No. 58 of Grass Valley, which is host to the 1933 Grand Parlor. It is in small measure a return for many like favors rendered, and for nearly half a century of cordial and fraternal pooling of interests by the two Parlors.

The present officers of Hydraulic Parlor are: Verne E. Gleason, president; Arthur W. Davis, senior past president; Frank Davis, junior past president; Walter W. Watters, first vice-president; Raglan Tuttle, second vice-president; Leonard C. Foote, third vice-president; Dr. C. W. Chapman, recording secretary; Miles D. Coughlin, financial secretary; Thos. G. Richards, treasurer; R. A. Eddy, marshal; R. L. P. Bigelow, C. J. Scheemer, C. G. Sweeney, trustees; E. J. Baker, inside sentinel; E. J. Kilroy, outside sentinel; Walter H. McLeod, organist.

rearing. Go into any county where children have been placed for adoption, and the citizens will tell you that they have known boys and girls who have reached the age when it can be said of them that they are a credit to their foster-parents, to their county, and to California. Other citizens will go farther than that, and point to a second generation of healthy, normal children on their way to good citizenship,—your Central Committee are "grandparents now."

Unquestionably, one will find criticism here and there. A friend may not have been given a baby when a member thought he should have one. A child may not have developed as those who are interested or responsible expect him to. Some of the local committees may forget the prerogatives of the Central Committee in their responsibility for the placing and supervising of every child. Some may question the need of the required number of workers, or the salaries paid, without comparing them with those of other social workers in the same field. But no one seems inclined to attack the standards or the character of the work that is accomplished, and everyone agrees that caring for the homeless child is a fitting obligation for the men and women of California to take wholeheartedly and enthusiastically upon themselves.

When conquering Caesars, flushed with pilfered pelf,
Would placate plebes, for love of show and self,
They showered gold from gilded equipage,
As we do now—but call it patronage.

When feudal barons, home from raiding ride,
Would scatter largesse thru the countryside,
They shared the booty from their brigandage,
As we do now—in party patronage.

In modern politics or war's turmoils,
Still to the victor must belong the spoils;
What is the difference, any place or age,
If it be plunder—or just patronage!

"QUEEN OF THE YUBA"---DOWNIEVILLE

Ross F. Taylor
(Downieville Parlor No. 92 N.S.G.W.)

DOWNIEVILLE! TO THE CALIFORnian the very name is fraught with romance. Gold, adventure, violence, comedy and love, the camp-followers of pioneer boom days, have more than filled the history of this amazing eighty-four-year-old California town, and more than in any other camp of the placer mining region are the evidences of the days of gold still spread before the eyes of the visitor. For Downieville has never become "civilized." The same old stone buildings that housed the first businesses of the Pioneers are still huddled along her crooked main street, looking with disdain at the few plate-glass fronts that have failed to modernize the ancient thoroughfare.

Downieville is old. The first miners arrived in the summer of 1849, and found here on the forks of the Yuba the richest spot on that unbelievably rich stream. The town began to grow immediately. For a few months it was known as "The Forks of the Yuba" or the "Forks." It was not until 1850, when the four populous "flats" along the stream were consolidated into one town that the name "Downieville" was adopted. Thus did the metropolis of the "northern mines" honor her discoverer and founder, Major William Downie, Pioneer, miner and historian, who was the first White man to plunge his gold-pan into the waters that flow through the town. Within twelve months, five thousand men were wresting a fabulous living from these waters, and in population Downieville was one of the first seven towns in California. Two alcaldes ruled her courts. Scores of saloons and dancehalls lined her narrow streets. Two newspapers dispensed the news of the world to the hundreds of lonely miners late from the "east."

In 1852, the rapidly growing community began to feel the isolation from Marysville, the county-seat of Yuba County, of which Sierra County was then a part. Seventy miles by rough trail down the Yuba was too far to travel to the seat of justice, despite the fact that the stream was said to be so thickly populated that news could be carried from Downieville to Marysville by word of mouth in less than one hour. So, in April 1852, Sierra County, with Downieville as the county-seat, was carved from the mother county. For one year the hall of justice was the famous Craycroft saloon. In 1853 the three supervisors of the county ordered the building of a court house. D. G. Webber undertook to put up the building for a few dollars under $13,000, and in the summer of 1854 he had completed it. It was not until 1855, however, that the supervisors ordered the county court moved into the new building. With but few alterations, this old court house still houses the superior court of Sierra County—the oldest court house in California still in use.

By 1856, the population of the new county had reached a huge figure. That year 5,404 votes were cast for president. In Downieville, fourteen attorneys were practicing, and six physicians were busy with the ills of the rough mining town. Visitors from Los Angeles County will please be advised that in that same year, 1856, the village of Los Angeles supported but eleven lawyers and four doctors, and the entire county of Los Angeles, now the most populous in the Golden State, cast but 1,377 votes for president. Alameda County did but little better, so the relative importance of the roaring "Forks of the Yuba" may well be imagined.

Through the turbulent sixties, the prosperous seventies and the booming eighties the town roared on. Three fires swept her clean, excepting for the few stone buildings that still stand, sole survivors of a hectic past. But no mere fire served more than to retard for a brief space the young city. Each time she arose from her ashes better built than before. Each time her loyal miners returned again to their diggings, pouring their golden streams into the coffers of the nation, building toward the $200,000,000 that has been credited to Sierra County.

Then came the late '80s, and the injunction. And the town that had defied the fire demon and sneered at floods bowed before a catastrophe greater than anything she had ever before been required to meet—the throttling of her great hydraulic mines by legislation. This was Downieville's deathknell. But a day ago, her hills were crumbling before the streams from a hundred giants,—stripped to the bedrock for the gold that lay mingled with the earth. Then,—silence. But a day ago, scores of prosperous mining camps held the homes of care-free miners and their families. Then,—solitude.

The "Queen of the Yuba" never recovered from the blow dealt her only industry. Men by the hundreds left the stricken town. Building after building closed the iron shutters. Downieville's former glory had faded. Let it not be supposed that the town became deserted. Hundreds engaged in branches of mining other than hydraulic remained, and still remain, happy dwellers in a happy land. But the old Downieville, that once was reckoned with in the world of finance and politics, was no more. The resumption of hydraulic mining has done much to draw investors again to this region of gold; modern highways have brought their hundreds to see and to exclaim over this famous old camp. All that has left Downieville is her once great population. The spirit of '49 is still here; the same buildings are here, the same friendliness, the same gentle lawlessness lives in the hearts of the sons and daughters of the Pioneers.

Today, the visitor from the outside may see in Downieville the ghost of 1850. Even if the highway leading from Grass Valley fifty miles to the Sierra County town led through a drab waste the trip would be worth while. But it is made doubly interesting by the beautiful scenery that spreads lavishly on both hands all along the fifty delightful miles. The three historic forks of the Yuba River, the old mining towns of North San Juan and Camptonville along the route, the Depot Hill hydraulic mine in operation nearly eighty years, at the very roadside just within the borders of Sierra County, make the trip one not soon to be forgotten. And, a brief two hours from Grass Valley, the visitor swings around Cannon Point and looks down upon Downieville. World-traveler though he may be, he has never before had such an introduction to a village. No description could even begin to do it justice—it must be seen; and it will never be forgotten.

Among the interesting sights offered the visitor are the eighty-year-old court house, with its historic court-room; the gallows upon which two murderers of the four legally executed in Sierra County were hanged; the hydraulic diggings reaching to the very edge of the court house square, where more than $5,000,000 in gold was mined; and the ancient plant of the "Mountain Messenger," the third oldest weekly newspaper in California. The "Messenger" was not originally published in Downieville, but it has been a Sierra County institution since 1854. The site of the bridge where the Spanish woman was hanged in 1851 still attracts visitors to whom the recital of the regrettable lynching is new.

The ancient fire-carts, new in 1858, and then the pride of Downieville's fire department; the old fire-bell; the St. Charles Hotel, the oldest business in Downieville, with the rambling old front on Main street unchanged for seventy years; the tiny old churches and the fire-scarred stone buildings, hold the interest of all who love the memory of early California. Visitors may look from the bridge to the old Tin Cup Diggings, where in 1850 each of four partners received for his share of the day's work, a tin cup level-full of gold dust.

In the museum of the Native Sons and Native Daughters, housed in a stone building of forgotten age, have been gathered many relics of Down-leville's past in a most interesting exhibit. Let the Californian of the south, the bay or the great valleys lay aside for a few hours the cares of 1933 and return to 1853. Go back eighty years in the twinkling of an eye, and when you return again to your busy modern cities, depression will seem less real, business cares less heavy. ADMISSION TO SISTERHOOD STATES the fertile valleys of the Sacramento and San Joaquin stretch for hundreds of miles to north and south, while southern California is golden in wealth and unrivaled in progress. To the east, rising from the valleys, the lofty, snow-capped Sierras gather the life-giving waters of winter, which are stored in canyons and ravines, and in summer released to fertilize and beautify the plains below. Great power plants also gather the electric forces, conserved by the waters of these mountains, and distribute them to the myriad industries which have sprung up throughout the State.

Orange and lemon groves, fruitful orchards, boundless fields of grain and alfalfa, dairy and stock farms are seen on every hand. Herds of the finest bred cattle and flocks of sheep graze o'er valley and hillside, and here have been sired the fastest race horses of the world. Splendid forests of redwood, pine, spruce, fir and other timber clothe the mountain sides, while the magnificent sequoia gigantea, the largest tree and the oldest living object in the world, has for thousands of years lifted its green boughs to the bluest of heavens. No country excels California in the number of well-paved highways, nor do roads anywhere open up more beautiful vistas of coastline, valleys, hills, mountains, streams and lakes. In value of farms and farm products and orchards, and in the percapita wealth of the people living therein, California excels all other states. With the growth of agriculture, manufacturing and commerce have kept pace. Within the manufacturing districts of San Francisco and Los Angeles the yearly value of goods produced has reached a figure of approximately $2,500,000,000, while in the field of commerce the total value of cargoes, foreign and domestic, shipped each year from the ports of these two cities exceeds even that figure.

Over and above all this, however, we place the loyalty of her citizens. Our flag protects the home, the factory and the workshop, the sailor on sea and the man who toils on land; it floats above our schools and universities; learning finds a refuge beneath its folds and knowledge and invention go with it to the bounds of the earth. It reflects the character and nobility of American citizenship. The enemies of organized government, those who preach the overthrow of law and order by force and terrorism, the communist and the anarchist, should find no home on the soil of California. We want none here but loyal men, the lovers of one flag—the American Flag!

For our splendid inheritance of free government, gratitude must be aroused in the hearts of the citizens of this land. The young men and young women in every university, college and school of California should be taught that it is a great privilege and blessing to be an American citizen, understanding and appreciating what constitutional liberty and representative government have done for America. It is for this purpose that the sons of California have associated themselves in a fraternity [the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West], and Admission Day is a day upon which to recall to memory the Pioneers, to pledge ourselves anew to the defense of the Constitution and law and order, and to the crushing out of treason, disloyalty and terrorism in this land of ours.

"FRATERNITY HAS NOT FAILED, NOR WILL IT FAIL, SO LONG AS LOVE, DEVOTION AND FAITH EXIST!"

Anna Mixon Armstrong
GRAND PRESIDENT N.D.G.W.

A HELPFUL EXPERIENCE IS TO pause occasionally and take stock of any enterprise in which we may be engaged, and balance our accomplishments against possible failures; and, from the balances thus cast, point the way for the future.

This is a necessary procedure in commercial affairs, and is equally important in fraternal. In our retrospective review of our Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West we perceive certain signs that indicate a marking of time, while other indications point to a much brighter record. I shall briefly consider both aspects.

The far-reaching industrial condition, where depression laid its heavy hand upon enterprise, has had its effect upon all fraternal organizations, ours among the rest. Little growth in membership may be noted, but growth in fidelity and spirit has been outstanding, which, after all, is the important matter.

A need for helpfulness to those whom circumstances have embarrassed and saddened, has accentuated and quickened a sometimes latent consciousness of mutual dependence.

Out of this reawakened and revivified innate spirit of human kindness has budded, blossomed and fruited a wonderfully close tie of sisterly concern among our membership, evident in every Parlor of our Order. Verily, adversity has its compensations!

This spirit of true fraternity leads me to express the opinion that the suggestion of some to make of our Order a mere historical society, stripped of those fraternal ties which bind men and women into closely allied cults, would have been a real calamity under the recent situation in which we have been placed.

To comfort, to soothe and to care for our own, is an inherent instinct. To know and feel that these Native Daughters are our own, creates a desire to co-operate with and for the well-being of the whole. Fraternity has not failed, nor will it fail, so long as love, devotion and faith exist!

We welcome the aid of all those who are adopted sons and daughters of California. Their interest in our history and traditions need not suffer, simply because California's daughters by birth elect to maintain a family relationship. Family life holds closely to its own, but it extends the welcoming hand to all who seek its friendship.

Let us maintain our Order on the very highest fraternal plane it is possible to attain. Then are we honoring those Pioneers whom we revere.

The projects of our Order have not suffered during these unsettled months. It would appear from the very fact that unfavorable conditions prevailed, girded our members to extra efforts to "carry on." Their response to every appeal has been most heartening to the officers of the Grand Parlor. In no instance have our humanitarian projects been allowed to suffer. The unflagging interest, state-wide, has been an inspiration that has carried over the hard places all those charged with authority.

Veterans welfare work has had a deeper personal significance than ever before. If money was lacking, then was individual service more pronounced and intensive. After all, the man or woman, hospital bound, gets more real benefit and pleasure from personal contact and heart sympathy than from the few cents or dollars contributed, essential as they are. A kindly word, a friendly handclasp, will roll away the cloud of desolation as will nothing else! A magazine, an interesting book, a handmade convenience of some sort, how cheering they are. Our Daughters have stressed that sort of work this year. They have been happy in doing it, they have made others happy by doing it.

Our work for homeless children is outstanding among all like efforts in our State. Real homes have been found for real children in scores of instances. Imagine a purely historical society in the role of child welfare. To our fraternity, this is one of the most cherished projects.

MRS. ANNA MIXON ARMSTRONG OF WOODLAND, GRAND PRESIDENT N.D.G.W.

Women's hearts are animated by the same sense of responsibility as men's, but it goes further; there is a maternal instinct that sanctifies the home, that sets it apart as a shrine, as the holy mecca from which shall radiate the influences that make for progress and the happiness of the human race. Our Order is large enough of heart, earnest enough of purpose, and virile enough in energy to accept, as a part of its creed, the care of veterans and of children and, at the same time, continue in its accepted work of assisting in the preservation of pioneer landmarks, traditions and sentimental lore. In fact, we are firm in our belief that we can succeed in all our purposes far better as a fraternity than as a historical society.

Our State Home in San Francisco stands as a monument to the energy and loyalty of our entire membership. It was a mighty financial undertaking, but the enthusiasm of its proponents was not to be denied, and now it stands a finished product, substantial, imposing and fully paid for. It is the center of our activities whence our Secretary keeps in touch with each Parlor, where homelike surroundings are afforded those of our members who, through misfortune, may find solace and comfort during the down-hill time of life.

A portion of the Home is also dedicated as a real abiding place for younger members who are circumstanced to pay their way. These young women have mostly come to the metropolis from interior points to seek congenial and remunerative employment, but through lack of acquaintance are, to that extent, dependent. In the Home they find a splendid environment and are afforded every bodily comfort. The Home is a fine adjunct of our work.

It may not be generally known that our Order has, by purchase, acquired a tract of redwoods in Humboldt County. It is forty-six acres in extent and lies contiguous to the famed Redwood Highway, one of the most noted thoroughfares in America. These immense redwood trees, the oldest living things on earth, stand now dedicated to the memory of the Pioneer Men and Women who laid the foundation on which has been builded our State of California.

The members of our Order are also deeply interested in education, and have been a factor in promoting the proper observance of "school week" in every community in which a Parlor is located.

We are also maintaining and sustaining three college scholarships in the State, one at Mills College, one at the University of California at Los Angeles, and one at the University of California at Berkeley.

Because of this activity of our Order, a number of deserving young women have become equipped to go out into the state and impart knowledge and good citizenship to others. The stressful times have not been allowed to interfere with this important purpose of our Order. The progress of these girls is watched with the keenest interest by all members of the several Parlors.

The preservation of the landmarks of early California is stressed in our ritual, and actively practiced by our fraternity. To perpetuate the sentiment and reduce to print as much as possible the ancient lore and song of the mining camp is not neglected. In fact, a number of our members are making that their major activity. In a number of places in the Mother Lode country are located museums where have been accumlated numberless articles of pioneer day interest. Most of these museums are the result of interest manifested by members of our Order.

Especially are we interested in the old Spanish missions given to us through the religious devotion of the early padres. Every year each Parlor contributes of its funds to assist in their rehabilitation and preservation. We look upon them as a glorious heritage, and are proud to join with other forces in saving them for posterity.

Our Order is ever active in marking places of historic interest. We have marked scores of such places up and down the State with suitable bronze plaques properly inscribed and permanently set. It has been my pleasure this year to thus mark a dozen or more such places. All this work is accounted one of our major projects, and no doubt will continue as the years go by.

In my travels over the State during the year on my official visitations I have been

CALIFORNIA HAPPENINGS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE FIRST CARLOAD OF CALIFORNIA deciduous fruit was shipped to the East from Vacaville, Solano County, June 12, 1883, in a ventilated fruit car attached to a passenger train. The fruit was expected to ripen during the five-day trip, and to be put on the market in edible condition. The event was a newspaper headliner. Refrigerator cars and trains came later.

C. W. Ayers, Fresno County farmer, attended June 11 a meeting in San Francisco of the State Railroad Commission called to hear arguments, pro and con, on the proposed reduction of railroad freight and passenger rates. He began a tirade which one of the commissioners attempted to stop. So, Ayers drew from his pocket a generous assortment of overripe eggs and leveled them at the commissioner. The bombarding farmer was arrested, but not prosecuted.

During the first fortnight of June, thermometers in the valleys of the state went to 105 degrees in the shade.

The cornerstone of the new State Fair Pavilion at the corner of Fifteenth and M Streets, Sacramento City, was laid June 5. Preceding the ceremony there was a large parade, one conspicuous division of which was made up of the Society of California Pioneers and Sacramento Parlor No. 3 N.S.G.W.

Stephen H. Meek, a pioneer citizen of Siskiyou County, made the following statement: "The McCloud River was first explored by John McCloud, a factotum of the Hudson Bay Company, in 1828. It was named after him by myself and the other trappers in 1830." An effort was being made by a number of newspaper editors of the day to change the name of the river to "Cloud."

The English dam, built on the boundary line of Sierra and Nevada Counties to impound slickens and furnish a water supply for the mines below it on the Middle Fork of the Yuba River, broke June 18. Several miners were drowned, and everything movable on both banks of the river for forty miles was swept away by the 100-foot-high flood which rushed along at ten miles an hour. The flood reached Marysville, Yuba County, in eight hours, but was there reduced to a hight of four feet. It broke a levee near Marysville, and flooded 5,000 acres of grain.

This dam, said to be the largest in the United States, was 400 feet long and 100 feet high. It cost $100,000 to build, and the flood resulting from its breaking did property damage estimated at $300,000.

The California and Oregon Railroad, being constructed north from Redding, Shasta County, cut through a bed of gravel on the bank of Backbone Creek, June 20. An oldtimer prospected the gravel and in two hours panned $50 in gold dust.

A vein of gold-bearing quartz found this month in the Sierra east of Fresno City had a vein of moss agate paralleling it.

Harry Sutton uncovered a rich quartz vein one mile from the American River, opposite Folsom, Sacramento County.

Billy Miner, a Butte County prospector, found a pocket on Butte Creek from which he took $6,000 in gold dust in two days.

An epidemic of cholera morbus caused the deaths this month of a score of Red Bluff, Tehama County, children.

Steamships arriving during the month from China brought $2,000,000 worth of opium, all consigned to Chinese merchants of the state.

Counting the "cash on hand" in the Alameda County treasury, a shortage of $50,000 was discovered. Where the missing dollars had gone, the county treasurer did not know.

William Jones was hanged in the Lakeport, Lake County, jail June 15 for the murder of his son-in-law during a drunken quarrel in May 1882. Before the noose was adjusted, he delivered a temperance lecture.

Chinese laborers on the California and Oregon Railroad to the number of 1,700, grading the roadbed north of Redding, Shasta County, struck for higher wages June 25, and the railroad temporarily stopped its climb along the Sacramento River. They were being paid $1.25 a day, but wanted "two bittee" more. The company issued the ultimatum, "no workee, no eatee," meaning that unless the Chinks went back to work, no grub would be hauled to them. They ate rice, principally, and they had to get it by rail.

Eugene Casserly, in San Francisco since the '50s, died June 14 at the age of 61. In 1868 he was elected United States Senator from California.

The stage from Ione to Jackson, Amador County, was stopped June 3 by a lone highwayman who took the expressbox, containing about $1,000.

Daggett, San Bernardino County, burned June 5, a business block in San Mateo City was destroyed by fire June 15, causing a loss of $20,000, and Fall River Mills, Shasta County, burned June 24, causing a $40,000 loss.

Fire in San Francisco June 20 destroyed a four-story brick building at the corner of Post and Kearny streets housing the city's leading drygoods emporium and other firms. The loss was estimated at $600,000.

Wm. Keeley was sunstruck while haying near Altamont, Alameda County, June 7, and died.

An infuriated bull on the Colonia Rancho in Ventura County fatally gored Mrs. Michard Kauffman, June 4.

Robert Shearer, 13-year-old lad employed in a minor capacity in a Truckee, Nevada County, sawmill, was June 20 caught in a flywheel making 200 revolutions a minute, and whirled to his death.

Two Red Bluff, Tehama County, editors, Abraham Townsend and Charles F. Montgomery, began a campaign of personal abuse in their respective weekly newspapers. June 10 they met accidentally in a saloon, and Montgomery shot and fatally wounded Townsend.

Anson Stone, a lad gathering mussels at Angel Point, near Santa Cruz City June 18, was engulfed by a huge wave and drowned.

Mrs. M. A. Davis, attempting to extinguish a grass fire near her Rocklin, Placer County, home June 12, was fatally burned.

impressed at the responsibilities the Parlors have accepted from their localities. Particularly is this true in the smaller communities. Just as an instance, I have in mind a small Parlor in a mountainous district. There the Parlor takes the place of the usual chamber of commerce. It promoted a town library, and has seen it finally located in a fireproof memorial building of attractive architecture and its shelves filled with a wealth of good books; it takes the place of the usual parent-teacher association for the schools; it promotes and directs annual Arbor Day exercises, and has been instrumental in planting many trees; it supports a garden club; it assists a non-denominational religious organization; in fact, it is the leading force in its locality. It is not dictatorial, it is merely helpful. I go to this length in this instance so that you may the more readily understand just what I mean when I say, that a Native Daughters Parlor is an asset to every community where it is located!

We feel that our fathers and mothers, back through the line of ancestry, have placed a torch in our hands that is to light the way for these present-day efforts of ours which, in turn, may write history of worthwhile import for those who come after us.

We, as Native Daughters, believe that California is still in the building, and that we of the present time are numbered among its builders. We believe that character must be wrought into the edifice, and that the fellowship of fraternity must adorn it. We believe that religious faith, without sectarianism, must be maintained. We believe that the laws of our State should be respected. We believe that society should be maintained upon a high plane.

For the attainment of these things, we believe organization is required, and with all our hearts we believe the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West is peculiarly well fitted to take a commanding place.

Fraternally, we are drawn closely together, and thus, in a spirit of true and friendly comradeship, we are better equipped to accomplish our aims than under any other type of organization.

Under our banner, through our ritual, with our signs and even with our passwords, we expect to carry on all the projects in which we are interested. As time goes on and the need arises, we no doubt shall add others that need succor.

For those things we stand firm, and for them shall we continue to strive!

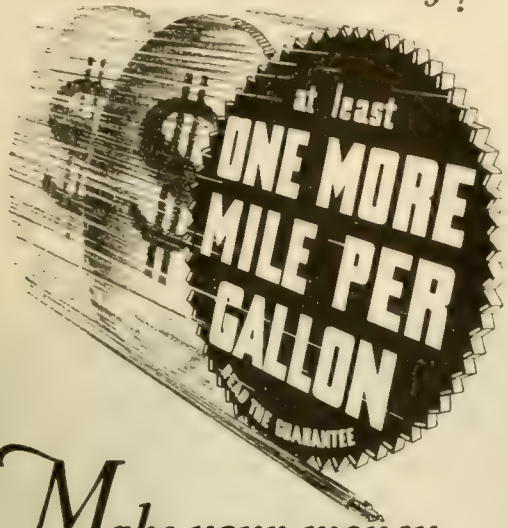
BIRDS

(With apologies to Joyce Kilmer.)
(ESTHER CRONE.)

I think that I have never heard
A song as sweet as from a bird.
A bird that sits up on a pole
And carrols forth his very soul;
Upon whose head the sun and rain
Does not disturb his glad refrain;
A bird that flirts his floppy tail
And from our chimneys upward sail.
His riot runs through all the night
Until you wish he'd take his flight.
Songs are made of note and word,
But it takes an egg to make a bird.



"Imported" Walnut Cut Down—One of California's oldest known "imported" walnut trees was cut down recently at Fiddletown, Amador County, says the "Amador Ledger" of April 27. The seed, from Missouri, was planted in 1864 by Ann Harrington, who drove an oxteam across the plains to California. The tree measured six feet at the base.

REVIEW OF GRASS VALLEY N.S.G.W. GRAND PARLOR

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE FIFTY-SIXTH GRAND PARLOR, IN session at Grass Valley, Nevada County, May 15, 16 and 18, went into the annals of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West as one of the most outstanding, from every viewpoint, in several years. The surroundings were ideal, the arrangements were perfect in every detail, the entertainment was excellent and, above all, the spirit of unadulterated fraternity held sway, both within and without the meetingroom. Grand President Seth Millington of Colusa Parlor No. 69 presided throughout the Grand Parlor deliberations.

The reports of grand officers and committees dealt mostly with matters which heretofore have been given publicity in The Grizzly Bear. A review of the Fifty-sixth Grand Parlor follows:

GRAND PARLOR LAW CHANGES.

Art. V, Sec. 1 amended by changing the designation "Historiographer" to "Grand Historian."

Art. VI, Sec. 4 amended to create a "Grand Parlor Insurance Fund to insure all officers of the Subordinate Parlors required to be bonded by the Constitution or by the bylaws of any Subordinate Parlor."

Art. VIII, Sec. 3, Sub. 3 amended to increase the personnel of the Publicity Committee to ten.

Art. VIII, Sec. 3, Sub. 4 amended to increase the personnel of the History Committee to fifteen.

Art. IX, Sec. 12 amended to provide that no bylaw or amendment to a bylaw of a Subordinate Parlor "shall take effect until approved by the Grand President. If not approved by the Grand President the Board of Grand Officers . . . may, . . . suspend the operation or the taking effect of said bylaw until the next session of the Grand Parlor. In the event of such action taken by the Board of Grand Officers said bylaw shall be passed upon by the Grand Parlor and shall not be of any force or effect until approved by a majority vote of the members of the Grand Parlor."

SUBORDINATE PARLORS LAW CHANGES.

Art. III, Sec. 1 amended by adding: "except in Parlors having a membership of twenty-five or less, three members in good standing shall constitute a quorum."

Art. VI, Secs. 4 and 5 amended to provide that the financial secretary and the treasurer "shall be bonded with the Grand Parlor Insurance Fund in such sums as the Parlor may require."

Art. VI, Sec. 15 amended to require of the outside sentinel: "He shall remain at the outer door during initiations, opening and closing ceremonies. He may take a seat in the body of the Parlor near the inner door when requested by the president directly or through the inside sentinel so to do."

Art. VIII, Sec. 1 amended to provide: "every beneficial member hereunder entitled shall be paid, . . . benefits at least equal to the sum of his monthly dues and charges during the continuance of an illness."

Art. XV amended by adding a new section, No. 11, thereby creating a "Committee on California Institutions whose duty it shall be to (1) actively engage in the promotion of the general welfare of the communities to the end that the State may be benefited; (2) aid, assist and encourage local beneficial enterprise, and for that purpose meet and commune with officials, organizations and their representatives engaged in that work."

Art. XVII, Secs. 2 and 3 amended to provide that no bylaw, rule, regulation or standing resolution, or any amendment thereto, shall become effective until approved "in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 12, Art. IX of the Constitution of the Grand Parlor."

BUDGET AND PERCAPITA TAX.

The Finance Committee presented a budget totaling $29,125, and to raise that amount recommended a $1.10 percapita tax. The Grand Parlor, however, increased the budget by making appropriations of $1,000 for a history fellowship, $500 for relief of Past Grand Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, injured in an auto accident while serving as Grand President, and approximately $1,050 to assist in financing the Admission Day, September 9, celebration at Santa Rosa, Sonoma County. These additions required a fifteen-cent increase in the percapita.

The percapita tax, therefore, was fixed at $1.25, payable thirty-five cents June 1, 1933; thirty cents September 1, 1933; thirty cents December 1, 1933; thirty cents March 1, 1934. Among others, the approved budget carries these appropriations: organization fund, $3,600; special relief fund, $1,000; landmarks fund, $500; oriental exclusion fund, $250; mileage, Grass Valley session, $4,000.

OTHER BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

Ukiah, Mendocino County, was selected as the meetingplace of the Fifty-seventh (1934) Grand Parlor.

One thousand dollars was appropriated for a "Native Sons of the Golden West Traveling History Fellowship at the University of California," with a proviso that in making the selection preference be given members of the Order.

A proposal to permit "non-ritualistic members" in Subordinate Parlors was referred to a special committee, which recommended a new class of membership, namely "associate," with numerous restrictions as to privileges, in addition to the "beneficial" and "non-beneficial" classes now provided for. After much debate, the recommendation was voted down, decisively.

Fines levied against Ramona No. 109, Tracy No. 186, Dolores No. 208 and Sutter No. 261 were remitted, and the proposal to allow Compton No. 273 a supplies credit of $150 was referred to the incoming Board of Grand Officers.

The charters of Chico No. 21 and Cahuenga No. 268 were revoked, and the surrender of the charter of Rainbow No. 40 was approved.

The granting of charters to six new Parlors—Los Banos No. 206, Visalia No. 19, University No. 272, Compton No. 273, Willows No. 255 and Turlock No. 274—was approved.

The report of the State of the Order Committee, which was unanimously adopted, commended Grand President Seth Millington for the great service rendered during the past year. It concluded with: "We recommend to the delegates that each return to his Parlor with the determination that his Parlor is going to grow in membership during the year 1933. . . . In these trying times, it is our opinion that the majority of the Subordinate Parlors have held up very well, and we hope that with that same determination to carry on, the Parlors will continue their good work in the interests of our Order."

At the election of grand officers May 18, 352 ballots were cast, and the following were selected:

To complete the list of grand officers, Grand President Seawell, just previous to adjournment, announced the appointment of Leslie Maloche (Arrowhead No. 110) as Grand Organist, and Chester Gannon (Sunset No. 26) as Grand Historian.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Regretting the deaths of Past Grand Presidents Dr. Charles W. Decker and William J. Hayes, and directing that engrossed copies of the resolutions be presented the families of the deceased.

Favoring the continuance and the proper maintenance of the California Nautical School, and petitioning the State Legislature "to let no temporary period of restricted governmental activity interfere with the project in view of its obvious importance to the State of California, and to our National Government whose earnest objective is to attain a position of commercial supremacy amongst the nations of the world."

Extending the heartfelt thanks of the Fifty-sixth Grand Parlor "to the Committee on Arrangements, Quartz Parlor No. 58 N.S.G.W., Hydraulic Parlor No. 56 N.S.G.W., Downieville Parlor No. 92 N.S.G.W., Manzanita Parlor No. 29 N.D.G.W., Laurel Parlor No. 6 N.D.G.W., Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce, Grass Valley high school band, the people in general of the City of Grass Valley and of Nevada City, and all those who contributed entertainment; also, for the numerous courtesies extended the officers and delegates of this Grand Parlor and guests accompanying, and especially to the press of the City of Grass Valley for the publicity accorded."

GOODWILL GREETINGS.

Telegrams and letters of greetings from several fraternal and civic organizations, and individuals were received, among the messages being the following resolution adopted by the Knights of Pythias Grand Lodge, in session at Santa Rosa, Sonoma County:

"Whereas, The Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West is in convention assembled during this week from May 15th to 19th, 1933, at Grass Valley, California, and whereas, this Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias, also in convention assembled, has for the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons the most sincere regard and fraternal feeling, and is in hearty sympathy with its desire to preserve and foster the romantic history and traditions of our glorious state, and whereas, it has come to our attention that the Honorable Emmet Seawell, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of California, for whom we entertain a sincere affection, is in line for promotion to the highest executive office of the Grand Parlor, and whereas, this Grand Lodge is desirous of testifying to its high regard both for the Grand Parlor and for Justice Seawell, now, therefore, be it and it is hereby

"Resolved, That we transmit to Justice Seawell and the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons this resolution of our esteem and good-will; that we extend to it every good wish for its continued success in fostering, for the people of our great commonwealth, a love for its history and traditions, that we wish for its members in common with all our citizens a speedy return to prosperity and happiness, and a steady growth of fraternal feeling; that a copy hereof be spread upon our permanent records, and that Brother Ira F. Thompson, Grand Tribune, be designated to convey our message of good-will to the Grand Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West."

The annual Grand Parlor Memorial Session, held the afternoon of May 15 and opened to the public, was presided over by Past Grand Lewis F. Byington. The program included:

Angelotti (Mount Tamalpais No. 64), former Grand Trustee, by Grand First Vice-president Justice Emmet Seawell; eulogy, W. Joseph Ford (Glendale No. 264), former Historiographer, by Henry G. Bodkin (Hollywood No. 196); eulogy, former members Grand Parlor, by Past Grand Fletcher A. Cutler; eulogy, all deceased members of the Order, George F. McNoble (Stockton No. 7).

A NEW YEAR
UNITED ACTION ASSURES SUCCESS

"PERMIT ME, THROUGH OUR OFFICIAL publication," writes Justice Emmet Seawell, Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, to The Grizzly Bear editor,--"to extend a word of greeting to the rank and file of our membership. The Fifty-sixth Grand Parlor has closed, and all the delegates and members-at-large are taking stock as to what was accomplished. I am sure that the session marked an important epoch in our Order's history. Some of the important events have never before been equaled by any previous session of the Grand Parlor. The entire membership of the Supreme Court of the State of California, and the Governor of the State, took the pains to pause in their busy and important duties to pay tribute to our Order. This is a recognition of our place in the affairs of the State, which should be appreciated by every member of the Order—an honor without precedent in the State's history of fraternal organizations. Important matters of legislation were earnestly discussed, and while you and myself may have been disappointed in the wisdom of the adoption of some particular measure, nevertheless we bow to the wisdom of the majority and are as sincerely behind the legislation that was adopted as though we had sponsored it.

"I want to say to the membership at large that every member stands on an equal footing with every other member, so far as an opportunity to serve the interest of the Order is concerned, and there will be no class preference shown in any respect. The right to recognition will be extended, so far as I can see it, to those who have by service earned such right.

"We have begun not 'another' year, but a NEW year. Let our enthusiasm for the reasonable possibilities of accomplishment carry us over any temporary obstacles which may serve to block our progress. We are by right and in fact the favored state organization of California. Our advancement into a wider field of influence and usefulness is entirely in our own hands. I call upon the membership to quicken their interest in the welfare of the Order!

"Let every officer who has been appointed for the first time, or re-appointed, awaken to the fact that he is not to perform his duties in a perfunctory manner merely, but he is to enter upon his duties with enthusiastic effort and go forward valiantly in extending the scope of our work. I want to emphasize the importance of entering into the service to which each is assigned in a spirit of an earnest purpose to do the work better than it has ever been done before! The employee who has too anxiously watched the hands of the clock approach the noon hour, or the quitting hour in the afternoon, has never received a promotion at the hands of his employer. The man whose interest has been keenly engrossed with the thought of how much he can accomplish has always been selected for promotion. So it is in every activity of life. The brother who has given earnest service to the Order will advance to the front lines, while the officer who has adopted the 'get by' policy is doomed to fade from the picture.

"We have just begun to make our Order felt in the affairs of the State. We are in a position to go rapidly to the top. By real united action we can easily increase our membership by hundreds during the NEW year. This can be done by beginning at once! It will not do to wait until the three months preceding the meeting of the Grand Parlor. Plans should be laid early. Delay is always dangerous. The Secretaries occupy important offices in the local Parlors, and the success of the Order is with the local Parlors and by no means with the Grand Parlor.

"I expect to give to the Order all the time that it is possible for me to give. I must have the united strength of all Parlors, if we are to carry forward. Brothers, I believe that the time is now at hand for a glorious revival of the spirit which moved our Pioneers to conquer what seemed to be the unconquerable. It was their enthusiasm that won the western empire. We can, and we should, succeed! The basic principles of our Order are right. All we need is men to carry our message to the people. If every Parlor should do what it is capable of doing this NEW year, there can be no question as to a vastly increased membership.

"Let us all pull together for at least one year, and realize the results that may be accomplished. Commence now!"

LANDMARKS REPORT.

The Historic Landmarks Committee reported a contribution of $500 toward the purchase price of the General M. G. Vallejo home near Sonoma City, acquired by the California State Park Commission. "This is, in fact," says the report, "the first real acknowledgment of the great service rendered to this commonwealth by General M. G. Vallejo."

The report also advised that "California, through the State Park Commission and public-spirited citizens, will shortly come into possession of San Juan Plaza, facing San Juan Bautista Mission, located in the old town of San Juan [San Benito County]. It is the one remaining Spanish plaza, typical of those of the early days of California, which maintains its ancient aspect, surrounded on four sides by historic adobe buildings."

The committee will use its best endeavors to have the California State Park Commission make emergency repairs to a noted landmark, the property of the state, sadly in need of attention—the Pio Pico mansion at Whittier, Los Angeles County, the home of the last Mexican governor of California, a portion of which was built in 1826.

NOTES OF THE SESSION.

On behalf of Ukiah Parlor No. 71, Grand First Vice Justice Emmet Seawell presented to the Grand Parlor a redwood gavel, and it was accepted by Grand President Millington.

Past Grand Fletcher Cutler delivered a brief address, extolling the work of the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Central Homeless Children Committee.

The Past Grand Presidents, at their annual reunion dinner, arranged to mark with a suitably inscribed monument of Nevada County granite the grave of Past Grand Jo V. Snyder in the Greenwood Cemetery, Grass Valley.

Tuesday, the Historic Landmarks Committee marked with a bronze plaque the grave of John Rollin Ridge in Greenwood Cemetery. The inscription reads: "John Rollin Ridge, California Poet. Author of 'Mt. Shasta' and other poems. Born March 19, 1827, in Cherokee Nation, near what is now Rome, Georgia. Died in Grass Valley, October 5, 1867. In grateful memory by Historic Landmarks Committee, Native Sons of the Golden West, May 16, 1933." Speakers included Past Grand Joseph R. Knowland, committee chairman; Grand President Millington; E. G. Kinyon, managing editor "Morning Union;" President Frank Rowe of Quartz Parlor; Past Grand Lewis F. Byington.

United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags were presented Thursday to the high and the grammar schools of Nevada City. Dr. C. W. Chapman (Hydraulic No. 56) introduced Past Grand Byington, who made the presentation address. The flags for the high school were accepted by Warren Chapman and Ruth Rector, and those for the grammar school by Craig Davis and Margaret Chapman. Similar stands of flags were also presented the high and the grammar schools of Grass Valley, Leo V. Youngworth (Ramona No. 109) making the presentation address.

Wednesday, the Downieville-bound caravan stopped at Fiddle Creek to dedicate the "Cannon of Brandy City Monument" to the memory of the "Pioneers of the Placers." District Attorney J. M. McMahon of Sierra County (Downieville No. 92) made the principal address, and with Past Grand Alison F. Watt of the Native Daughters accompanying at the organ, the assemblage sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

ENTERTAINMENT FEATURES.

No Grand Parlor was better entertained than the Fifty-sixth. Hospitality reigned supreme in the Grass Valley-Nevada City area. Quartz No. 58, the host Parlor, had the full co-operation of Hydraulic No. 56, Manzanita No. 29 and Laurel No. 6 N.D.G.W., and the citizens generally. The Native Daughters provided special entertainment features for the visiting womenfolks, and were their guests delighted with each and every event!

At the Monday night reception, James C. Tyrrell presided, and the speakers included Mayor M. J. Brock, Superior Judge Raglan Tuttle, President Frank Rowe of Quartz Parlor and Grand President Seth Millington, all Native Sons; President Mrs. Frank Rowe of Manzanita Parlor, Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong

The sessions of the Grand Parlor will be held daily in the Leamington Hotel, Nineteenth and Franklin streets, which has been selected as the official headquarters and where all the activities will center.

Resolutions proposing changes in the Grand Parlor Constitution will be presented as follows:

By Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, amending Art. III, Sec. 2 to provide that each Subordinate Parlor shall be entitled to one delegate at large and one delegate for "every seventy-five members."

By Californiana Parlor No. 247, amending Art. III, Sec. 5 to read: "No proxies shall be admitted to represent elected delegates, but alternates shall be elected who must possess the same qualifications; that the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes in the election for delegates, after the number of delegates are elected, shall be designated as alternate number one, and so on."

By Golden Gate Parlor No. 158, amending Art. X, Sec. 3, Par. 5 by providing that the death benefit will be paid on the demise of one who "has been a member of the Order for six months."

LosAngeles Parlor is also sponsoring these resolutions: "That the annual Native Daughter Home assessment be reduced in such amount as may seem meet with the financial condition of the Home, at the date of Grand Parlor, 1933." "That all salaries paid by the Grand Parlor be reduced ten percent." "That the Grand Parlor pay no more than fifty dollars per month for the rental of office space for the Grand Secretary."

Californiana Parlor is also sponsoring this resolution: "That the President of a Subordinate Parlor be empowered to appoint a Nominating Committee, whose duty it shall be to select a suitable corps of officers for the ensuing term, same to be submitted to the Parlor at time of nomination of officers; the selection of the Nominating Committee not to exclude members the privilege of nominating from the floor, if they so desire."

CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE.

By communicating with all the Subordinate Parlors and the many "rumored" candidates, The Grizzly Bear is enabled to announce the candidacies of several aspirants for Grand Parlor office honors. The list is complete, insofar as definite information has been received, but it is not complete if gossip be founded on fact. For, there are whisperings that every elective office, excepting the grand presidency and the grand vice-presidency, will have two, or more, seekers. LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

THE DEATH AT TULARE CITY, APRIL 22, of Mrs. Adriana Johnson-Almon,—whose likeness in later years is here presented—recalls some of the early-day personages of Los Angeles City. She was born here, on the site of the present City Hall, in 1850. According to Charles J. Prudhomme of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., well versed in the history of Los Angeles:

In 1833, Captain James (Santiago) Johnson, an English sea captain, brought the Guirado family—a brother and three sisters—from Guaymas to Los Angeles, and later married Carmen Guirado. Gertrude Guirado became the wife of Mamuel Requena, and Meves Guirado married Captain Alexander Bell. Among the children of Rafael Guirado was Maria de Jesus, who married John G. Downey, seventh Governor of California.

The children of Captain "Santiago" and Carmen (Guirado) Johnson were Adalaida, who married Francis Mellus; Anita, who married Henry Mellus, who came to California with Dana aboard the "Pilgrim;" Margarita, who married James H. Lander, and Francisco (Pancho) Johnson. Mrs. Almon, whose passing is here recorded, was a daughter of "Pancho" Johnson. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Glafira Hawvichrost of Tulare City.

BRIDGE LUNCHEON IN VERDUGO HILLS.

The lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. John Steven McGroarty high up in the green Verdugo hills will be the scene of a bridge luncheon, June 7 at 12:30 p.m., when Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. will be hostess to members and friends. Past President Gertrude Tuttle and a capable committee are in charge of the affair, which promises to be an outstanding social event. The funds derived will be used for Parlor activities. Those who have no means of transportation or have room in their cars are asked to call Mrs. Tuttle, RO. 2450, and make reservations with Mrs. George Parris, RO. 8022.

A large number of members attended a salad bridge May 17 at Balboa, when Grace Parlor No. 242 (Fullerton) was hostess at a delightful party. Mrs. Isabel Lopez Fages was appointed a member of a committee to make investigations at the ancient Pio Pico mansion, a number of Parlors having interested themselves in this valuable landmark. The baby adopted by Californiana, a fine youngster, has been named "Robert Californiana." Mrs. Lelia Tabor, chairman of the homeless children committee, selected the little fellow and will be the visitor at the home of his adoption. The Parlor has sent a letter of appreciation to Grand Outside Sentinel Hazel B. Hansen, felicitating her on the success of the homeless children benefit ball.

Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer was a recent visitor at the Parlor. She voiced her sentiments about the selection of proper officers, and gave valuable advice for the future conduct of No. 247. Dr. Elizabeth Sullivan of the extension department of U.C.L.A. and U.S.C., prominent teacher of philosophy and psychology and a member of Californiana, delivered an instructive lecture on "Psychology in Human Affairs" after the May 9 luncheon. Guests were President Mattie Gara of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, Miss Wilkins of Spokane, Washington, who plans to make her home here, and Deputy Helen Anderson.—O.L.

PRESENTATIONS.

Compton—At the April 25 meeting of Compton Parlor No. 273 N.S.G.W., President Leslie Packard, on behalf of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W., presented Compton with a Holy Bible, and on behalf of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., Ralph I. Harbison presented a map of California. A large number of visitors were in attendance from all neighboring Parlors, and among the speakers were Past Grand John T. Newell and Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer.

SPLENDID EFFORTS FOR NEEDY PRAISED.

Long Beach—Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., which is temporarily meeting at the home of President Eleonor Johnson, initiated three candidates April 20. Deputy Nellie Kline, a visitor, complimented the officers on their rendition of the ritual, and praised highly the splendid work being done by the Parlor for the needy. A shower was held after the May 4 meeting for Mrs. Leola Temby, who received many lovely gifts. The color scheme was pink and blue. Mms. Mary Stultz, Alice Waldow, Rosa Faust and Kitty Dillon constituted the committee in charge. Following nomination of officers May 18, refreshments were served by Mms. Stultz and Waldow. A benefit card party was held at the home of Mrs. Georgia Pierson May 26.

The Parlor's thimble club, which is busily engaged in making comforts, children's dresses and other garments for the needy, met April 26 at the home of Recording Secretary Bertha Hitt, May 11 at the home of Mrs. Alice Waldow, and May 25 at the home of Mrs. Johanna Reed.

PRIZE WALTZERS REWARDED.

The "hard times" dance sponsored by Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. was well attended, and everybody had a good time. First Vice-president Roger Johnson was the director of activities. A presentation was made to Marie Bandurraga and Frank Ziegler (Ramona No. 109) for their prize waltzing. Andy Stodel, off the chicken reservation for the occasion and overall-clad, was given a "hand." The old faithful "Twin Als"—Cron and Metz—dispensed punch.

BAZAR DECIDED SUCCESS.

May 17, Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. initiated a class of six young women who were much impressed with the ritual and the projects fostered by the Parlor. Among the speakers were Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer, who congratulated No. 124 on its splendid progress; Grand Outside Sentinel Hazel B. Hansen, Mrs. Lelia Tabor (Californiana No. 247) and the initiates. A letter of congratulations was sent John Steven McGroarty, California's new poet

$750,000,000 in 1932

In and out of the Port of Los Angeles last year over 6,200 ships sailed, carrying 20,000,000 tons of freight valued at $750,000,000.

That is an 800% increase in tonnage since 1912 when the breakwater was completed and "actual construction of channels and terminals commenced."

In 1912 thirty-six banks served Los Angeles; today fifty-five offices of California Bank bring the services of this large, metropolitan institution to thousands in Los Angeles, City and County.

Since 1903 California Bank, through good times and bad, has stood ready to lend money to sound business enterprises.

It will continue to do so.

laureate. During the closing Grand Parlor year members of the Parlor, under the guidance of Dolores Malin, have made pilgrimages to Los Angeles County landmarks. A very successful card party was held May 10; Peggy Ambler was in charge.

The May 24 bazar under the competent direction of Grace T. Haven was a decided success. Booths, artistically decorated, were conducted by the following: county store, Ella Steinbeck; cake, Adeline Waite, Mary McAnany; art, Evelyn Howell, Dolores Malin; apron, Ann Schiebusch; fish pond, Sophia Stewart; refreshments, Juanita Porter, Edna Trombatore, Louise McNary, Evelyn Trautwein; fortune telling, Ramona Thoroughgood; fancy work, Sali Joseph; checkroom, Edith Schallmo, Ruth Ruiz. An orchestra furnished splendid music for dancing.

Los Angeles' June calendar includes: 7th, potluck dinner, speaker and election officers. 14th, final party in the bridge tournament, Evelyn Trautwein, Ella Steinbeck, Grace Haven, Peggy Ambler chairmen. 28th, card party for clubhouse fund; Flora Holy chairman.

CONFIDENCE VOICED.

The oldtimers night of Hollywood Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W., May 8, attracted a goodly crowd, and the "new deal" refreshments were greatly enjoyed. First Vice-president Gene Murphy was master of ceremonies, and a pleasing program was presented. At a brief meeting prior to the show, the Parlor adopted a resolution voicing confidence in Raymond Haight, former State Corporation Commissioner.

Hollywood's June program includes: 5th, open meeting for eligibles. 12th, election of officers. 19th, class initiation in honor of President Henry G. Bodkin. The doors of Hollywood are always ajar for all Native Sons.

NATIVE TREES DEDICATED.

Glendale—Verdugo Parlor No. 240 N.D.G.W. preceded its May 9 meeting with a dinner in honor of Mothers Day. All the past presidents, headed by Betty Sanders, were in charge, and the mothers of the members were presented with corsages. Following dinner a splendid program was given, with Edith Dobson in charge. President Vera Carlson, on behalf of the Parlor, presented her with a beautiful basket of flowers.

May 13 a pair of cedar trees were planted in Fremont Park and dedicated to the present and the Pioneer Mothers and Fathers. These trees, which were accepted by H. Elwyn Davis of the City Parks Commission, were, when very tiny, brought from Grass Valley, Nevada County, by Ada Steele and were given by her to the Parlor.

May 18 a dessert bridge party was given at the Elks Club for the homeless children fund. It was a great success, with more than eighty in attendance. Gussie Anderson was chairman. May 21, Verdugo was hostess to Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. at the old Sanchez adobe on the original Verdugo Rancho. This is one of the oldest adobes in Southern California. Evelyn Wilson was chairman of the occasion.

OFF FOR CATALINA!

The stage is all set for the institution anniversary celebration of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. at Catalina, June 11. "All Californians at heart are supposed to be there," says First Vice-president Charles Straube, who is directing the affair. "Something doing every minute of the day. Make reservations with Secretary John V. Scott not later than June 7. Let us make this the outstanding Native Son and Native Daughter event of all time!"

June 2, Ramona will have an important meeting; re-financing will be the special order, and officers will be elected. June 9, initiation. June 16, monthly birthday dinner and entertainment.

Dan Q. Troy (Mission N.S.) of San Francisco was a visitor last month.

UNCOVERING GHOST TOWN CEMETERY RECALLS THE LONG, LONG AGO.

The grim relic of the heartaches and the shattered careers of a pioneer ghost town of Trinity County were recently brought to light, says the "Weekly Trinity Journal" of April 29, when the ruins of the cemetery of the once-prosperous, but long-obsolete and almost-forgotten, town of Ridgeville were uncovered. The mounds of seventeen graves were discovered, but only two had distinguishable markers.

These two had withstood the ravages of time, and their inscriptions bear mute testimony to the sorrow of a Pioneer Father and Mother, in the loss of two of their infant children. The inscriptions read: Frances A. Aber, child of F. T. and E. A. Aber, born October 6, 1852, died July 14, 1856. W. G. Aber, child of F. T. and E. A. Aber, born May 20, 1856, died August 24, 1857. Who the Aber family were, or what became of them, there is no other record.

Ridgeville, also known as Golden City, was at that time (1856) a lively, bustling camp, situated on Digger Creek, about two miles from Minersville, and boasted a population of 800 souls, and the necessary stores, hotels, saloons, etc., to sustain such a population. Most of the inhabitants were making a living working the rich, shallow diggings adjacent to the town, which were paying from $5 to $30 a day to the man. But the mines soon pegged out, and by 1860 the population had dwindled to 150. In a few short years the town was deserted, and its buildings left to decay. A few years later a forest fire wiped out all that remained, and the site grew up with brush. Recently the Trinity County Board of Supervisors decided to clear the site and, in co-operation with the forest service, fence the cemetery and preserve it for posterity, hence the discovery of these pathetic markers of three-fourths of a century ago.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

THRIFT AND FASHION ARE COMBINED when it comes to the new sports clothes which, this season, have become highly specialized. Sports clothes satisfy with even more thoroughness than ever the two great demands put upon them, to be efficient and to do flattering things to the wearer.

There are some combination frocks that might be used for golf or tennis, but the majority are made with their purpose definitely in mind, and, because they are so inexpensive, one can afford the luxury of feeling "dressed for the occasion," whatever the favorite sports. The flattering quality is obtained in the care with which the lines of the body are carried out. Exaggeration is permitted only if it suggests a slightly broader shoulder and so, narrows the hip. Otherwise, the silhouette is slim, although deceptively so, for inverted plaits are discreetly used and open out in action to give all the necessary freedom of legs and arms. An inverted plait is used at center back, and sleeves are slightly wider.

Jackets are a joy, and are handy to carry lipstick, powder and handkerchief in, for all can be accommodated. The fabric is dull dark silk, and is often trimmed with yellow. A new tennis dress is of crisp white pique. Particular attention has been paid to any demand for speed that might be put upon it. The skirt is plaited front and back, but the plaits start from a low-molded yoke. The neckline is high in the back as well as the front, so that the shoulders won't slip off at the decisive swing of the racket. The monogram adds a personal touch. After a hard game, a nice soft wool cardigan is perfect, and for decorative purposes a gay scarf is used. For that white linen suit, use a black, red and white striped cotton blouse and scarf, and tie the scarf under the chin in a pussycat bow.

A charming pajama set for house or beach is fashioned of seersucker, with checked effects in gay colors. A long coat accompanies the outfit, and is made of the same material. A combination both mannish and feminine is achieved when a young person wears flannel slacks and a snug-fitting blouse topped with a short capelet in a light shade.

Jackets, capes and swagger coats are all smart in white silk ensembles. It is a toss-up as to whether the jacket or the cape is smarter. To wear one of the swagger coats is to feel rejuvenated.

White is eternally new and eternally fresh, and this new, fresh and glorious feeling is emphasized by the new style features. Crepe and sheer ensembles are fagoted, and have exquisite lingerie touches. Pique, crinkled crepe and straw combinations contribute to the white mode.

Hats are ambitious to rise in the back, and do so in the most fetching manner. They are simply trimmed, light, summery types of great chic. We have the fine white toyo hats in the tailored mode for summer, and they owe their smartness to precision of design and attention to finishing details. The pointed alpine hat, that reminds of the time when one would laugh at the same, is now proving to be one of the smartest ideas. Its well-chosen companion, in the shape of a soft bag of woolen fabric, is finished with a gold metal bar. The bag is made of a most beguiling two-tone roughish mixture, and the hat also is made of the same.

Flattering hats are made of silk and cotton. Pique and linen hat have smartly stitched brims of various widths in self or contrasting colors. Sailors and turbans come in white pique, and natural, white, linen, navy, brown or black ribbons adorn them. You will find one a necessary adjunct to the summer wardrobe. Pique hats are worn with pique garments. Pique gloves in white may be depended upon to fit perfectly. Novelty meshes with ruffle trims, starched organdy cuffs, the mou quetaire and the pull-ons may all be had in a delightful variety.

Knitted costumes, utterly smart and exceptionally useful, of pure silk and angora can be worn happily in all California seasons. A selection of styles is presented, all combining a one-piece dress with a jacket. The colors are gold, lacquer, blue, green and brown. Gloves, hats and scarfs, all so important, must play their part. This season, the new exotic gloves are fashioned of every conceivable material and design.

A bright, spanking-new idea is the trick of making accessory sets of matching fabrics. Never have we realized how many intriguing things can be done with this and that. Ginghams combined with pique and linens are appearing in perky little sailor hats along with gauntlet gloves, handbags, flowers or maybe a cape to match. This smart assembling goes right around the clock, for you will find gloves made of the same printed silk as a dress, and perhaps a cunning little hat matching. In the evening you will see sets of things in organdy.

Organdy blouses seem more fetching than the last crisp white and pastel blouses. Gay tissue ginghams, equally smart, have frilly collars. Semi-tailored blouses of sheer silk crepe are dainty and cool for summer wear. Some have valenciennes laces and hand-drawn work. Necklines are designed to flatter the wearer and look well under a coat or jacket.

For anything so important as a graduation frock, what could be more flattering or so utterly adorable as the crisp organdy. Choose it in white or pastel, plain, embroidered or matelasse. One always looks well in a polka-dot suit. There is something particularly youthful in the new slenderizing ensembles, with the finger-tip jacket and the tailored frock, in navy or brown, with white dots.

One cannot tell now, by the material, the time of day or the place for which it is intended, and the same thing has happened to colors. The old familiar piques and linens, for instance, that you could depend upon finding in a limited number of delicate shades, now are made in dark, rich colors that widen their appeal and increase their smartness. Black pique is outstanding this year. We see it in beach clothes and for evening wear.

A wrap-around dress is designed for the beach, and has a short, impudent jacket. It is very broad shouldered, due to the two-tiered effect of the capelets, and gives a decided 1933 look. The dress is low-backed, and the blackness is emphasized by large white pearl buttons down the side, which mark the closing. Another black dress, of crepe, has a bodice of the newest string lace. The romance stirring black pique capelet is decorated by a corsage of stiffened crocheted flowers, and a white carded pique collar adds a flattering note. A black satin gown is designed along slender lines, and is topped by a frivolous bolero of black tulle, studded with pangle

Brevity is the rule for the little wraps, capes generally ending at the elbow line. Jackets fall no lower than the waist. Sleeves are rarely longer than elbow length. A floral frock, pink and white, is worn with a little wrap of shell pink organdy, with frilled circular sleeves.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

MARYSVILLE—THE PRINCIPAL event in this city's observance of Public Schools Week was the dedication, April 26, of Marysville's new primary school building, named Mary Covillaud in memory of the woman whose name is imperishably preserved in the name of the community itself. The ceremonies were in charge of Marysville No. 162, and the main speakers were Past Grand Esther R. Sullivan of the Native Daughters, and Past Grand Fred H. Greely of the Native Sons. Other speakers were Willard Roberts, Principal Walter Kynoch, Willard Will, and Mrs. Charles Sperbeck, president No. 162.

Past Grand Sullivan recounted the history of Mary Covillaud, one of the first women to come to Marysville, in 1847, before the town had been founded. She had come to California at the age of 16, in 1846, with the ill-fated Donner Party, and was taken to Sutter Fort first, and moving to Cordua Ranch, or New Mecklenburg, now Marysville, when nothing but an adobe building used as a trading post occupied the site. Marysville, said Miss Sullivan, was not named for Mary Covillaud because she was the first White woman to come here, nor because she was the most beautiful. It was her spirit of kindliness to the sick and generosity to the unfortunates that made her the beloved of the community, made up mostly of men. Past Grand Greely briefly reviewed the history of Marysville's public schools.

Band of Friendship Strengthened.

Etna—The older mothers of Scott Valley were honor guests Mothers Day at a pleasant entertainment given by Eschscholtzia No. 112. The program, directed by Grand Trustee Minna K. Horn, consisted of two choruses by a group of Native Daughters, words of welcome from Supervising Deputy Margaret E. Weston, readings by Gladys Young, Anita Tucker, Frances Kappler and District Deputy Lettie Lewis, vocal and instrumental numbers by Mildred Young, Margaret Pitman, Helen Lewis, Anita Tucker and Minna K. Horn. At the close of the program refreshments were served by Nancy Smith and a committee at tables attractively decorated with pansies, lilacs and tulips. Some of the Pioneer Mothers, at the request of President Laura Wolford, then entertained with interesting stories reminiscent of early days in Siskiyou County. With mutual expressions of pleasure in this annual reunion, guests and hostesses parted, the bond of friendship strengthened by memories of a happy afternoon.

Anniversary Celebrated.

San Diego—April 26 being the institution anniversary of San Diego No. 208, the past presidents of the Parlor entertained. Past Grand Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, charter past president, was the honor-guest, and on behalf of the Parlor and the past presidents club she was presented with gifts by Pearl Schachtebeck and Sarah Miller. "Souvenirs of Early California," the program feature, was participated in by Pearl Simpson, Rosina Hertzbrun, Elizabeth Case, Alice Damarus, Pearl Schachtebeck, Martha Klindt, Sofia Sharpe, Jane Florentin, Marion Stough, Irma Heilbron, Virginia Burke, Mabel Burgert, Elsie Frank, Ann Wood, Sarah Miller. Refreshments were served.

Honoring Dr. Heilbron, a reception was held at the home of Edith Barngrover the evening of April 25. May 10, the Parlor entertained the past presidents; games were played and refreshments were served. Complimentary to President Isabel Young, Doris Hoffner sponsored a bridge luncheon at her home May 13. Among activities planned for the near-future are a benefit for the homeless children, and an entertainment for the oldtimers. The Parlor is taking an active part in the restoration of El Campo Santo, one of San Diego's oldest cemeteries in which many of the earliest Pioneers were buried.

GRAND PRESIDENT'S OFFICIAL ITINERARY.

Woodland—Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong's June itinerary includes:

3rd—Deputies' luncheon, San Francisco.

4th—Memorial services, Golden Gate Park, San Francisco.

6th—Tamelpa Parlor No. 231, Mill Valley, official visit.

Mother of Indian Babe Remembered.

Alturas—Twenty-five years ago, when the newly instituted Alturas No. 159 was choosing a design for its official seal, the committee in charge, wishing to have a design typical of the locality, decided on an Indian papoose strapped in its dotjompme, to symbolize the birth of Native Daughter activity in Modoc County. Even at that late date, Modoc Indians were averse to being photographed, considering it a sign of bad luck, but a photograph was necessary for the engraver to copy. Finally a buxom mahala was persuaded to pose her baby. Whether there be any truth in the old Indian superstition may be a mooted question between the Paleface and the Redman, nevertheless the baby did not live long to enjoy further recognition from the Native Daughters. May 10 the mother, Emma Harris, died, a victim of "tick fever." Upon her coffin Alturas placed its floral tribute, in memory of the little babe whose form is stamped upon every official communication emanating from No. 159.

Alturas' contribution to Public Schools Week was an oratorical contest on California history topics. The first prize went to Iris Baldwin of Alturas, and the second to Katherine Wylie of Cedarville. A benefit picture show April 19 and 20 netted satisfactory returns. Maud Sloss is being felicitated on the birth of a daughter, Marilyn Louise; the Parlor presented a silver drinking cup to the little one. A social hour of bridge May 4 was followed by refreshments. The Parlor joined with the American Legion in observance of Memorial Day.

District Meeting.

Oroville—The district meeting May 6 of Butte, Glenn and Plumas Counties Parlors was largely attended. Mrs. Annie Skelly presided, and among the guests were Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong, Grand Marshal Gladys E. Noce, Grand Trustees Florence D. Boyle and Edna B. Briggs, Past Grands Carrie Roesch-Durham, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron and Esther R. Sullivan, District Deputy Ruth Brown. One candidate was initiated, for Gold of Ophir No. 190.

Grand President Armstrong gave an inspiring address, stating she was in the southland during the recent earthquake and that her faith in the fraternal spirit of the Order was there revivified. Mrs. Vivian Mahon sang "One Hour With You," with words to fit the occasion, and Mrs. Frances Forbes contributed flute solos. At the banquet-board, bedecked with roses, community singing was engaged in with enthusiasm.

Happy Pastime Delights Children.

Oakland—May 11, Piedmont No. 87 joined with Piedmont No. 120 N.S.G.W. in a celebration of Mothers Night at which the mothers of the members of both Parlors were guests. Each mother was presented with a corsage, and refreshments were served. Josephine Collins was chairman of the enjoyable occasion.

Piedmont No. 87 recently made a number of very interesting and attractive scrapbooks, which were distributed to sick children in the local hospitals by President Ella Mullen. The children were delighted with the books, and the members of the Parlor found the making of them a happy pastime.

Pioneer Women Guests.

Santa Ana—Twenty members of Santa Ana No. 235 motored to the Orange County Health Camp April 27 for a day's sewing—repairing blankets, socks and stockings for the camp kiddies—and accomplished quite a lot of work. At noon a covered-dish luncheon was served, and at the day's close the party went on a tour of inspection of the camp buildings and equipment. The Parlor has adopted a baby and named her Anna Mae, in honor of Grand President Anna M. Armstrong. Mae West and Margaret Hiskey will sponsor a series of card parties for the baby's benefit.

Fifty-one pioneer women of Santa Ana and vicinity attended May 8 the tea given annually by No. 235 in honor of the oldtimers. Mrs. J. R. Blee, the oldest guest, was presented with a lovely boquet. The thimble club met May 11 at the Balboa home of Lillian Gant. A citizenship class is scheduled for June and under the chairmanship of Matilda S. Lemon the Parlor, carrying out an annual custom, will present flags to the new citizens. A California history speaker will be provided, a musical program will be presented and dinner will be served.

Hearts of Gold.

Hollister—Copa de Oro No. 105 added a new name to its membership roll April 27, and following the ceremonies contests were held. Awards went to Kate Burdg, Marie Rackliff, Zelia Williams and Alice Perry. Deputy Edna Butterfield headed the committee of arrangements, which served particularly dainty refreshments, carrying out the pink and green color scheme in the "eats" as well as the table decorations.

The Parlor has adopted a homeless baby, and in honor of Past Grand Briggs she has been named Bertha Adele Briggs. The sunshine march at each meeting adds to the funds for the adopted little one. A recent Saturday afternoon a group of little folks, aged 5 to 10, styling themselves the Good Will Club, put on a circus, and at its conclusion marched to the home of Past Grand Briggs and gave her the proceeds, $1.30. The spokesman announced the amount was to be used for the benefit of the adopted baby. Copa de Oro members point with pride to this noble gesture, performed on the initiative of the kiddies themselves. Every cent of the contribution represents a heart of gold, and the instigators deserve warm commendation for their unselfish deed.

Pioneer's Grave Plaqued.

Sutter—The memory of Pioneer William G. Murphy of Donner Party fame was perpetuated in a plaque placed upon his grave in the Yuba City Cemetery April 29 by South Butte No. 226. Among the many in attendance at the ceremonies were Misses Lulu and Harriet Murphy, daughters, and Mrs. Harry Cheim, granddaughter, of the pioneer attorney of Marysville.

The program included: remarks, J. P. Colford; song, "America," audience; address, Past Grand Esther R. Sullivan; saxophone solo, "I Love You, California," Ivan Norris; presentation and unveiling of plaque, Mrs. Sadie Winn-Brainard; song, "The Star Spangled Banner," audience; remarks, Mrs. A. F. Beecroft, president South Butte; remarks, Miss Harriet Murphy.

Illustrated Talk on Mexico.

San Bernardino—Lugonia No. 241 celebrated its sixth institution anniversary May 10. Guests were members of Santa Ana No. 235 and Ontario No. 251, and Deputy Margaret Hiskey. President Noyes cut the birthday cake. Clever jig saw puzzles were the placecards. Later in the evening those assembled joined with Arrowhead No. 110 N.S.G.W. in listening to an illustrated talk on Mexico by Roscoe Goodcell. April 26 the Parlor observed Public Schools Week by having Margaret Erdt give a talk on art work in the public schools; Mary Johnson had charge of the program.

and Past Grand Alison F. Watt of the Native Daughters. Mmes. Jack Wolff and Gove Cehn charmed with delightful vocal solos, the Grass Valley Cornish gold miners' chorus pleased with several selections, and the Grass Valley high school orchestra's contributions were most commendable.

At the grand ball Tuesday night, the grand march was led by Grand President and Mrs. Seth Millington. Excellent music was provided.

The Wednesday outing in the high Sierra! Words are inadequate to describe that pleasure. God's gentle washing of the mountains but added to the gorgeousness of the unexcelled scenery. The caravan paused at Downieville, Sierra County, which had declared a holiday. There the Nevada City high school band entertained, lunch was served by Downieville No. 92, and the townspeople extended every courtesy to the visitors. By the writer, that glorious trip will never be forgotten, thanks to the guidance of Jack Wolff who, while not a native, is intensely interested in the wealth of history that abounds throughout the region traversed. Wouldst be inspired by countless works of Nature unscarred by human hand? Then hit the trail, winding along the forks of the Yuba through ghost towns of the departed but never-to-be-forgotten past, from Grass Valley to the Sierra Buttes!

The banquet Wednesday night was unique, in that six justices of the California Supreme Court—Schenk, Langdon, Preston, Thompson, Curtis and Seawell -sat at the festiveboard in compliment to the latter, who was elevated to the Grand Presidency. Judge George L. Jones was the toastmaster, and the speakers included Mayor M. J. Brock, Justice Ira F. Thompson, Justice John W. Curtis, President Frank Rowe of Quartz Parlor, Grand President Seth Millington, Past Grand Lewis F. Byington and Past Grand Fletcher A. Cutler. Vocal selections were rendered by Chester Prisk and Louis Hooper, and the Grass Valley high school orchestra favored with several numbers. On behalf of the Order, Grand First Vice Justice Emmet Seawell presented a silver service to Grand President Millington, who was also the recipient of a Nevada County gold nugget, presented by Quartz Parlor.

Chairman Loyle Freeman and the arrangements committee worked long and faithfully, and they have the commendation of all who visited Grass Valley for the Fifty-sixth N.S.G.W. Grand Parlor.

In Memoriam

GEORGE HAINES.

To the Officers and Members of Fresno Parlor No. 25 N.S.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of condolence and respect on the death of Brother George Haines, beg leave to report: that

Whereas, It being the will of Providence that our Brother George Haines should be called by death, thereby depriving this Parlor of one of its most worthy members, one who has been looked upon as a brother devoted unselfishly to the good of the Order and who has worked industriously in the promotion of the work and precepts of the Native Sons of the Golden West. We mourn his loss, but bow in humble subjection to that greater Power that dictates the destinies of all; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of Fresno Parlor No. 25 N.S.G.W., in regular session assembled, do hereby proclaim their sorrow over the passing of Brother George Haines, recognizing that in his death one of our most valued members has passed away, a void that will not, immediately, be filled in the ranks of the Parlor. To his dear wife and daughter we extend our heartfelt sympathy. And be it further resolved, that the foregoing preamble and resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and a copy thereof be sent to the widow of our deceased brother, and that a copy be published in The Grizzly Bear.

Respectfully submitted,

W. C. GUARD,
F. M. LANE,
C. B. HARKNESS,
Committee.

Fresno, May 19, 1933.

MARY KANE MULLALLY.

To the Officers and Members of Aloha Parlor No. 106 Native Daughters of the Golden West—We, your committee appointed to draft a testimonial of respect to the memory of Sister Mary Kane Mullally, respectfully submit the following:

Again our golden chain has been broken, and it is with deep sorrow we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, who has called from our midst our beloved member, Mary Kane Mullally. In her passing our Parlor has lost a most highly respected member, and a husband, a devoted wife.

Resolved, That we extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to her bereaved family, and further be it resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband and sister, that a copy in full be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted in P.D.E.A.,

GRACE DuPONT,
LURINE MARTIN,
GLADYS FARLEY,
Committee.

Oakland, May 20, 1933.

May 13, Lugonia sponsored a dance at Highlands. Several surprise features were introduced. Evelyn Shaddox was chairman of the arrangements committee. The Harmony Club, recently organized, is completing a flower garden quilt and other articles for the coming bazar.

Mothers Entertained.

Salinas—Aleli No. 102 entertained the mothers of its members May 11. A program under the direction of Mrs. W. J. Larkin included: welcome to mothers, Mrs. William Dodd; solo, Miss Henrietta Juhler; trio, songs mother used to sing, Nason sisters, Mrs. Louise Nason-Hatton, Mrs. Frances Nason-Leidig, Mrs. Rose Nason-Rhyner; "The Meaning of Mother's Day," Miss Josephine DeCarli; solo, Mrs. Frances Nason-Leidig; trio, "We Love You Truly," Nason sisters.

During the last number pansy corsages were passed to the visiting mothers. After the program all participated in the game of keno. Refreshments were served at tables prettily decorated with pink roses, carnations and sweetpeas by a committee headed by Mrs. Clara Kalar.

Interesting History Related.

Chico—Annie K. Bidwell No. 168 had a California history period April 27, and Mrs. Laura Anderson told of the coming to California across the plains in 1849 of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Long. They traversed the Lassen Trail, and at Vina, Tehama County, constructed a raft of green wood and traveled on it to Sacramento. Past Grand Carrie Roesch-Durham was a visitor.

A program May 11 in recognition of Mothers Day was presented by Grace L. Morrow, Katherine McEnespy and Margaret Hudspeth. The latter displayed a map of Chico, made by General John Bidwell, on which the triangle at First and Main streets is designated "Washington Square." Memorial services in honor of departed members were held at the Presbyterian Church May 28.

SUBORDINATE PARLORS BRIEFS.

Sutter Creek—Amapola No. 80 celebrated its thirty-ninth institution anniversary April 27. Mrs. L. L. Cuneo read the minutes of the Parlor's first meeting, held April 26, 1894. Delicious refreshments were served at tables beautifully decorated with iris.

Santa Barbara—Supervising Deputy Anna E. McCaughey and Grand Trustee Jane Vick recently visited San Luis Obispo, where they were entertained by San Luisita No. 108 and San Miguel No. 94 jointly. Miss McCaughey emphasized the importance of program and the carrying out of the principles of the Order, and Mrs. Vick spoke on the White House conference. The visit gave new impetus to the workers of the Parlors.

Modesto—The April card party of Morada No. 199 and Modesto No. 11 N.S.G.W. attracted thirty-two tables of players. Following the play refreshments were served, and then dancing was MOTHERS DAY AT N.D. HOME.

Mothers Day was observed at the N.D.G.W. Home breakfast Sunday, May 14. The dining-room was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, presented by Portola Parlor No. 172. Past Grand Dr. Mariana Bertola was the chairman, with Mrs. Agnes Curry as co-hostess. Many San Francisco, Marin and Alameda Counties Parlors were represented.

Speakers were Past Grands Bertola, Emma G. Foley, Margaret G. Hill, Bertha Briggs and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, the latter paying tribute to the Pioneer Mothers; Grand Trustees Anna C. Thuesen and Ethel Begley, Supervising Deputy Alice Lane, and members of the Grand Parlor Home Committee. Ethel Browning of Castro Parlor No. 178 delighted the guests with her golden voice.

GREATER DEEDS FOR CHILDREN PLANNED.

Inspired by the message of Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong in advocating the adoption of a baby by each Native Daughter Parlor, Alta Parlor No. 3 renewed its interest in the homeless children. At the suggestion of Grand Trustee Anna C. Thuesen, application was made for a baby, a Negro child if possible, and the Parlor is now the proud possessor of a fine baby boy of the desired race, Richard Hall. In addition, Alta has made liberal donations to this great work during the closing Grand Parlor year, and for next year greater deeds are planned.

SONS GUESTS OF DAUGHTERS.

Genevieve Parlor No. 132 N.D.G.W. was hostess to El Dorado Parlor No. 52 N.S.G.W. April 20. Greetings were extended by President Elvira Desmond. The following program was enjoyed: vocal numbers, Evelyn Denike, Alicia O'Day, Theresa Kendall and Ella Collins; specialties, Nora Schefflen; piano selections, Lillian Troy, Betty Marquis; community singing. Through the courtesy of Charles H. Spengemann, Grand Trustee N.S.G.W., music for dancing was furnished by the popular orchestra of Hesperian Parlor No. 137 N.S.G.W. Preceding the dancing delicious homemade refreshments were served by the hospitality committee, Carrie Kerwin, Evelyn Kilkenny, Mayme O'Leary, Edith and Gladys Joorisen, Kathleen Lagrave, Camile Jacobsen, Virginia Lynch, May LaSalle.

April 25, Genevieve held a whist for the Loyalty Pledge, and it was well attended. The Parlor anticipates completing its debt before the Grand Parlor convenes. A beautiful handmade quilt, thirty blocks of which were made by members of the Parlor, will be disposed of for the benefit of members who are unable at the present time to pay their dues. A penny march is held at every meeting for the milk fund of the Parlor. Plans are under way to raise funds for the homeless children.

MANY GREET N.D. GRAND PRESIDENT.

Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong paid an official visit to Dolores Parlor No. 169 N.D.G.W. April 26. Preceding the meeting a very delightful dinner was served. The meeting-hall, which was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, was filled to overflowing with over 300 members of the Order. The Grand President was escorted through a floral arch made by members of the newly-organized drill team, and was presented with a lovely shower boquet of talisman roses. The ritualistic work was presented in a most commendable manner by President Kittie Mullaney and her capable corps of officers, one candidate being initiated.

Grand President Armstrong expressed pleasure at being present, and complimented the Parlor for its interest in all the projects of the Order. She was the recipient of a beautiful italian luncheon cloth and napkins. Other guests were Grand Organist Clara Gairaud, Grand Trustees Ethel Begley, Anna Thuesen and Edna Briggs, Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Past Grands Margaret Grote Hill, Emma Foley and Mae C. Boldemann, Supervising Deputy Alice Lane, Deputy Agnes McVerry. Tasty refreshments were served in the banquetroom. Junior Past Grand Evelyn I. Carlson was the charming hostess for the evening.

"A COUNTRY COUSIN."

Mothers Day was appropriately celebrated by Castro Parlor No. 178 N.D.G.W. May 17. Twenty-five mothers of the members, as honor-guests, were escorted to the rostrum, introduced by Chairman Cora Stobing and presented with corsages and little souvenirs.

A program, contributed to by the N.D.G.W. Glee Club, Ann Godfrey, Ruby Bried, Elsie Dethlefsen and Barbara Latz, concluded with an original sketch, "A Country Cousin," written by Ruby Bried and presented by the glee club. Dainty refreshments were served at prettily decorated tables.

WELFARE WORK PRAISED.

James Lick Parlor No. 220 N.D.G.W. was paid an official visit May 3 by Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong. Among other visitors were Past Grands Evelyn I. Carlson and Margaret Hill, Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, Grand Trustees Anna Thuesen, Ethel Begley and Edna Briggs. President Margaret Kane presided, and Edna Bishop was chairlady of the evening.

Being introduced to the members, the Grand President was presented with a shower boquet of red roses and pansies, and other grand officers received beautiful compacts. Mrs. Armstrong was pleased with the large class of candidates initiated, and praised the members for the Parlor's progress and its splendid welfare work efforts. A supper brought to a close another perfect evening for the officers, members and friends of James Lick.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

The State Legislature came out of a huddle into a recess, but will reconvene in July. A special state election was provided for, to be held June 27, when ten propositions will be submitted to the electorate. Most of those propositions have to do with taxes, directly or indirectly. Voters, and particularly small-home owners, should earnestly and carefully consider each and every one of them, and then go to the polls and cast an intelligent vote! Be not influenced by propaganda, and pleadings of selfish or class interests; vote to reduce the intolerable tax burden, and against any proposal that will relieve a few at added expense to the many. Apropos of conditions in California, the following quotations are pertinent:

"STATE OF CALIFORNIA FACES RECEIVERSHIP UNLESS TAXPAYERS AWAKEN TO SITUATION. The State of California faces a most serious financial situation. The Legislature has recessed without being within striking distance of a balanced budget. A small but heroic band in both houses labored diligently for economy, but the powerful organized groups entrenched in public jobs swarmed the legislative halls. Other interests fought the imposition of new sources of revenue. . . . The gravity of the situation cannot be overstated. . . . Every taxpayer in California must become alive to the problem. . . . The present deplorable condition of State finances can be charged directly to public indifference. With the facts before it, will the public react, or remain complacent until new and undreamed of burdens are placed upon it?"—Oakland Tribune.

"LEGISLATURE SESSION SHOWS NEED OF PUBLIC AWAKENING IN GOVERNMENT. If one possessed both candor and a caustic pen he could render an exceedingly worthwhile service to his state by writing an expose of the recessed session of the State Legislature. . . . On the bad side of the ledger might be listed, complete breakdown of the economy bloc . . . Steam roller and 'star chamber' sessions on many vital issues; . . . lack of leadership and lack of interest in the 'other fellow's problem' were shortcomings all too evident. Many conscientious legislators earnestly trying to do a good job found voters demanding economy and special benefits in the same breath. . . . It would seem, therefore, that California government needs . . . an application of the Golden Rule. But it may require a candid and caustic diagnosis to bring it about."—Van Nuys News.

The additional revelations regarding activities of financial highboys emanating from the National Capital are astounding, but not at all surprising to those who follow the course of events in this country. Those "boys," legalized thieves, have grown gold-fat through feeding by a government which enacted laws to protect them in their thievery.

As frequently stated in these columns, we are, as a people, today suffering because government connived with crooks to enthrone dishonesty. Until honesty again prevails in government, state as well as national, until men of unquestioned honesty and proven ability are chosen to conduct affairs of government, there can be no hope of lasting relief from the conditions which have brought such havoc.

Away back in 1837, when the nation was in distress, the great Daniel Webster remarked: "In times like these, we find ourselves in the midst of a serious financial and industrial crisis. . . . The renewal of confidence and the allaying of violent fear in the minds of the people, which will allow for active buying, rather than money hoarding, must precede business recovery."

That is true today, renewal of confidence must precede recovery. And confidence will not be restored until racketeering, in government, politics, business and society, be obliterated, and the racketeers, high and mighty as well as meek and lowly, be ostracized.

"There has been so much propaganda concerning supposed reductions in public school expenditures in California, that the people paying the bill for the schools should know what actually has been accomplished," says Secretary N. Bradford Trenham of the educational committee of the California Taxpayers Association. "EXPENDITURES FOR OPERATING THE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM HAVE BEEN REDUCED LESS THAN FIVE PERCENT BELOW THE PEAK YEAR 1930-31. . . . A sane, dispassionate study of the facts reveals that, taking California as a whole, the schools have been dealt with gently during the depression, when we consider the greatly reduced ability of the public to support any kind of governmental activity."

Asserting "there are a million more men in arms in Europe tonight than on August 1, 1914," and likening Europe to a "smouldering volcano" where the "drift is distinctly toward war," United States Senator William E. Borah declared in a May 20 Washington address: "It will be difficult, if not impossible, to stabilize currencies, adjust tariffs, open markets, and bring trade and commerce back to normal conditions while nations are piling up armaments, making all preparation apparently for war."

Senator Borah commended President Franklin Roosevelt's sagacity and sure grasp of the situation in turning the economic conference from debts to disarmament. "Our troubles lie deeper than dollars and cents," he declared.

Addressing, by invitation, a "dry" meeting in Pasadena, Dr. Kenneth Taber caused an uproar when he remarked he had prescribed whiskey for ministers and that they had thrived on it and lived longer." Asked, "Isn't it true that liquor is a poison?", he replied, "So is food when taken immoderately. Most people dig their graves with their knives and forks." In conclusion, Dr. Taber said young people should be given all the facts of life, if they are to arrive at the truth of any subject.

The Federal Congress has passed and the President has signed a bill providing for suspension of annual assessment work on mining claims. That should benefit California. The suspension, however, does not apply to a mine owner who paid an income tax in 1932.

OTHER PASTURES ARE NO GREENER.
(ADDISON N. CLARK.)

Why should gold in Asia lure you
When there's more in California?
Let an old-time miner warn you
Not to rush to far Manchuria.

Gold in far-off lands comes harder—
Costs you more in human vigor;
So, since net rewards are bigger,
To our own mines give your ardor.

In the depths of our Sierra
Lies a wealth of golden treasure
Yet untouched—in greater measure
Than in days of Padre Serra.

Come and breathe the pine-tree odors
Where our hardy forty-niners
Set a world aflame as miners—
Join us loyal Mother Loders!

Sick of sordid money-shambles,
Daily mankind waxes keener
For new gold—for wealth that's cleaner
Than the gains of tainted gambles.

Brother, if YOUR purse is leaner,
If adversity has torn you,
Mine with us in California—
OTHER PASTURES ARE NO GREENER!

(Addison Clark, San Francisco mining engineer, writer and public relations counsel, knowing the yet unwon latent gold wealth of the Sierra Nevada's Mother Lode and of the northern Sierra and Coast Range, resents the inane "gold rushes" to supposedly "greener pastures" in remote wildernesses. He has taken this metrical fling at them, emphasizing California's golden opportunities for depression-scarred men today. Through Director Walter W. Bradley of the State Division of Mines, Clark has given the poem to The Grizzly Bear and other California publications, dedicating it to the stimulation of more active development of new, clean PRIMARY wealth—as differentiated from stock market gambling gains—in the state of his adoption, California.—Editor.)

in order. Chris D Blume was master of ceremonies, Ann Olsson had charge of the card party arrangements, and Robert Benson and Alice Phoenix were in charge of the social committee. A sociable held April 29 by Morada was directed by Ethel Enos. No 199 has adopted a homeless baby boy and named him "Jim Morada."

Sonoma—Sonoma No. 209 had a most delightful meeting May 8, when Supervising Deputy Clytie Lewis, Deputy Mary Vogt and Past Grand Margaret Hill, "mother" of the Parlor, were guests. In observance of Mothers Day an appropriate program of songs and recitations was presented. A beautiful basket of choice flowers was presented "Mother" Hill, and the members were greatly rewarded by the lovely response from her. Delicious refreshments were served at beautifully decorated tables. At the place of each past president was a token, in recognition of her past efforts for the Parlor. Among other visitors were Grand Trustees Anna Thuesen and Willow Borba. The evening was unanimously voted a huge success.

Palo Alto—When Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong officially visited Palo Alto No. 229 she found a small, but happy, group assembled to greet her. A fine fraternal spirit was everywhere evident, and the ritual was exemplified in a commendable manner. Visitors included representatives from ten Parlors, Grand Trustee Anna Thuesen, Grand Organist Clara Gairaud, Past Grand Margaret Hill, Supervising Deputy Katherine Nelson, Deputies Marie Buck, Marie Orinda, Elsie Fisher, Mary Junker. A mystery box was disposed of and brought a neat sum for the homeless children. President Adelaide Freeman, an experienced leader, as hostess of the occasion prepared and donated delicious refreshments for the reception that closed a very profitable and most delightful evening.

In Memoriam

CLARA BASS ARCHER
(Hiawatha Parlor No 140 N D G W.)

Whereas, Almighty God in His wisdom has removed from our midst to the Heavenly Parlor our esteemed sister, Clara Bass Archer, and whereas, in recognition of His divine will we submit our minds and hearts to the will of Him, we mourn our loss and feel the deepest sympathy for the family of the departed sister, therefore be it

Resolved, That in testimony of our love and esteem for our departed sister these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and as evidence of our sympathy for our sister's family that a copy be sent to them and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

To weary hearts, to mourning homes,
God's meekest angel gently comes,
No power has he to banish pain,
Or give us back our lost again,
And yet in tenderest love, our dear
And Heavenly Father sends him here

There's quiet in that angel's glance,
There's rest in his still countenance!
He mocks no grief with idle cheer,
Nor wounds with words the mourner's ear,
But ills and woes he may not cure,
He kindly trains us to endure.

Angel of Patience, sent to calm
Our feverish brows with cooling palm,
To lay the storms of hope and fear,
And reconcile life's smile and tear,
The throbs of wounded pride to still
And make our own our Father's will!

Oh! thou who mournest on thy way,
With longings for the close of day,
He walks with thee, that angel kind,
And gently whispers, "Be resigned;
Bear up, bear on, the end shall tell,
The dear Lord ordereth all things well!"

Respectfully submitted,

EDNA SAYGROVER,
BERTHA MERRILL,
AURELIA S. BENTON,
Committee.

Redding, April 26, 1933.

AGNES BENNETT.

To the Officers and Members of Angelita Parlor No. 32 N D G W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions expressing the heartfelt sympathy of the members of the Parlor on the death of our sister, Agnes Bennett, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to take from our midst our beloved sister, Agnes Bennett, and to summon her to a higher life, and whereas, in her passing our Parlor has lost a loyal member and her family a devoted sister and mother; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Angelita Parlor extend sincere sympathy to the family, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our departed sister; that a copy be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Submitted in P.D.F.A.,

MYRTLE JOHNSON,
ANNIE McDONALD,
Committee.

ONE OF STATE'S LARGEST OAK TREES IS IN TRINITY COUNTY.

Much has been written and told about the size of the famous Hooker oak tree near Chico, Butte County, but how many know we have an oak of no mean proportions right here in Trinity County?

On the old Given ranch, near the mouth of Oregon Gulch, about nine miles from Weaverville, there stands a liveoak tree that has withstood the ravages of the elements for centuries. It has a circumference of 34 feet 4 inches, 16 inches from the ground. The limbs have a spread of 144 feet, and it is 75 feet tall. It is a perfect tree as to shape, and well worth a trip to view.—Trinity Journal, Weaverville.

Orange Selected—"Orange will hereafter be the color of all highway equipment used in California," says an announcement of the State Public Works Department.

"Alert Motorists—Safe Children," is the June slogan of the California Public Safety Committee in its campaign to lessen the constantly increasing auto death-toll.

WHOEVER MAKES A GARDEN

(LAURA NOLIN.)

Whoever makes a garden
Has never worked alone;
The rain has always found it,
The sun has always known,
The wind has blown across it
And helped to scatter seeds.
Whoever makes a garden
Has all the help he needs.

Whoever makes a garden
Should surely not complain;
With someone like the rain
And someone like the breezes
To aid him at his toil,
And someone like the Father
Who gave the garden soil.

Whoever makes a garden
Has O, so many friends,—
The glory of the morning,
The dew when daylight ends,
Wind and rain and sunshine,
And dew and fertile sod.
And he who makes a garden
Works hand in hand with God.

(The above, by Mrs. Laura Nolin, a member of Ontario Parlor No. 251 N.D.G.W., was sent by her to the office of the Grand Secretary N.S.G.W., who forwarded the contribution to The Grizzly Bear.—Editor.)

THE LETTER BOX

Comments on subjects of general interest and importance received from readers of The Grizzly Bear

"FIFTY YEARS AGO" EDITOR DOES NOT INDULGE IN FICTION.

Editor Grizzly Bear—As the Livermore oldtimers dispute the furor caused among the Mexican population in March 1883 by the prediction of a flood that never came, I send you copy of the item published in the "Sacramento Daily Union" of March 6, 1883, giving the news. You can depend upon my articles having a basis, for I do not indulge in fiction to embellish them. The item, telegraphic news from San Francisco, said:

"San Francisco, March 5, 1883.—There is an extraordinary exodus among the Spanish families of Livermore Valley who in consequence of a prediction made 100 years ago by Padre Anselmo that Livermore Valley would be flooded this month are hastening to camp upon Cedar Hill near Livermore. Bernal Alviso, an ex-member of the Mexico congress, and about 100 other Spanish and Mexican families fled from the valley Sunday, March 4th, and also encamped on Cedar Hill. Several predictions made by Padre Anselmo have been verified and the fleeing Spanish families say there is to be a great flood. Padre Anselmo predicted the flood that occurred in Livermore Valley in 1838."

THOMAS R. JONES.

Sacramento, April 30, 1933.

BUTTE COUNTY OLDTIMER REMEMBERS TIDAL WAVE SCARE.

Editor Grizzly Bear—Noticed in the March 1933 issue of The Grizzly Bear inquiry for any one who remembers the exodus of people from the lowlands about the [San Francisco] bay, especially Oakland. I remember distinctly about the occurrence, but cannot give the date.

The scare was among the Seventh Day Adventists, whose leaders predicted the end of the world, on a certain day Oakland and vicinity to be destroyed by a tidal wave. Many of the followers of the belief sold or gave away their property for little or nothing, as they knew they would have no use for wealth where they expected to go. The day before the date of the arrival of the expected tidal wave, all the believers—or God's people, particularly those belonging to the church mentioned above,—moved to the high hills back of Oakland and Berkeley, leaving nearly all their belongings behind, and waited patiently for the expected and welcomed end of the world, but it never came, to their sorrow.

One reason why I remember the incident is the fact I had occasion to go to Sacramento that day and some of us on the train kept a close lookout for the mountain of water that was to engulf the whole Sacramento Valley. Sorry I cannot give the date. Wishing The Grizzly Bear much success,

R. J. STRANG.

Oroville, May 7, 1933.

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK.

Editor Grizzly Bear—Your issue for May is splendid. Keep up the good work. I like the magazine very well, for I can see what other Parlors are doing. I thank you for the good work that is being done by The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

JAMES QUINN.

Birthday Celebrated.

Calistoga—Calistoga No. 86, instituted May 3, 1886, celebrated its anniversary commencing at the meeting May 1, when incidents associated with the first decade of its existence were related by Charter Members A. H. McArthur and C. E. Butler, and C. A. Carroll. The "youngsters" got quite a "kick" out of the tales. Rev. T. J. McKeon gave the final illustrated lecture in his series of California missions talks, the subject being "Mission Carmel." May 7, a birthday dinner was held at Kenny Grove.

New Parlor Instituted.

Turlock—Turlock No. 274 was instituted May 5 by Grand President Seth Millington, assisted by Deputy Grand President Al Lobree. The ritual was exemplified by the officers of Yosemite No. 24 (Merced), and the officers of the new Parlor were installed by District Deputy L. E. Bither, as follows:

Oratorical Contest.

Sacramento—Under the auspices of Sacramento No. 3, an oratorical contest on California history for junior college students was conducted in Native Son Hall May 4. Awards, in order, went to Margaret Lazzarone, "James King of William;" Henry Attias, "Broderick," and Clifford Todd, "Broderick." Other participants were Lawrence Schei, "Admission of California;" Alta Jane Allawalt, "Broderick;" Robert Pedder, "Vigilantes of '56;" Edward Williams, "The Forgotten Man;" Robert Holcomb, "History Repeats Itself."

The Parlor had an oldtimers night, preceded by a dinner, May 25. Arrangements were perfected by Tom McAuliffe, June Longshore and Irving Gibson. The annual outing of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of Sacramento and San Joaquin Counties was held at Elk Grove, May 21. Dancing, races and baseball were featured.

The Secret of Success.

San Rafael—Mount Tamalpais No. 64 had as honor-guests at a banquet the basketball team of the Parlor, and in appreciation for having won the championship in a series of spirited contests members of the team were presented with gold basketballs. Assistant District Attorney Harold J. Haley presided, and lauded the team's persistency in the face of many previous discouragements. "This sticktoitiveness," he said, "finally brought home the bacon and glory to Mount Tamalpais." Captain Charles Soldavini responded, and credited the team's success to the loyal support given by members of the Parlor. "That," he said, "is the secret of success at all times, and if the Parlor officers prove worthy through faithful efforts they may alway be assured of loyal support by the members generally."

President Arthur Hecht said that while his term is drawing to a close he will work just as hard for the success of those who follow him. He appointed a "fact finding committee" to formulate plans for creating interest and promoting attendance.

SUBORDINATE PARLORS BRIEFS.

Modesto—T. F. Griffin addressed the members of Modesto No. 11 on "The Money Situation" May 3. Deputy Grand President Al Lobree was a visitor. A delegation from Modesto attended the institution of the Parlor at Turlock.

"OLD SPANISH DAYS"
SANTA BARBARA'S HISTORIC FESTIVAL

Clifford F. Rizor

(PUBLICITY CHAIRMAN
SANTA BARBARA PARLOR N.S.G.W.)

"He loved the twilight that surrounds
The border-land of old romance,
Where glitter hauberk, helm and lance,
And banner waves, and trumpet sounds."
"Tales of a Wayside Inn"

DURING THE FIRST WEEK IN AUgust, Santa Barbara will again invite the world to participate with her in the tenth annual celebration of "Old Spanish Days." This distinctively Californian production is attracting larger numbers of visitors to the city each year; a factor having much to do with the continued success of the idea fostered ten years ago by several well-known Native Sons and Native Daughters, with the assistance of prominent Santa Barbara artists and civic leaders.

Once again, through the magic of stagecraft and the arts of the make-up box, Santa Barbara will live and move in the lights and shadows of by-gone years. Here, in the course of the work-a-day world, architects have reproduced the storied atmosphere of old Spain: the square towers and iron balconies of Seville, the palm-fronded courts and exotic gardens of Granada; an authentic background for the spirit of the old romantic age, lending a touch of realism to the make-believe. Therefore, it is not difficult to stir memories of the past; to endow California history, through the varied phases of a moving pageant, with a vitality it never possessed in the pages of books.

Reaching back into Santa Barbara's obscure beginnings, the pageantry will afford a glimpse of the glorious adventurers of the Spanish Main, and the plumed knights with their men-at-arms; moving in all the panoplied circumstance of Spain in her day of greatness. For "Old Spanish Days" is the portrayal of a time "when knighthood was in flower;" when music, romance, and the gentle graces of boundless hospitality were the very essence of life in a pastoral world. Cabrillo, carrying the standard of Castilla y Leon to the shores of the western sea; Portola, following the paths of conquest and high adventure; Serra, pressing forward in the high calling of his faith—all, in a sense, were knights errant in an age of chivalry; all will live again, as in the colorful sequences of a drama. The music of the string orchestras, the creaking of the ox-carts, the graceful figures of "La Jota" and "El Jarabe" will speak once more of a world unmarred by the mechanical dissonance and jangle of our own prosaic generation. George Eliot tells the story of a "village where many of the old echoes lingered, undrowned by new voices." These words are perhaps best descriptive of Santa Barbara, as she dons fiesta garb to revive the old, carefree spirit of "la primavera."

It is fitting, in these days, that the padres open the celebration with a reception and entertainment at old Santa Barbara Mission, for the mission was the focal point of all social life in Santa Barbara's early years; it was there that the old-time fiestas had their beginnings.

The historic street parade, brilliant and colorful, is one of the featured events of the fiesta, commemorating the various episodes of Santa Barbara's history. The conquistadores, the pirates and the freebooters; the soldiery of Viscaino, Ortega and Fremont; the sailors, miners and trappers of the later '49 period, all are faithfully represented; an entertainment and instructive spectacle for historian and tourist alike. The equestrian division is worthy of special mention as being an outstanding feature. More than a thousand costumed riders, mounted on California's finest horses (palominos, arabians and other varieties of blooded stock) appear in this section. General Fremont's soldiers, with their smooth-bore muskets and nondescript uniforms, march to the strains of "Oh, Susanna," as their band precedes them down the street.

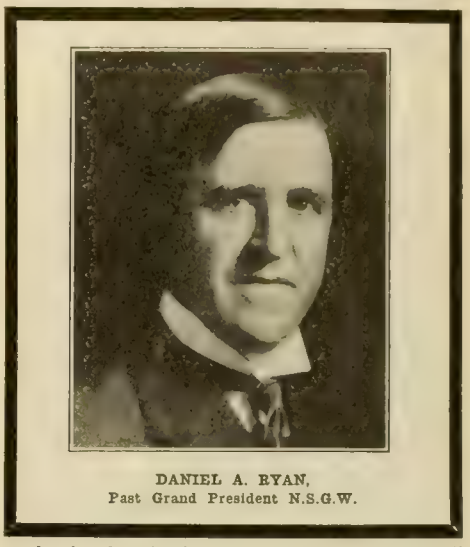
The stagecoaches, tallyhos and covered wagons which follow are suggestive of the intrusion of the American influence that was so soon to make rude changes in the leisurely tradition of the old-established order; an influence that was to bring "Main Street" to Santa Barbara, jangling its restful harmonies, and shaping it into what it was until very recently—just another rambling, ordinary, American small town, without uniformity or plan. Yet, as we watch the groups of dancers performing in the sunken gardens, surrounded by the beautiful Spanish type buildings of the Santa Barbara County Court House, and hear the string orchestras playing in "El Paseo," it would seem that "Main Street," with its inharmonious angles, had been relegated far into the discard.

No "Spanish Days" would be complete without the historic pageant-play performed each year in Peabody Stadium. This year it is titled "La Entrada de los Americanos," and was written by Charles E. Pressley, who is also the director. This pageant deals with the period of the early American occupation, with General Fremont and Benjamin Foxen as the principal characters. There is also the familiar scene of the wedding celebration at the De La Guerra home in Santa Barbara. The beauty of this pageant is always enhanced by specially arranged orchestration, performed by a full concert orchestra. The famous theme songs of the fiesta, "Song of the Vigilantes" and "Carmelita," constantly recurrent in the incidental music, are compositions of Santa Barbara's own artist-composer, Raymond B. Eldred, who in past years has conducted the orchestra for the pageant and is expected to hold the baton again this year.

It is well to note, in passing, that the impromptu elements of the celebration are very nearly as entertaining as its organized program. The thousands of people who participate in the parade, the pageant and other planned features are perhaps outnumbered by those who take part in the street dancing, or join with the independent groups of singers, dancers and musicians who appear everywhere in the restaurants, hotels, clubs and public places.

FIESTA TIME IN SANTA BARBARA.

As an evidence of the historic research undertaken by the history departments of Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116 N.S.G.W. and Reina Del Mar Parlor No. 126 N.D.G.W. to properly authenticate the various phases of costuming and pageantry, this fiesta should be of intense interest to the members of both Orders. Justifiably, it may be said that "Old Spanish Days" holds the elements of inspiration and uplift for all classes.



So, in conclusion, we invite you to visit Santa Barbara! Sit in your hotel lobby and listen to the sparkling notes of Spanish melody, as only a real Spanish orchestra can produce it. Go out into the street and mingle with the brightly costumed crowd to witness the world-famous street parade. Attend a performance of the historic pageant-play, "La Entrada de los Americanos." Then you will know why "Old Spanish Days" is one of the great civic festivals. It is probable, too, that as the last day is ended, and strolling groups of troubadours pass through the streets at midnight playing "Adios, Adios, Amores," you will feel a very real sense of regret for the passing of the old provincial custom; you will look forward to another year, in confidence that "Old Spanish Days" will bring you back to Santa Barbara.

"DAN" RYAN

DANIEL ALPHONSUS RYAN, PAST Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West and one of California's most brilliant sons, passed into the great beyond from his San Francisco home, June 11. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Josephine Cooney Ryan, and three daughters, Mrs. William Wallace, Mrs. Ward von Tillow and Miss Mary Margaret Ryan.

"Dan" Ryan was born at San Francisco, August 21, 1873, and affiliated with Pacific Parlor No. 10 N.S.G.W. of that city July 14, 1896. As a delegate from Pacific, his first Grand Parlor was the Twenty-first (Nevada City 1898). At the Twenty-seventh Grand Parlor (Vallejo) he was elected a Grand Trustee, and at the Thirty-third Grand Parlor (Lake Tahoe) he became the Grand President and presided at the Thirty-fourth (Santa Cruz) Grand Parlor.

Burial services were conducted June 13 from Saint Mary's Cathedral, one of San Francisco's largest churches, which was crowded to capacity with friends of this talented son of the Golden State. No eulogy was delivered, and naught but a simple church ritual was recited, for "Dan" lived a very active, but unostentatious, life. He numbered his friends by the thousands, and was admired because of his sterling worth as a plain citizen.

DANIEL A. RYAN,
Past Grand President N.S.G.W.

Among the numerous honorary pallbearers were the following Native Sons: Grand President Justice Emmet Seawell; Past Grand Presidents Lewis F. Byington and Herman C. Lichtenberger; Mayor Angelo J. Rossi (El Dorado Parlor No. 52); Supervisors J. Emmet Hayden (Mount Tamalpais Parlor No. 64) and Victor J. Canepa (San Francisco Parlor No. 49); Superior Judges George H. Cabaniss (Pacific Parlor No. 10), Timothy I. Fitzpatrick (Stanford Parlor No. 76), Daniel C. Deasy (Pacific Parlor No. 10) and John J. Van Nostrand (Stanford Parlor No. 76), and Frank J. Klimm (Pacific Parlor No. 10).—C.M.H.

Bridge Ceremonies—Ground-breaking ceremonies for the mammoth San Francisco-Oakland bridge will be held on Yerba Buena Island, July 9.

REVIEW OF OAKLAND N.D.G.W. GRAND PARLOR

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

GRAND PRESIDENT ANNA MIXON Armstrong (Woodland No. 90) presided throughout the deliberations of the Forty-seventh Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, in session at Oakland, Alameda County, June 19, 20, 21 and 22. Concluding a detailed account of her incumbency, Mrs. Armstrong said: "The report of my stewardship is finished. The history of my service has been written day by day, as I have come to you in your own home Parlors. I hope I have not been found wanting. Any failures which may have been made, have certainly been of the head and not of the heart. I have given to the full of my physical strength and my mental measure. No other could do more. One thing I have learned, aside from the fraternal love existing in our Order, is to love California more devotedly than ever before. . . . To California, I pledge fealty, I pledge service, I pledge constant and unflagging love. Will each one of you join me in that pledge? Then will we, as true Native Daughters, have kept the faith. No more fitting words may be found with which to close, than those of our own Past Grand President, Eliza D. Keith:

"CALIFORNIA.
Her poppies fling a cloth of gold
O'er California hills,
Fit emblem of the wealth untold
That hill and dale and plain unfold;
Her fame the whole world fills."

Then, in compliment to the Grand President, the escort team of Woodland No. 90, under the direction of Captain Lela Ewert, executed an unusual drill, made colorful by beautiful gowns in pastel shades, and baskets of gorgeous spring flowers. The team's personnel included: Dorothy Bigelow, Madeline Hermle, Mary Tillotson, Gladys Neiman, Oleta Wademan, Bernice Braden, Marybelle Pierce, Ramona Roth, Iola Anderson, Leona Sachs, Evelyn Groh, Irene LeCornec, Edna Bailey, Leola Crow, Lena Rominger and Geraldine O'Donnell (accompanist).

The report of Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler recounted the numerous transactions of that office. La Dorada No. 236 (San Francisco) surrendered its charter January 26, 1933. Grand Parlor receipts for the year were $20,274.46 and disbursements $18,136.48. The year's cash gain was $2,137.98. The June 1, 1933, worth of the Grand Parlor was $25,636.20, including a cash balance of $20,585. One hundred and nineteen members passed away during the year, and $8,850 was paid from the Grand Parlor death burial fund.

Grand Treasurer Susie K. Christ reported the cash balances in the several Grand Parlor funds as follows, as of June 1, 1933: General, $20,585; Phelan Trust, $10,473.76; Death Benefit, $480; Mills College Scholarship, $595.01; Redwood Memorial Grove, $927.46; University Scholarship, $747.87.

Miss Millie Tietjen (Golden State No. 50), assistant treasurer Grand Parlor Home Committee, reported June 1, 1933, cash balances in the commercial account, $1,120.90, and in the savings account, $9,087.10. Receipts for the year totaled $10,233.99. Loyalty Pledge payments amounted to $3,248.91, and cook book sales amounted to $625.07.

Other reports of grand officers and committees dealt mostly with matters which heretofore have been given publicity in The Grizzly Bear. A review of the Forty-seventh Grand Parlor follows:

CHANGES IN CONSTITUTIONS.

Changes in the governing laws were made as follows, the abbreviations "C.G.P." and "C.S.P." referring, respectively, to the Constitution Grand Parlor and the Constitution Subordinate Parlors:

Art. III, Sec. 5, C.G.P., amended to provide: "No proxies shall be admitted to represent elected [Grand Parlor] delegates, but alternates shall be elected who must possess the same qualifications; that the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes in the election for delegates, after the number of delegates are elected, shall be designated as alternate number one, and so on."

Art. X, Sec. 3, Par. 5, C.G.P., amended to read: "The sum of $75 shall be drawn from this [Death Benefit] Fund upon the receipt of a certificate of death of a sister, providing she has been a member of the Order for six months," etc.

Art. II, Sec. 3b, C.S.P., amended by adding: "In order to be eligible to receive Grand Parlor death benefits, a member must have been affiliated with the Order for six months."

One hundred dollars was contributed toward the erection of an Easter sunrise service cross on Mount Davidson, San Francisco, and fifty dollars was donated to San Antonio de Padua Mission.

The granting of a charter to Rio Rita No. 253 (Sacramento), instituted April 8, 1933, was ratified.

The Grizzly Bear was re-endorsed as the official organ of the Order, and financial provision was made for the publication therein of the Official Directory.

An invitation was extended John Steven McGroarty of Los Angeles, California's poet laureate, "to attend a Grand Parlor meeting whenever he finds it convenient."

A letter of thanks was ordered sent O. L. Brainard of Sacramento for his kindness in making, at such a low cost, the plaque for the Order's Redwood Memorial Grove in Humboldt County.

A resolution prevailed, that Subordinate Parlors be granted a three-year extension to fulfill their Loyalty Pledge quotas, and that funds be provided "to place the names of all Parlors which have completed their pledges on the Honor Roll plaque in the Native Daughter Home."

On recommendation Grand President Armstrong, ordered "That the Grand Parlor, through its Veterans Welfare Committee, subscribe for one copy of The Grizzly Bear Magazine to each Government Hospital in the State, and that the subscription be paid from the Veterans Welfare fund."

A motion prevailed, that Past Grand Emma G. Foley be given charge of the cook books, and that they be sold, at thirty-five cents each, to Subordinate Parlors, which are authorized to resell them.

A letter of thanks and appreciation was ordered sent Grand Trustee Willow Borba (Santa Rosa No. 217) for her loyal, efficient and unremunerative work in compiling the cook books.

A rising vote of thanks was given Past Grand Dr. Mariana Bertola for her untiring efforts in behalf of the Native Daughter Home.

For her years of service to the Order, Past Grand Emma Gruber-Foley was given a rising vote of thanks. As Grand President, she presided at the Twenty-second (Lodi 1908) Grand Parlor. In responding, Mrs. Foley said the happiest moments of her life "have been given to her by the Order and the friendships she has made."

A resolution—presented by Past Grand Catherine E. Gloster, Elizabeth Spencer (El Monte No. 205), Inez Sitton (Californiana No. 247) and Margeret E. Weston (Eschscholtzia No. 112)—was unanimously adopted, extending thanks to "Worthy Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong for her gracious and orderly conduct of the Grand Parlor session, and for her fine representation of the highest ideals of the Order throughout the year when she made contacts with the membership of the entire state; to the N.D.G.W. Parlors of Alameda County, which so lavishly provided for the comfort and entertainment of the Grand Parlor; . . . to the management of Hotel Leamington, for the many courtesies extended the Grand Parlor; . . . to the 'Oakland Tribune,' the 'Post-Enquirer' and the 'Call-Bulletin,' for the unstinted and commendable publicity given the Grand Parlor and its personnel; to the General Association Past Presidents, for refreshments served during the session; and to all others who contributed in any way to the wellbeing of this Grand Parlor."

Irwin, on the Order's behalf, presented a ruby-and-diamond ring to Mrs. Armstrong, the retiring Grand President.

"WE GO FORTH INTO THE MORROW DEDICATED ANEW TO OUR GREAT CAUSE."

The Publicity Committee, through Past Grand Bertha A. Briggs, reported on the publicity given activities of the Subordinate Parlors, and several scrapbooks of clippings were exhibited. Quoting from this report:

"The yesterday of countless perplexities, of far-reaching anxieties, of seemingly insurmountable problems has brought forth a wider valuation and a deeper appreciation of the ennobling principles of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. Heretofore, we have seemed to see as through a glass darkly, but now a brighter light has come, enabling us to comprehend more clearly, reason more exactly, and strive more constantly and diligently for the furtherance of our established projects and activities. Truly have we grown in understanding and in tolerance, in foresight and in fervor. In spirit and in thought, we have gone steadily forward, and there has been awakened within us a real, a vital and an enduring interest. The point has been reached where, more than ever before, we openly manifest that interest. We go forth into the morrow calmly and resolutely dedicated anew to our great cause. Your publicity group points with justifiable pride to the no-small part they have severally played in this awakening to a keener realization that our principles stand now—as they have ever stood—for the development of all that is good, for the promotion of all that lends to encouragement, and for guidance to a state of stability, contentment and clarity. . . .

"To insure the continuation of this keen interest, the individual members of Subordinate Parlors are once again urged to lend their loyal support and financial assistance to our only official organ—The Grizzly Bear. A copy of this strictly California periodical should reach every Native Daughter home each month. Through columns featuring general news of our State and of our Orders of Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, and filled with valuable facts and references, as well as interesting reading matter, the story of our developmeit and our worthy activities is given to the world. Assuredly, the editor deserves our hearty support. Let it be our determined purpose to make the ensuing twelve months an outstanding year for our own Grizzly Bear—its success is vital to our Order."

RITUAL EXEMPLIFICATION.

The ritual was exemplified the night of June 21 by the district deputies of Alameda County, who were charmingly gowned. Supervising Deputy Mildred Brant Irwin (Berkeley No. 150) was in charge, and was assisted by Deputy Grand President Ellen Hitch (Berkeley No. 150). Seven candidates were initiated. Those officiating were:

Matilda Enos (Betsy Ross No. 238), president; Louise McDougall (Bahia Vista No. 167), past president; Lurine Martin (Aloha No. 106), first vice; Marion White (Piedmont No. 87), second vice; Thelma Schornick (Bear Flag No. 151), third vice; Kathleen Dombrink (Piedmont No. 87), marshal; Martha Watson (Aloha No. 106), recording secretary; Elsie Haven (Bear Flag No. 151), financial secretary; Adelaide Martin (Laura Loma No. 182), treasurer; Ella Freitas (Argonaut No. 166), Grace Curry (Richmond No. 147) and Olinda Kardoza (El Cereso No. 207), trustees; Ann Mello (Fruitvale No. 177), junior past president; Ann Lewis (El Cereso No. 207), senior past president; Florence Shapero (Berkeley No. 150), organist; Kathryn Walde (Hayward No. 122), inside sentinel; Marie Thompson (Berkeley No. 150), outside sentinel.

Dora Brayton (Bahia Vista No. 167), in a most impressive ceremony attesting the friendship of the Alameda County Native Daughters for Grand President Armstrong, presented her with a gift of rock crystal. Marie Cordery, newly initiated member of Aloha No. 106, sang "The End of a Perfect Year."

NOTES OF THE SESSION.

Three charter members of the "mother" Parlor, Ursula No. 1 (Jackson), were in attendance: Founder Lily O. Reichling-Dyer, Mrs. Flora Dunning-Podesta and Mrs. Henrietta Greenhalgh-O'Neill.

Past Grand Carrie Roesch-Durham, who has attended every one of the forty-seven Grand Parlors, again headed the Credentials Committee.

Past Grand Addie L. Mosher, unable, because of serious illness, to attend the session, was visited at her Oakland home by many of her close friends.

Past Grand Catherine E. Gloster and sister, Miss Dorothy Gloster (Alturas No. 159) announced they would depart July 1, via the Panama Canal, on a month's tour of Eastern cities.

Marguerite No. 12 (Placerville) disposed of a baby-crib quilt for the benefit of the homeless children, and it went to Grand Outside Sentinel Alice Mathias-Oldham, a recent bride.

In presenting her annual report, Secretary Mary E. Brusie (Argonaut No. 166) of the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Central Homeless Children Committee, conducted an imaginary trip through an art gallery wherein were displayed likenesses of many adopted children. Despite depression difficulties, she said, 180 children were placed the past year, a larger number than in any other year, swelling the total number placed to more than 4,200. Members of the Grand Parlor were delighted with Miss Brusie's charming recital of the conduct of this outstand-

"IT IS YOUR DUTY TO SELL THE N.D.G.W. ORDER"

MRS. IRMA LAIRD OF ALTURAS, Modoc County, affiliated with Alturas Parlor No. 159, became the Grand President of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West at the Oakland Grand Parlor, June 22. Her installation address—her message to the members of the Order and to the women of California eligible to membership in this outstanding fraternal organization—follows:

"The Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West is a unique institution. Membership therein means far more than any other fraternal affiliation. It is an enlistment in a movement which has for its purpose the preservation of the sanctity of the home, the teaching of loyalty to established government, and the cultivation of the spirit of service to Order, State and Nation. Born out of a desire to perpetuate the glorious deeds of our pioneer fathers and mothers and to leave as a heritage to posterity a carefully studied history of California, the Order has steadily grown in strength and prestige until in its maturity it affords common ground for California-born women of every class and creed to labor in the blessed spirit of toleration.

"Tonight, a beloved leader completes her year of service, surrenders her responsibilities and her gavel. They are assumed by a new leader. The example of service set by our Worthy Grand President of the year just closed is truly to me an inspiration which I may well wish to emulate. She has been a worthy successor to the long line of sterling women who have led us in the past, and who still give their time and talents to all that bespeaks progress to California and our Order. Their presence here, year after year, is an indication of their love for and loyalty to those who have honored them in the past.

"It is human for one, new and untried, to hesitate about taking on great responsibilities, not knowing what problems may confront her, or whether she shall have the qualifications and attributes to meet and overcome them in a spirit of justice and charity. I want you to know that I fully realize the import of the time-honored traditions of my office, as well as its opportunity for service; that I keenly appreciate the confidence which prompted you to confer this honor upon me. Nevertheless, it is in a spirit of humility and fraternal love that I accept the office of Grand President of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West.

"With each new administration come new and live interests, different viewpoints and a new note of progress. I shall look to every member of the Order to co-operate with the Grand Officers in perpetuating the original aims and objects of our Order, and also in meeting and dealing with the new situations which the Spirit of Progress has forced upon us.

"Due to political machinations or economic changes, there have come times in the history of our nation that have 'tried men's souls.' Such a period obtains today. In all the land few, indeed, have been able to carry on without incurring heavy financial losses. From the country as well as the populous cities has come the cry of hungry mouths that labor cannot fill. There is confusion in our financial world, and confusion in our moral standards!

"Americans, in the days of prosperity, became so inflated with their own success that they forgot the Giver of their blessings, and many abandoned the standards of their fathers and, by their open disregard of the laws of God and Man, brought chaos into our political, economic and social life. This period of enforced idleness, when twelve million men are yet unemployed and suffering privation in this, the richest country in the world, has prepared a fertile field for the fatal seeds of communism and other red elements which will produce a harvest of thorns and thistles to destroy our faith in home, government and religion.

"What are we going to do about it? How can we, possessed of a finer spirit and a keener insight than the average individual, assist those who have lost faith through their contact with adversity, or been contaminated by the enemies of Right and Truth? What can we do to rehabilitate the morals of our country?

"We are the daughters of a race of men and women who have won the admiration of the world for their faith, their courage, their industry and their efficiency. Our pioneer forbears did not falter when obstacles prevented their progress, nor may we. In every community let the Native Daughters be an agency to inspire the citizens with courage, confidence and patriotism, and with respect and reverence for established law and order. Fighting together, we can combat the pernicious influences which seek to destroy our social structure. Through united efforts, we will help restore happiness to our country and to our Golden State! I appeal to each and every member in this Order to help me in keeping this distinctly California organization in the vanguard of the Nation's mighty builders.

"In attacking our new problems, however, we should never lose sight of the original purpose for which our Order was instituted. Other organizations, casting about for some method to popularize themselves and to justify their existence, have undertaken the staging of 'pioneer' celebrations and the marking of historical spots. Let us remember that we are the pioneers in this work, and let us so cover the possibilities in each locality that there will be no room for interlopers.

"I ask that you assist not only in the expansion of the Order but, also, that you strive for the retention of present members. The hard times and lack of employment have made it difficult for many splendid members to keep up their dues. I feel that some plan should be worked out in every Parlor to save these members to the Order. The elimination of certain practices which draw heavily upon the Parlors' surplus funds, such as the payment of sick benefits, might conserve sufficient funds to tide over, during this period, worthy members who are temporarily unable to pay dues and assessments. The Parlors may express their love and sympathy to the sick in many ways which would do far more toward ameliorating the discomforts of sickness than simply drawing a check for a specific sum. The comparatively small amount that Parlors are able to pay in sick benefits is not sufficient to make the practice a drawing card for membership. This is but one of any number of methods that may be used to carry out a plan for the retention of members. Each of you, in your own locality and in your own way, can evolve a workable plan.

"Again, let me admonish you that it is your duty, as well as your privilege, to sell the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West to the eligible women of your community. For I hold that every California-born woman who honors and reveres the memory of the pioneers and wishes to perpetuate the fruits of their labors; who thrills with pride over California's romantic history; who believes in the preservation of the state's landmarks, relics and traditions; who is interested in civic betterment in her community and the state; who holds high ideals of patriotism; who believes in safeguarding our national welfare by the americanization of the foreign born within our gates; who would encourage higher educational advantages for women; whose heart goes out in loving sympathy to the disabled veteran and the orphaned and homeless children of California, should be a member of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, for these are the principles upon which our great woman's organization stands.

"You have made me your Grand President. The honor thrills me, and yet tonight I am not so much concerned with what the office may do for me, but with what I shall be able to do for the office. Fully aware of my limitations, but confident that I shall have your wholehearted support, I enter upon my term of office with this prayer to Him, who doeth all things well:

" 'Make me too brave to waver or to be unkind. Make me too understanding to mind the little hurts companions give; and friends, the careless little hurts that no one quite intends. Make me too thankful to hurt others so. Help me to know the inmost hearts of those for whom I care; their secret wishes, all the loads they bear, that I may add my courage to their own. May I make lonely folks feel less alone, and happy ones a little happier yet. May I forget what ought to be forgotten, and recall unfailingly all that ought to be recalled; each kindly thing, forgetting what might sting. To all upon my way, day after day, let me bring joy and hope, and let me sing'."

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTH anniversary of the independence of the United States of America was celebrated in the cities and towns of California July 4, 1883. With a salute of thirteen guns at daybreak, unrestricted firing of firecrackers, bombs and guns during the daytime, the glorious national holiday closed with nightime exhibitions of fireworks. No disastrous fires ensued from this year's celebration.

At the banquet of the Society of California Pioneers in Sacramento, Governor George Stoneman, in reminiscing, stated he was the grand marshal of Sacramento's first Fourth of July celebration, in 1850.

Members of the Democratic Party had a mass meeting in San Francisco July 8 and adopted resolutions condemning the State Railroad Commission for not reducing railroad passenger and freight rates.

Exports of flour by ocean this month exceeded those of any previous month to date, 132,000 barrels being shipped to foreign countries.

The price of hops declined to 20 cents a pound this month, and the growers viewed the situation with alarm. The hop acreage of the state had been increased to 2,000 this year, and the market was stagnated.

Sale was this month made of 3,300 acres of the Santa Rita Rancho in Alameda County, at an average price of $100 an acre.

July was a month of strikes. The printers on the "San Francisco Call" went out, because they objected to working with non-union printers. Then the Chinese shoemakers, the coopers and the restaurant waiters struck for higher wages. July 25, telegraph operators employed by the Western Union throughout the nation, including those in several California cities, quit their keys.

The 1,700 Chinese laborers on the California and Oregon Railway north of Redding, Shasta County, who struck for more wages, consumed their last bags of rice June 16 and went back to work. The railroad company's edict, "no workee, no eatee," won out.

Typhoid fever was epidemic in Petaluma, Sonoma County, sixty-nine cases being treated there July 31.

The Irish Land League had a state convention July 12 in San Francisco. A report showed that during the year California members had contributed, and sent to Ireland, $50,000. A resolution was adopted forbidding members to purchase goods made in England.

The Fong Tuck Hong, a California Chinese benevolent society, was chartered to begin business July 8. Far ahead of the Americans, its laws provided for unemployment insurance, marriage and birth contributions, and banned divorce.

Sierra County's gold mines came to the front. July 15, the Rainbow struck another of its prolific pockets that yielded over $100,000. The Ruby took out a two-pound nugget July 22, and the Bald Mountain produced eight pounds of the yellow metal in a week.

The stage from Redding, Shasta County, to Weaverville, Trinity County, went off the grade near Old Shasta July 2. The four horses were killed, and several passengers were severely injured.

A state bicycle meet was held in San Francisco July 15, and the hundred and more delegates pedaled from the Ferry Building to the Cliff House and back.

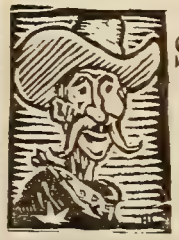
A business block in Lincoln, Placer County, burned July 11, causing a $20,000 loss. The Whitmore Flourmill at Modesto, Stanislaus County, was destroyed by fire July 15; loss, $50,000.

A large portion of Colusa City's business district burned July 25, entailing a $75,000 loss. July 30, fire practically wiped out Tulare City's business section, with a loss of $130,000.

Jonas Spect, Pioneer of 1846 and one of the first men to prospect on the Yuba River in 1849, died at Colusa City July 3.

P. J. Hooper and D. E. Callahan, Pioneers of 1849, died at Sacramento July 22 and 24, respectively. The former was private secretary to Governor John Bigler in 1853, and for many years published the "Folsom Telegraph."

Colonel J. C. Zabriskie, who came from Virginia in 1849, died July 11 at San Francisco at the age of 79. He was Sacramento's first city attorney, and later became prominent in the affairs of the Bay City. His daughter was the wife of Governor J. Neely Johnson.



Miss Ada Fern, aged 16, was thrown from a horse at Adams Springs, Lake County, July 1 and killed.

Tim Flaherty, who mined in Sierra County in 1849, was killed by a cave-in at a Sebastopol, Sonoma County, mine July 13.

A lad named Henderson, herding sheep near Durham, Butte County, July 15 sat upon a railroad tie and fell asleep. He was struck by a train and killed.

Archie McMillan, working on the new State Fair pavilion begin erected in Sacramento City, was accidentally killed July 1.

John Hennesey, in San Francisco, went insane July 7. He found Mrs. Hattie Fellows in her back yard and killed her.

SLIM LAW

Harry Oliver

FOLSOM BILL CAME BACK TO THE valley, after a three-year absence, with a short haircut and a long black music instrument he calls a bassoon. He told his ma, who we know as the Widow Winchester, that he's been playin' in the town band up state at Folsom. Bill's always been the black sheep of our valley—guess we had to have one since Borego is Mex for sheep—so we all try to keep him out of trouble and took his story for what it was worth, even though he did devil the life out of his ma, makin' things harder with a house full of grandchildren to look after that's been carelessly left her by his older brother.

Well, two weeks ago someone swiped about sixty dollars' worth of groceries from Gopher Joe right after he takes them from my store, and our Deputy Sheriff, Slim Law, comes out of the moth balls and starts lookin' for clews and motives.

Now, it's hard to prove whose can of coffee a can is if everybody uses the same brand like they do here. I stock only one kind in my store—the best, and that's the way it is with the rest of the groceries. Slim starts thinkin' and naturally he thought of Folsom Bill, and as Bill's a great hand to figure himself out of a bad spot, started action at once. Slim puts his kids in his Ford, gets a lot of lollypops at my store and goes over to the widow's like he was makin' a social call for the kiddies' benefit.

Folsom Bill is home, as Slim Law figured he'd be, and he can't very well go because of not having any excuse, so he stays. Slim gets the youngsters to playin' and toward evenin' drifts into the kitchen with Bill. Then one of Slim's kids comes in, warm from play, with his little sweater in his hands as he was told to. Bill turns around to light his pipe by the stove, when Slim takes the sweater and puts it over the kid's head, sayin' loud and gruff, "Now I got ya! Stick 'em up! What you got in here?"

Slim's game works like magic. Bill, without turnin', says, "Not so loud. I'll go with you. Don't tell ma. Kin I take my bassoon along?"

Well, the Widow Winchester was glad when we told her Bill was workin' on the new road that's goin' to help the valley so much. In fact, everything's come out fine. The prisoners at the road camp are glad to have Bill's music. Gopher Joe's glad because he got his groceries back; they never was stolen—he put them in the wrong car by mistake. Slim's glad he got something real on Bill when he found a bottle of booze in his pocket. Bill's glad that the only charge Slim pinched him on was bootleggin' and all's he lost was one quart of his tequila. And I'm glad Bill took his shriekin' bassoon where it's appreciated.

Homeless Children

A WORTHWHILE NON-SECTARIAN ENDEAVOR SPONSORED AND SUPPORTED BY THE ORDERS OF NATIVE SONS AND NATIVE DAUGHTERS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

BERTHA A. BRIGGS, PAST GRAND PRESident N.D.G.W., sent to the San Francisco office of the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Central Homeless Children Committee the following description of a circus given in Hollister, San Benito County, by boys and girls from 5 to 10 years of age. This eagerness on the part of young girls and boys to help some child less fortunate than themselves augurs well for the future citizenship of their community:

BIG CIRCUS SATURDAY
APRIL 29, 1933 AT
554 4TH ST. AT 10:30 AM
CAUSE FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN

Saturday afternoon, April 29, a group of ten children appeared at the home of Past Grand President Briggs and presented her with nickels and pennies to the amount of $1.30. This amount covered the proceeds of a circus held by The Good Will Club that morning in the backyard of the home of the president, Genevieve Willson, aged 10 years.

THE GOOD WILL CLUB
Of Hollister, San Benito County.

The Good Will Club learned that Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105 N.D.G.W. had adopted a homeless baby, and these ten little boys and girls and their star performer, "Boots Grant Willson," made up their minds to help the Native Daughters and thought of and planned the whole affair and announced, when making their presentation to Mrs. Briggs, that they wanted the money they had made to be used for the adopted baby. She accepted the gift with due ceremony and gratitude, and wrote a letter of thanks to each member of the club.

Two weeks later, a second circus was held at the home of another member of the club, with several Native Daughters present by special invitation. The proceeds of this performance, amounting to $1.55, were also presented to Mrs. Briggs, at which time an invitation was presented to the members of The Good Will Club to appear at the next meeting of Copa de Oro Parlor to "strut their stuff." Twenty-one performers responded to the invitation and, in the words of Eugene Willson, leader of the cowboy chorus, "We're getting famous!" The stunts consisted of songs, dances, chorus, acrobatic feats, closing with all the performers appearing in "I Love You, California." In this act were Indians, cowboys and a covered wagon, and a real holdup was staged.

The three human rights of every child,—a home, a school, and a place to play,—have been given to over 4,200 children through the efforts of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

"He who would do some great thing in this short life must apply himself to work with such a concentration of his forces as, to idle spectators who live only to amuse themselves, looks like insanity."—Parkman.

PRACTICE RECIPROCITY BY ALWAYS PATRONIZING GRIZZLY BEAR ADVERTISERS

Native Daughters of the Golden West

SANTA ANA—HONORING TWENTY-three candidates for naturalization, Santa Ana No. 235 and Santa Ana No. 256 N.S.G.W. entertained June 12 with a fine program under the chairmanship of Matilda Lemon. Z. B. West, in a splendid talk on "The Bear Flag," outlined the background and history of California's admission to statehood. J. Frank Burke suggested that, in their citizenship here, the candidates should emulate the lives of the finest people of the country whence they came; he emphasized the spirit of democracy and the value of its institutions. Other speakers were Superior Judge Ames, W. W. Wieman, Mrs. Golden Northcross Weston, Dr. C. E. Price, President Mildred Gray and District Deputy Walter E. Hiskey, the two latter extending the Natives' welcome.

During the evening Principal Edith Ritter (Grace No. 242) of Fremont school presented pupils of the school in a very fine americanization program which was greatly enjoyed. She was ably assisted by Miss Mirrle Wilson, at the piano. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Mae West has been elected president of No. 235. Mrs. Eunice Fox, in charge of the successful dinner, had the assistance of a fine committee. Memorial Day was appropriately observed. Recent meetings of the thimble club were held at the homes of Mms. Marsile and Bray.

Grand President Given Nugget.

Georgetown—El Dorado No. 186 received an official visit from Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong, May 24. Accompanying her were Grand Trustee Edna Briggs and members of Piedmont, La Bandera, Fern and Coloma Parlors. Scotch broom, which grows most profusely in this section, decorated the hall.

The ritual was commendably exemplified, and on the Parlor's behalf Past President Ella Stanton presented a nugget of El Dorado County gold to Mrs. Armstrong. Dainty refreshments were served at poppy-laden tables.

Kiddies Do Their Bit.

Hollister—Copa de Oro No. 105 members were entertained May 27 by The Good Will Club, a group of little people who have arranged and successfully carried out two circus performances of their own planning and conducting. The proceeds on both occasions were donated to the Parlor for the benefit of the homeless baby adopted by it. These kiddies range from 5 to 10 years of age. Their program for the entertainment consisted of acrobatic stunts, dances, wisecracks and cowboy choruses, concluding with "I Love You, California," staging a real holdup with indians, covered wagon and all the necessary features. A trained dog, "Boots," is an important member of the cast of twenty-one.

Following the program, the performers were treated to eskimo pies, with a bone for "Boots." The following day, at the request of Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs, a group picture was taken and a print has been mailed to each participant in the show. Alberta Jensen gave a most enjoyable bridge tea recently for the benefit of the homeless baby.

Beautiful Blue-and-Gold Decorations.

Chico—Annie K. Bidwell No. 168 was officially visited by Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong, May 25. One candidate was initiated, and a program, arranged by Mrs. C. A. Wesbrook, was presented by Carmelita Gridler, Arlyne Brooke, Evelyn Boyd, Mary Helen Richards, Eleanor Cummings, Josephine Hall, Rayna Tochterman, Kathryn Jones, Iris Marion. Patty Boyd, the small daughter of President Edna Boyd, dressed as a fairy presented a gift, on the Parlor's behalf, to the Grand President.

Refreshments were served at tables made most beautiful in a blue-and-gold color motif. Maypoles of those colors were placed at intervals along the tables, with gold flower pots of blue larkspur and yellow coreopsis alternating. Golden poppy nutcups had gold nuggets attached to them, and on the nuggets were the letters N.D. in blue. At the officers' table were hand-painted poppy-shaped placecards. Josephine Alexander decorated the tables, and Cora Hintz headed the refreshment committee. At the June 8 meeting of the Parlor, Cora Hintz, in charge of the California history period, gave excerpts from the diary of Pioneer O. B. Coleman, who came via Nicaragua in 1852.

Encouraging Talk.

Elk Grove—The official visit of Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong, May 26, was an outstanding event in the history of Liberty No. 213. Among the many visitors were Past Grands Mary E. Bell, Dr. Eva R. Rasmussen and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Supervising Deputy Bessie Leitch, Deputy Sophia Monteverde and Grand Trustee Edna Briggs. The lodgeroom presented a spring-like scene. One candidate was initiated, and a short service was held in memory of deceased members.

Grand President Armstrong gave a most inspiring and encouraging talk. She was the recipient of numerous gifts, among them a huge boquet of gorgeous flowers, presented by President Nat Core on behalf of Elk Grove No. 41 N.S.G.W., and china, presented by President Hale on behalf of Liberty. A strawberry festival concluded the meeting. Louisa Krull was chairman of the banquet committee, and Muriel Blodgett had charge of the decorations.

Drill Team Appears Flag Day.

Modesto—Morada No. 199 and Modesto No. 11 N.S.G.W. had a joint sociable June 17. Following cards luncheon boxes were auctioned by President Charles Blaine. Robert Benson and Ethel Enos were in charge of arrangements.

Morada's newly organized drill team, directed by Ethel Enos and captained by John Fee, made its initial appearance in the Flag Day parade June 14. Members having birthdays in April, May and June were honor-guests at a banquet June 28. Leila Benson, as president, heads the corps of officers to serve during the July-December term. Agnes Frost is chairman of the first of a series of card parties to be given at the members' homes during the summer season.

Officers' Work Perfect.

Sacramento—Rio Rita No. 253 received an official visit June 5, less than two months following institution. Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong was escorted through a pathway of roses while Marion Weber sang "Roses are Blooming for You," and was presented with a basket of roses by an escort of four girls. During recess three tiny girls sang a song bidding Mrs. Armstrong "Shuffle Off to the Leamington." The Grand President pronounced the officers' work perfect. In attendance were Grand Trustee Edna B. Briggs, Past Grands Mary E. Bell, Dr. Eva Rasmussen and Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, Supervising Deputies Bessie Leitch and Sadie Winn-Brainard, the latter the organizer of Rio Rita. After the meeting refreshments were served. Kay Jones was general chairman of the occasion.

SUBORDINATE PARLORS BRIEFS.

A REVIEW OF THE N.S. GRAND PARLOR

THE DUTY OF A HISTORIAN IS TO record past events. The events of the Native Son Grand Parlor at Grass Valley have gone into the ocean of yesterdays and have thus become part of the history of our Order. To retrace, in thought, the events of those few days the middle of May last, is to recount a pleasant sojourn in the foothills "rising to mountains higher." It is to recall a hospitable community in an especially favored region—one that has no superior for pioneer lore. The Memorial Auditorium lent a good setting to the Grand Parlor deliberations, and its social activities. The limited hotel accommodations were met with generous hospitality on the part of the townspeople, who opened their homes with the same spirit that must have permeated the men and women of an earlier age.

But with all the modernistic atmosphere, the story of the bygone day spoke from every landscape. It spoke loudly, but not as loud as it should have spoken, if the Native Sons for the past twenty-five years had fulfilled the purposes of our Order; and to this end, your Historian, who has been favored with reappointment by Grand President Seawell, will revert as he did at the beginning of his first term. His motto was then and is now, "Mark Our Landmarks!"

There are few, if any, markers on historic spots in and about Grass Valley or Nevada City. The Grand Parlor did rescue the grave of that gifted poet, John Rollin Ridge, from oblivion. But it did nothing more. Why could not the former homes of Lotta Crabtree and Lola Montez have been marked? Despite the fact that the name of Lola Montez is almost disclaimed by many of the present generation, yet she was a woman whose name was emblazoned on the history of her day. She ran the gamut of human emotion and drank from the cup of life as have few women of any age. She stopped in the busy whirl and turmoil of her life to make Grass Valley her home for almost two years. Yet your Historian was told by a prominent Native Daughter of the guest city that her townspeople did not want their community known as having been associated with the life of that notorious woman.

No matter what Lola Montez may have been, she earned a place in the history of early California. Her's is a historical, if not an eminent, name. Good people and bad, make up communities and write history. You cannot write the history of America without the name of Benedict Arnold. Virtue and vice are intermingled in the tide of events. A small plaque where she lived would be appreciated by the lover of history and the romanticist of coming generations.

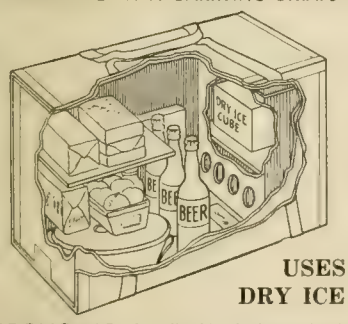
Why cannot future generations have pointed out to them in Grass Valley the old childhood home of that heaven-blessed child, Lotta Crabtree? Not a finger points to those history-making spots in Grass Valley, and it is for this reason that your Historian again and again calls attention to a deficiency in the accomplishments of the Native Sons.

The body of a recent able man will be more tenderly revered because the Past Grand Presidents decided to suitably mark the last resting place of that buoyant, carefree, likeable Past Grand President Jo V. Snyder, whose grave, near that of Ridge, was practically unmarked by stone or marker until the advent of the Grand Parlor. The Past Grands decreed that one of their rank should not lie unnoticed in his grave.

The trip to Downieville, as part of the entertainment of the local committee, was one of the most enjoyable tendered to delegates anywhere. But once arrived in that tranquil and romantic mountain town, the same remissness was apparent. Where or by what mark could one see that there important pages of the history of the West had been written? There appeared to be but one marker, and that on the old court house. The bridge from which the living body of the young Spanish woman was flung by mob rule,—though classed a legal procedure,—to be strangled to death at the end of the death rope, is unmarked.

At that point was enacted one of the tragic and sorrowful pages of early California. The old bridge felt the gnaw of Time and a new one replaces it, but on the same site. Lewis F. Byington lived at Downieville as a boy. He said that the scene upstream from the bridge, where a few hundred feet away the two Yubas meet to continue their dash to the ocean, looked about the same as in his youth. The only exception was that vegetation was denser. So we may assume that the last sight of that unfortunate woman, as she gazed on the face of hangman and spectators, beheld a landscape pretty much as it appears today.

Where is she buried? Where did she kill the man for whose murder she was executed? What other events were enacted in the long past along those now-quiet streets? These questions are unanswered, because historical spots are not marked. Already, lack of information prevents designation. Soon that will apply to all unmarked historical spots.



Why is the grave of William B. Ide unmarked? Why has no reverence and respect been shown to the grave of the man who was president of California for twenty-three days under the Bear Flag Republic? He was the real organizer of the Bear Flag Party. Yet the Orland Boosters Club is, at this late date, undertaking to pay homage to that character and intends to bury his remains in Orland and make it a historical shrine. A laudable undertaking!

Dr. C. W. Chapman, during one of the days of the Grand Parlor, took the writer to a spot between Grass Valley and Nevada City and pointed out the place where the miner cabin of William Randolph Hearst's father had been. Likewise the site of a similar cabin of MacKay, founder of the Postal Telegraph. No marker designates these spots, made famous by fathers whose sons are now known throughout America. The Native Daughters are evincing an interest in marking places and have already rescued many from oblivion. The Native Sons must meet the challenge which fast-eroding Time flaunts in their faces, and act before it is too late!

WORK---WITH ENTHUSIASM!

TO THE OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF Subordinate Parlors N.S.G.W.—Dear Sirs and Brothers: I greet you in the name of the Order to which we have all pledged our allegiance.

I am not prompted by any motive of personal pride in making a special effort at this critical moment to bring our Order up to the standard of numerical strength and influence in the affairs of the civic and social life of our state which it is entitled to enjoy. But I am moved by a deep sense of duty and responsibility which rests upon me as Grand President of the only existing order in the state of our nativity that has specially dedicated itself to the promotion of the welfare of our state and the maintenance of our matchless institutions,—which are, after all, but the more expansive structures builded upon the foundations and fashioned after the pattern that was laid and conceived by the founders and builders of this Commonwealth,—to turn our annually recurring losses of membership into a gain. I believe it can be done. If I did not so believe, I would not be engaged in a fruitless task. The members of the Subordinate Parlors are as vitally interested in the reversal of our gain-and-loss figures as are the members of the Grand Parlor.

It has been the custom of the Order during the many years past, except one, 1928, to employ an organizer. I make no criticism of the earnestness with which these loyal officers have applied themselves to their tasks. Whatever arguments may have justified the system in the early periods of our existence fail to justify a continuance of that system in the changed conditions which have existed during the past seven years, beginning with the year 1926 and ending with 1932, as demonstrated by the statistical table herewith appended. It seems so logical as not to require figures to verify the proposition, that a Parlor which can neither increase nor hold its membership, and which habitually relies on a paid organizer to maintain its quota, is doomed, sooner or later, to find itself slipping beyond the possibility of recovery, notwithstanding the heroic efforts which the most experienced organizer can bring to his aid.

Many, if not all, of the most substantial Parlors have never had or requested the service of an organizer. They did their own organization work, effectively, within their membership. It is repugnant to reason that a stranger to the community could arouse the interest and confidence in eligibles of the type that would become lasting members of the local Parlor, as would the members of such Parlor who have business and social and neighborly contact with the eligibles and who are known in the community for probity and good citizenship. If the members of the local Parlors are so indifferent to the growth of their Parlor that they will not exert themselves in its behalf, how may they hope that an organizer who is not a member of their Parlor would be able to induce eligibles to associate themselves with the Parlor that has lost interest in itself!

If an individual is not enthusiastic in his work, he will sooner or later fail. If the members of a Parlor lose their enthusiasm for its ideals and purposes, it is doomed to surrender its charter. We must enter upon our plan of organization with enthusiasm! Enthusiasm is the motive power which moves men, whether as individuals or in mass formation, to victory. It has been so from the beginning of organized social life, and before. Every great leader whom the world has immortalized won victory by the impetus of the enthusiasm by which he was moved. The men of abundant enthusiasm are leading the world today. We can build our Order up to great numbers if we go about the task with enthusiasm. No order has greater inspirational background or nobler purposes, or more humanity, or more practical objectives, than ours. We can mean much to humanity and the state. When we ourselves fully appreciate the great work to which we are committed, we will move forward with quickened strides to take our place in the first rank of statehood.

We must build from the ground up! The local Parlor is the foundation of our fraternal organization. The Grand Parlor could not exist but for the local Parlors. It is therefore plain that our first interest must be in the success of the local Parlors. To accomplish our primary purpose, some time prior to the meeting of the last Grand Parlor at Grass Valley several conferences were held by the three Grand Vice-presidents for the purpose of discussing ways and means by which the membership of our Order might be restored to its former proportions. Every issue which might affect the result was considered. We unanimously agreed, after several conferences, that the plan adopted by Past Grand President James A. Wilson during his administration, which was successful in 1928, would be peculiarly applicable to this period of business and financial readjustment.

We came to the conclusion that turning back, as far as possible, the sum of $4,000 to the Parlors from which it was taken under a plan which would, at the same time, act as a stimulus to the members of the local Parlors to put forth extra efforts in increasing their membership, was a plan worth giving an earnest, thorough and fair trial. The sum of $2.50, which shall be paid to the brother for each member which he shall bring into his local Parlor under the system hereby adopted, will assist in paying the dues at least of many brothers who find such payments most difficult under existing conditions. We are also of the view that the work of organization will be better handled by the members taking it into their hands, both from the standpoint of increased membership and economy. Further, that a distribution of this fund among the members will have a wholesome effect. After all, the system adopted amounts to compensation paid out for organization purposes.

Space will not permit of further elaboration upon the project. Herewith is appended the table showing the number of initiations and the cost per member beginning with 1926 and ending in 1932. It will be observed that the year 1928 is but one member short of the largest gain, 1927, and surpasses all the other years as shown by the table, save one, by increases varying from 86 to 762. You will please note the small cost percapita during the year 1928, as compared with the years when specially appointed organizers were employed. The table follows:

Year	No. Initiated	Total Cost	Cost per Member
1926	1562	$7694.00	$4.95
1927	1649	6744.00	4.00
1928	1648	4306.00	2.60
1929	1300	6039.00	4.64
1930	1027	5649.00	5.50
1931	1129	4888.00	4.33
1932	896	4355.00	4.85

The above sum [$2.50] is to be paid to the proposer of each candidate who becomes a bonafire member of the local Parlor as a result of such proposal. In no case is payment to exceed the sum of $2.50 on account of the initiation of a single candidate. Said payments are to be made upon the certificate of the secretary of each respective Subordinate Parlor, signed by the president, certifying that the candidate has been initiated into the Parlor upon the proposal of the respective claimant. The above order is to be in effect as and of June 1, 1933.

In addition to the above organization plan, a system of awards or prizes is hereby adopted as follows: There shall be paid out of the treasury of the Grand Parlor the sum of $100 to the Subordinate Parlor which shall, from and including July 1, 1933, to and including December 31, 1933, initiate into its Parlor the largest number of candidates. A second prize in the sum of $50 will be paid in like manner to the Parlor which shall during such period initiate the second largest number of candidates. The minimum number in each case shall not be less than twenty candidates to entitle a Parlor in any case to receive said award. That is to say, that a Parlor must initiate in every case at least twenty members to entitle it to receive said award or prize.

The sum of $100 shall be paid to the Parlor which shall within the period above specified initiate into its Parlor the largest percentage of members based upon the bonafide roll of membership of said respective Parlor as shown by its records as and of July 1, 1933. The sum of $50 shall be paid to the Parlor which shall, within the period above specified, initiate the second largest percentage of members in accordance with the rule last above set out.

The recording secretary and the president of each Subordinate Parlor shall in every case certify to the Grand Secretary the names of the candidates initiated, their sponsors and such other facts as may hereafter be deemed necessary to make a just award. In no case shall the Parlor in either of the above named classes, or in both, be entitled to more than one prize or award. In case of a tie the prize or award shall be distributed equally to the highest tying contenders.

It is the hope of the promoters of the plan this day adopted that it will stimualte a spirit of fraternal rivalry which shall not in the slightest degree mar the good fellowship and brotherly love which are the basis of our Order. All contests must be conducted in a spirit of true friendship and fairness, and to the end that our Order, in the final analysis, will be the principal beneficiary of the efforts of our entire membership.

Finally, brothers, let every Parlor as a united body pull together and make a test of our strength for at least the balance of the year, that we may demonstrate how much may be accomplished with just a little effort on the part of all.

With a feeling of confidence that our efforts will be rewarded with surprising success, I am, fraternally yours,

EMMET SEAWELL,

AWAKE, FROM THE DEEP

At the close of the Grass Valley, Nevada County, Grand Parlor the Native Sons pictured here took a jaunt, underground, to the 8,600-foot level of the North Star Mine. It was a hurried trip, too, for the skip dropped them at the rate of 1,500 feet a minute. Besides the usual mining operations, they witnessed the firing of a round of holes, and were shown a vein of gold, eight inches wide, that was followed for more than 300 feet. In the group, garbed for underground operations, are, right to left: Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin, Mayor M. J. Brock (Quartz Parlor No. 58), Junior Past Grand President Seth Millington, Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, Grand First Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig, and Superintendent Mann of the North Star.

The Grand Trustees also met, and organized by the election of Eldred L. Meyer (Santa Monica Bay No. 267), as chairman, and Henry S. Lyon (Placerville No. 9) as secretary.

Faithful Visit Historic Weaverville.

Weaverville—Overlooked by snow-capped peaks, reminder of the late spring, in a God-made amphitheater,—grove that the poet speaks of as the Creator's first temple,—Fred H. Greely Past Presidents Assembly No. 6 held its annual open-air initiation June 6 just outside this historic Trinity County little city. Notables witnessing the scene, some appearing as substitutes in the assembly's ritual team, were Senior Past Grand Charles L. Dodge, Junior Past Grand Seth Millington, Grand First Vice Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Second Vice Harmon D. Skillin, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Past Governor General June Longshore of the General Past Presidents Association and Grand Third Vice J. Hartley Russell.

Three candidates were initiated, one for Colusa No. 69 and two for Mount Bally No. 87. Conferring the work was the following team: junior past, Robert P. Dixon (Silver Star No. 63); senior past, H. J. Tofft (Silver Star No. 63); president, John P. Colford (Sutter No. 261); first vice, Barney Barry (Silver Star No. 63); second vice, John T. Regan (South San Francisco No. 157); third vice, Harmon D. Skillin (Castro No. 232); marshal, Elton C. Fitch (Colusa No. 69); inside sentinel, Albert Dokken (Colusa No. 69); outside sentinel, Peter J. Delay (Marysville No. 6).

It was a two-day visit to Weaverville for the faithful. The program opened Saturday afternoon with a ball game between teams of Sutter No. 261 and Mount Bally No. 87. The latter won in a closely contested battle, score 4 to 2. Victor and vanquished, in true fraternal spirit, on the following afternoon united to battle with the team of the Moose lodge of Redding on the same grounds. The picked nine won, score 9 to 6. The latter game was preceded by an exhibition drill by the drum corps of Colusa No. 69, which came to Weaverville twenty-two strong in attractive uniforms. It was the first time many Trinity County residents saw a drum corps.

Saturday night there was a reception and dance in Native Sons Hall and Veteran Memorial Auditorium, the latter the first building of its character to be erected in California. Of great interest to the visiting Native Sons was the old fire engine, stationed outside the auditorium as a pioneer-day relic; it is said to have been brought around Cape Horn for use first in San Francisco, later in Sacramento, and finally in Redding. Music for the dance was furnished by the Weaverville high school orchestra.

Following the open-air initiation, and prior to the ball game Sunday afternoon, was the barbecue, midway between the ball park and the scene of the initiatory ceremonies. Here, Horace J. Leavitt of Mount Bally No. 87, head of the general committee, spoke on behalf of the new Grand President of the Order, Justice Emmet Seawell, expressing regret at the inability of the Order's head to attend. Justice Seawell's call to Los Angeles to hold court prevented, Leavitt explained. He introduced as the after-dinner speakers Junior Past Grand Millington and Grand Second Vice Skillin.

On the coming and going trips the visitors found much of interest at old Mount Shasta City and its museum, and at the lone grave at which road engineers shied when laying out the Redding-Weaverville highway.—P.J.D.

Harvey T. Nelson. About 150 students attended the banquet.

Addresses were made by Mayor Nelson, Captain Earl V. Topp of the training ship, First Vice-president James E. Sloan and Secretary Sweeter. In the course of his remarks the latter said: "The training of our young men for positions as officers of American vessels is a laudable undertaking, in view of the fact that many of these positions now occupied by men of foreign birth. The curtailment of the nautical school even for a temporary period, and as an economy measure, would be a sacrifice California could ill afford to make." Frank Castro headed the barbecue committee.

To Dedicate Seven Redwoods.

June 17 the Parlor's ritual team, headed by President George Eckman, went to Ukiah, accompanied by the drum corps, and initiated two candidates for Ukiah No. 71. This was the start of a drive by the latter Parlor for new members.

In memory of Past President Louis Julliard, a former grand marshal of the Order, Santa Rosa has planted seven redwoods in Julliard Park, recently donated to the "City of Roses" by the Julliard heirs, and they will be dedicated by Grand President Justice Emmet Seawell during the Admission Day celebration. N.S.G.W. LIBRARY ENRICHED.

The library of the Grizzly Bear Club in Native Sons Building now has a complete file of the official magazines of the California Fish and Game Commission, entitled "California Fish and Game." This otherwise unobtainable collection is the generous gift of Francis A. Cavagnaro of Stanford Parlor No. 76 N.S.G.W. The Fish and Game Commission has agreed to supply future issues, so that the club will have one of the few complete files of this now-important publication.

As the subject of conservation and propagation of fish and game in the state is of great importance to every Native Son, this collection should prove a valuable source of information. The set commences with Vol. I, issued October 1914, and comprises the eighteen volumes so far issued. A reading of these volumes will give one a complete history of all the work done by the commission since it was instituted in 1871. There are also a number of articles by sportsmen and experts from all parts of the world on matters of breeding, and the care of fish and game for both commercial and sporting use.

MOTHERS BANQUET GUESTS.

At its annual mothers banquet, Orinda Parlor No. 56 N.D.G.W. had as guests sixty-six mothers of members, each of whom was presented with a gift. The dramatic club presented two plays, and the balance of the evening was devoted to games. May 17, the members born in April and May were given a birthday party and President Marie McGrath, on the Parlor's behalf, presented each with a very pretty apron. Mrs. Charlotte Gunther, in honor of her daughter, Grand Inside Sentinel Orinda Giannini, furnished a beautiful birthday cake.

Orinda's June 9 meeting was dedicated to Past Grand President Emma G. Foley, in recognition of her birthday. The officers, beautifully arrayed in evening gowns, made a wonderful picture. A buffet supper was served, and Past Grand Foley was presented with a gift.

SONOMA COUNTY LANDMARK NOW IN CALIFORNIA'S PARK SYSTEM.

June 5, title to "Lachryma Montis," the historic Sonoma County home of General Mariano G. Vallejo near Sonoma City, passed to the State of California and will be preserved as a landmark under the supervision of the State Park Commission. The property embraces some seventeen acres, and a museum will be a feature of the new state park.

Patriotic citizens contributed one-half the purchase price of the property, and the State subscribed the other half and will bear the cost of upkeep and repair. The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West and Sonoma County were liberal contributors to the purchase-fund.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE SPECIAL SESSION OF THE SEVENty-third Federal Congress adjourned June 16. At the suggestion, and on the insistence, of President Franklin Roosevelt it enacted many important bills, which have become laws. The largest peace-time authorizations of expenditures in the history of the nation, characterized the session of the Congress; they were made to aid and to hasten the return of prosperity. Among the enacted legislation is the National Industrial Recovery Act, declared by the President "the most important and far-reaching legislation ever enacted by the American Congress." Following the signing of this bill, he issued a statement; quoting therefrom:

"The law was passed to put people back to work—to let them buy more of the products of farms and factories and start our business at a living rate again. This task is in two stages—first, to get many hundreds of thousands of the unemployed back on the payroll by snowfall and, second, to plan for a better future for the longer pull.

"While we shall not neglect the second, the first stage is an emergency job. It has the right of way. The second part of the Act gives employment by a vast program of public works. Our studies show that we should be able to put many men at once and to step up to about a million new jobs by October 1, and a much greater number later.

"We must put at the head of our list those works which are fully ready to start now. Our first purpose is to create employment as fast as we can, but we should not pour money into unplanned projects. . . .

"In my inaugural address I laid down the simple proposition that nobody is going to starve in this country. It seems to me to be equally plain that no business which depends for existence on paying less than living wages to its workers has any right to continue in this country.

"By 'business' I mean the whole of commerce as well as the whole of industry; by workers I mean all workers, the white collar class as well as the men in overalls, and by living wages I mean more than bare subsistence level—I mean the wages of decent living.

"Throughout industry, the change from starvation wages and starvation employment to living wages and sustained employment can, in large part, be made by an industrial covenant to which all employers shall subscribe. It is greatly to their interest to do this because decent living, widely spread among our 125,000,000 people, eventually means the opening up to industry of the richest market the world has known.

"It is the only way to utilize the so-called excess capacity of our industrial plants. This is the principle that makes this one of the most important laws that ever came from Congress, because, before the passage of this Act, no such industrial covenant was possible. . . .

"It is a challenge to industry, which has long insisted that, given the right to act in unison, it could do much for the general good which has hitherto been unlawful. From today it has that right. Many good men voted this new charter with misgivings. I do not share those doubts. . . .

"This is not a law to foment discord, and it will not be executed as such. This is a time for mutual confidence and help, and we can safely rely on the sense of fair play among all Americans to assure every industry which now moves forward promptly in this united drive against depression that its workers will be with it to a man. . . .

"Finally, this law is a challenge to our whole people. There is no power in America that can force against the public will such action as we require, but there is no group in America that can withstand the force of an aroused public opinion.

"This great co-operation can succeed only if those who bravely go forward to restore jobs have aggressive public support and those who lag are made to feel the full weight of public disapproval. . . .

"As in the great crisis of the World War, it puts a whole people to the simple but vital test: 'Must we go on in many groping, disorganized, separate units to defeat or shall we move as one great team to victory?'"

The Senate fact-finding committe of the California State Legislature, after due and careful investigation, presented several economy measures, designed to aid the burdened taxpayers without inflicting an injustice on any individual or group. The purpose was to lower the costs of government, as they should be lowered, by eliminating notorious extravagances. Most of the measures passed the Legislature, but during the recess of the law-making body they were dealt death-blows by the veto-axe.

Those measures should, in the interest of the tax-burdened farmers and small-home owners of the state, be revived by the Legislature when it reconvenes, and passed over the Governor's veto. That would, of course, be contrary to the desire of the political-racketeers minority, but the taxpaying majority of California citizens demand that it be done. The conduct of the Legislature, in this time of need, will clearly indicate if there be any possibility of relief from state misgovernment, unless the ballot box be resorted to.

Coming, the great national holiday—the Fourth of July! So, give thought to "The American's Creed," written in 1917 by William Tyler Page, clerk of the Federal House of Representatives:

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed, a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty [illegible] to love it, to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

"We have brought about our present unhappy condition by divorcing education, 'industry, politics, business and economics from morality,'" declares a statement issued by the National Catholic Welfare Conference, June 7. In other words, dishonesty, the general practice, accounts for most of our ills.

If you have gold, better disgorge it, for the Federal Attorney-General says positively that not only will the hoarders' names be publicized, but they will be prosecuted, also.

"Don't let the Morgan revelations further weaken your faith in government," says the Livingston, Merced County, "Chronicle." "Remember, it is government, a governmental agency, which is revealing to you these hidden secrets involving polite bribery. The Morgan system of having a preferred list of public men . . . involves the same principle as other better-known evils of politics. . . . The idea is to put men in public office under obligations."

Testimony before the Sacramento County Grand Jury indicates willful mismanagement, if not outright crookedness, caused the failure of two of the Capital City's banks. Evidence reflecting unfavorably on the state banking department was included. Considering that fact, and the Beesemeyer building-and-loan thievery, a grave doubt arises as to whether state supervision is of any value—to those who entrust their funds to others.

Be thankful for small favors: July 1, the postage rate on first-class mail for local delivery will be reduced to two cents an ounce.

"How about the accusation that Uncle Sam is dealing niggardly with those who once wore his uniform?", commented the "Bee" of Sacramento, editorially, June 15. "Even under the revised Roosevelt program, the United States Veterans Bureau will be getting an amount exceeding the combined expenditures for such purposes by Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

"Compare their casualties and our own with the amount of compensation they have paid thus far and our own. The figures follow: France, casualties, 4,950,000; number assisted by the government, 750,000, or one in seven. Great Britain, casualties, 4,266,000; number compensated, 499,000, or one in eight. United States, casualties, 234,000; compensated 737,000, or three times as many as were actually wounded in battle. On the other hand if the French program were being followed in America, assistance would be limited to 37,000 cases, or of the British, to 30,000.

"Moreover, the annual expenditure for veterans' aid in the three countries named last year per casualty case was: France, $51, Great Britain, $58. United States, $2,658. The outlay in the United States was forty-five times that of England, and fifty times that of France. The fact is that history has failed to disclose a government so bountiful in the extension of its largesse to former soldiers and sailors as Uncle Sam. He leads the rest of the world combined."

In a certain chain of newspapers there has been unlimited publicity advocating a national sales tax, which proposal, incidentally, was rejected by the national administration. Here's a comment from the Willows, Glenn County, "Journal":

"William Randolph Hearst, mighty publisher, objects strenuously to an increase in income taxes. He favors a sales tax to raise money to pay the interest on several billions of bonds for vast public works to aid unemployment. Hearst is worth many millions. Like most others of great wealth he objects to paying more income tax to aid the poor. He would compel the poor to raise most of the money by imposition of a sales tax. Like a majority of rich men Hearst is a great patriot as long as his own pocketbook is not touched."

An account of factional uprisings among Tuolumne County Chinese in October 1856 is contained in original letters and documents gathered by Prof. Herbert G. Florcken of the Modesto Junior College history department, reports the Modesto, Stanislaus County, "News Herald." One of the letters, penned at Columbia, October 24, 1856,—then the headquarters of the Second Brigade, Third Division, California State Militia,—was written by Brigadier-General Thomas N. Cazneau to Governor J. Neely Johnson. It says:

"For some time past, serious difficulties have arisen between our Chinese residents, understood to belong to separate factions, which have now assumed a deplorable character. A body of Hong Kong Chinamen estimated at 400 have concentrated at the Rock River Ranch in this (Tuolumne) county, armed with spears, swords, battle cleavers and other war-like implements peculiar to these people, and also with muskets obtained from San Francisco. They have in addition a small brass field piece rudely mounted.

"At Chinese Camp (likewise in this county)

In Memoriam

LOUISE EVELYN SCHREINER

To the Officers and Members of Orinda Parlor No. 71 N.D.G.W.: We your committee appointed to draft resolutions of love and respect in memory of our departed sister, Louise Evelyn Schreiner, do submit the following:

Again our Heavenly Father has seen fit to enter our Parlor and take from our midst to the Grand Parlor above our beloved sister, Louise Evelyn Schreiner. Where in the love we have entered and the good she has done by those who are sorrowing and distressed be it

Resolved, that though we bow to His divine will, our hearts are saddened by the loss of our dear sister yet the memory of her noble life will be an inspiration to us for all time.

And at home, in the heavenly halls of God
By the valley of rest so free,
Some day, some time, when our work is done,
With joy we shall meet her there.

To the bereaved husband and relatives we extend our heartfelt sympathy, and commend them to Him who orders all things well. Resolved, That our Charter be draped for a period of thirty days, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the husband of our deceased sister, that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication, and that a copy be spread in full upon the minutes of our Parlor.

Respectfully submitted in P.D.F.A.,

MYRA RUMRILL,
VERNA H. PEERS,
HATTIE E. ROBERTS,
Committee.

Prosperity Sign—Indian legend holds that the great cross of snow that has appeared again this year on the slope of Mount Tallac, overlooking Lake Tahoe, is a sign of prosperity. This white cross has been evident on the mountain in various years for untold centuries, and the story is that summers following its appearance are certain to bring prosperity.

Past Grand Presidents Herman C. Lichtenberger and John T. Newell, and Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer of the Native Sons were among the many in attendance.

FLAG DAY AT CASA FIGUEROA.

Flag Day, June 14, four flags were presented to Casa Figueroa—the Spanish, by Mrs. Arrata de Voorhees; the Mexican, by Eugene Plummer; the California State (Bear), by President Mattie Labory Gara on behalf of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W.; the United States of America, by Dr. Owen C. Coy, director of the California State Historical Association.

Dr. Coy, the speaker of the day, gave an interesting and educational talk on California history, and stated that history has much more of real romance than any fiction that could be written. Refreshments were served by the casa hostess, Mrs. Anita Begue Packman, assisted by Mrs. Julie Patroli, Florence D. Schoneman, Teresa L. Bouttier, Maria Walsh and others.

ORGANIZE FOR MEMBERSHIP BUILDING.

At the call of Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, the presidents and the first vice-presidents of the Native Son Parlors in Los Angeles County, together with many deputy and district deputy grand presidents, had a very interesting meeting June 20 at which much was accomplished. The group decided to request the Parlors of the county to co-operate in a drive for new members on a large scale. The names of desirable eligibles are to be procured from various sources, and large rallies, at which good programs will be featured, are planned under the auspices of the combined Parlors.

President Henry G. Bodkin of Hollywood No. 196 was appointed chairman of this new Central Membership Committee. A luncheon club was also organized, with President Leslie Packard of Los Angeles No. 45 as chairman. The first gathering was held June 23. All members of the Order are invited to the meetings of the luncheon club.

The group also went on record to urge Parlors in the district to support the statewide Admission Day celebration at Santa Rosa, and to request the local Interparlor N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Committee to prepare for some kind of September 9 celebration in or around Los Angeles for those unable to go to Santa Rosa. A committee was appointed to arrange publicity for the Order of Native Sons in this district. The Central Membership Committee will meet again July 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the office of Henry G. Bodkin.—W.H.O.

OFFICERS TO BE PUBLICLY INSTALLED.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. elected officers June 7, Miss Dolores Malin being chosen president. Mothers Day was observed May 31, and under the chairmanship of Ann Shiebusch a delightful evening was enjoyed. The final party of the bridge tourney, June 14, was a success in every particular. Flora Holy (chairman), Ruth Ruiz, Lucy Malin, Olinda Kerby, Margaret Carter, Sophia Stewart and Adele White had charge of the clubhouse party June 28; there was a big crowd, and a goodly sum was cleared. The sewing circle spent a pleasant afternoon at the Montebello home of Jennie Raymond; chairman Mildred Ripling presented an attractive box of dainty articles.

Los Angeles' July calendar includes: 5th, initiation. 8th, sewing club meeting at home of Bertha Murray; phone reservations to PL 3268. 12th, beach party; Esther Renne, chairman. 19th, potluck dinner and speaker. 26th, public installation officers.

CO-OPERATION ASSURES GROWTH.

Compton—Compton Parlor No. 273 N.S.G.W., considerably shaken shortly after its institution, is showing the real pioneer spirit and making fine progress. Three candidates were initiated June 13, and the ritual was exemplified by the Parlor officers, headed by President Dr. Laurence W. Cowan, in a very creditable manner. Large delegations were present from Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 and Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267, and the former turned over to Compton sixteen dollars, the returns from a dance given for No. 273's benefit. The Parlor and its officers were highly commended by Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, Grand Inside Sentinel William A. Reuter, District Deputy Arthur Leonard and Deputy Grand President Walter Odemar.

"With the wonderful co-operation given by adjacent Parlors and the endeavors of its own members, Compton will keep on growing," says Secretary William Don Castillo.

WATER...at five cents a ton

"There it is; take it!" Cheers answered engineer William Mulholland that day in November 1913, as water roared from the new Aqueduct, heralding an era of amazing progress for Southern California. Today, twenty years later, that Aqueduct still carries water 250 miles to Southern Californians . . . for 5 cents a ton. When that great project was completed in 1913, this Bank was already ten years old; had $7,000,000 in deposits . . . six bank branches. Today it has fifty-five such offices contributing to the community's development. Since 1903 . . . through good times and bad . . . California Bank has stood ready to lend money to sound business enterprises. It will continue to do so.

PAST PRESIDENT HONORED.

Santa Monica Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. June 7 honored Past President J. Howard Blanchard at a dinner. Also present were members of Troop No. 10 Boy Scouts of America, sponsored by the Parlor, who put on a brief program. Blanchard has been in charge of the troop the past five years. Two candidates were initiated at the meeting following the dinner, President Arthur Leonard and his officers exemplifying the ritual. The next past president to be honored is William Dowsing.

June 21, the Parlor held its annual pioneer night dance. Three hundred people attended, mostly attired in pioneer costume. Bert Bair's Native Son orchestra furnished the music. A midsummer dinner dance in Santa Monica is being planned for early August, with an added feature of midnight swimming. Carol Loftner's fourteen-piece orchestra will furnish the music. Full particulars in the next issue of The Grizzly Bear.

LOVELY YARD SCENE OF ACTIVITIES.

Long Beach—The thimble club of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. met June 8 in the lovely yard at Gussie Taber's home and sewed for the needy, and June 29 a steak bake was held there for members, their families and friends. June 15 plans were made for a cooked-food sale at the municipal market July 1. The committee in charge includes Alice Waldow (chairman), Mabel Emery, Gertrude Riddle and Violet Henshilwood.

BIG CROWD AT BIRTHDAY FEAST.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. had a very largely attended meeting June 2, when questions of finance were discussed and officers were elected. Charles Straube was chosen for president, and John V. Scott was retained as secretary. The institution anniversary outing to Catalina June 11 attracted some 300 and was very enjoyable. Among the assistants of Charles Straube, in charge of arrangements, were Ray Rehart, Walter Slosson, Homer Chapelle, Walter Odemar, Ernest Orfila and Walter Baskerville. The June birthday dinner, prepared by "Chef" Charles Gassagne and assistants, was exceptionally well attended. After the feast came a program, presented by The California Golden Song Birds under the direction of Constance Henry Beauer. Scoutmaster Robert E. Dunn wants to borrow equipment for the Yosemite outing of Ramona Troop No. 109 Boy Scouts of America.

Ramona's July program includes: 7th, installation officers. 14th, initiation. 21st, monthly birthday dinner, also honoring Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer; First Vice-president Walter Odemar, directing, promises a special attraction.

"SYMPHONIES UNDER THE STARS."

The twelfth annual season of "symphonies under the stars" will open Tuesday, July 11, in the Hollywood Bowl. Many innovations on this summer's programs are expected to prove especially attractive to music lovers. Alfred Hertz, "father of the Bowl," will conduct the opening concert, to be followed the remainder of the first week by Nicholas Slonimsky, one of the finest symphonic leaders in the world. The first ballet will be presented Saturday, July 15, when Fanchon and Marco, nationally known stage producers, will offer a colorful spectacle.

One of the innovations this year will be a series of "twilight" concerts late Sunday afternoons. These probably will start between 5 and 7 o'clock, Manager Glenn M. Tindall says. The exact starting hour will be announced later. This is the first time in the Bowl's history that Sunday programs have been a part of the regular season.

Concerts will be presented Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights, and Sunday evenings, for eight weeks, concluding September 3. A new scale of admission prices adopted by the Symphonies Under the Stars Foundation makes fifty cents the minimum for each program. Season book tickets will be good for all events.

the opposing faction known as the Canton Chinamen are concentrated to the number of two or three hundreds, armed with implements similar to those in the hands of the Hong Kong men with the exception of muskets. Today a large team, partly loaded with spears, battle axes and provinder started from this town, and large bodies of Chinamen are en route for the scene of expected hostilities."

The letter goes on to say the county sheriff had shown no inclination to interfere. For that reason, Brigadier-General Cazneau sets forth he will have to act himself to keep down the expected battle. "In view of meeting the contingency," he wrote, "I have directed Sergeant Throckmorton with Privates Ward and Mullins of the Fusileers to proceed to Chinese Camp with twenty stands of arms." No letter telling how the soldiers fared against the 700 or 800 Chinese has yet been found.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

NEW BRIDAL GOWNS VARY IN TYPES. It is a funny thing about wedding dresses. They are alike, and yet different. Most brides wear long and rather high-necked satin or crepe dresses. The veil may or may not be lace. But somehow the ingredients combine in more different ways than there are colors to the rainbow. Therefore, do not let saleswomen or dressmakers tell you what sort of dress you want, if you understand your type. Roughly speaking, there are three sorts—the romantic bride, the very chic and simple bride, and the very feminine bride. All three sorts are charming in the right girl.

The white satin wedding gown with sweeping train and filmy veil is back in the glamorous bridal pageant. The fashionable brides who are sweeping down the aisles of the historic old churches have chosen bridal gowns of dead white, instead of the pale blues and pinks formerly in vogue. Longer trains are the rule; some of them sweep the floor for two yards. Many of the veils trail almost the length of the train, being designed to fall over the bride's face when she enters the church, and to be swept back from it when she leaves.

Guests who attend fashionable weddings should dress as formally as the bride. Rich crepes and velvets make up frocks which are designed on long, slender lines with skirts about ankle length. The most popular wrap is an elbow or waist length cape made of fur or fabric to match the frock.

Hats vary from broad-brimmed straws to small toques trimmed with flowers or lacquered leaves, and are often finished with a nose veil filming the eyes.

The bride's boquet is conventionally round and is made of gardenias. The florists have helpful suggestions. A pretty effect is gotten by attaching sprigs to the silk markers of a prayer book, if one be carried. Flower muffs are also popular, but must be kept small or they will look heavy. Some brides like real orange blossoms worked into the cap which holds the veil. This must be done carefully, to avoid appearing heavy and pretentious.

It is not difficult to find appropriate gifts for the bride who will motor travel on the wedding trip. Articles useful and luxurious are also plentiful for the one who is to prepare a home. The list is endless, from rugs to silver. If the bride cares for color, there is the new cutlery, or to be more modish in expression, the flat ware may be purchased in any favored color.

Cotton has gone grand, for it sweeps everything before it all day long. It started modestly, as the basis of simple evening dresses of the sort worn on a boat, at parties, beach clubs, or home affairs. Now it is the bright particular star of the grandest ball.

Organdie has been jeweled and sequined and generally bedecked, but it is really most successful when it keeps its own character. So flattering is organdie that it is easy to select something in this youthful fabric as a gift for the young girl. It is used for trimmings, blouses, jackets, hats, neckwear and gloves.

The fabric glove is proving very popular, always matching the frock. Gloves are determined to be different from day to day. White gloves have gauntlet tops with black linen applique on the flare. These novel gloves are an excellent accompaniment to the black linen suit or frock.

Black linen is an insistent note in coats, frocks and other feminine apparel. So we find it with white trim in frocks and swagger coats, the newest offering in the way of the somber linen weaves. Linen is generally classed with the cotton family, a little heavier than the handkerchief sort, but very fine and proving how wide the range of color can be.

The plaid is either squared or biased. Plaids of indestructible organdie are a good investment, and may be had in every color of the rainbow. They are seen at all smart affairs. Slim, straight and well fitted, seems to be the general formula for this season's styles, with variations in both fabric and design serving to give the smart and individual touch to the costume.

With the return to favor of cotton materials comes the re-establishment of the all-over cotton lace frock, of coarse design, made over a deep blue voile slip. The dress is sleeveless, and the slip fastens high around the throat instead of turning back with the dress lapels, a note which is quite novel and interesting. A dark belt with a jeweled buckle, a white or blue hat and pumps are worn with this costume.

A new note for cotton is the frock made of string lace. Many beautiful designs are shown in varied colors. Suits are also made of string lace, loosely woven in a sort of homespun effect. These look cool, and may be kept fresh and unmussed.

The loose, informally-cut coat is worn with a crispy striped red-and-white gillet buttoning down the front, and topped with a scarf pinned with a crystal clip. A red-and-white striped hat, and red shoes and bag complete this costume. Who would ever dream that string could make such gorgeous looking frocks?

If you go in for all of the summer sports, your wardrobe will, of course, include a bathing suit and many pairs of slacks and shorts. You will be very modern in stripes or very dashing in solid colors, or you may mix your colors.

Fishing, hunting, hiking, swimming, golfing, tennis and bicycling each calls for its own clothing, which is designed to afford a maximum of exposure to the sun's rays, plus unrestricted freedom of action.

Bathing suits are more colorful than heretofore. It seems yellows are most popular, but the blues are fine. Brilliant hues are among the favorites for the younger set. Suits have been reduced and reduced until now they are as near minimum as the law allows. A sunburn can be most painful and even dangerous, so one must cover up.

White knitted slacks are tailored as a man's. They are worn with a simple red knitted shirt opened at the neck, and are vastly becoming. Shirt and slacks meet with a red-and-white canvas belt.

A WESTERN GARDEN

(EDNA BIGGS.)

Behold the palm, the tropic's pride,
Fanning the fir that stands by her side;
The fir, all drooping and swaying,
Wishing for snow, yet not dismaying.
The pool, with its flowers and fishes,
Stirs the heart like fleeting wishes;
The little rock garden, with cactus and sedum,
Tells of the desert and its dull, lonely freedom.
Rare plants from Africa, China and Asia,
All nod together by the fragrant acacia.
'Round cottage, mansion, on hillside, plain,
The gardens are growing in sunshine and rain;
True altars of beauty, and pride, and love,
Scattering incense to Heaven above.

(This verse came to The Grizzly Bear from Edna Biggs of Martinez, Contra Costa County.—Editor.)

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

PRESIDENT FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT has launched his National Industrial Recovery program, and it promises to be, as it should be, a grand success. It is estimated that it will result in the re-employment of at least 2,500,000 now-idle persons, and will add around $34,000,000 to weekly payrolls. The whole program is devoted to the problem of re-employment, and the expressed objective of the national administration is to solve the problem by Labor Day, September 4, of this year. No force will be used in the campaign "except conscience and opinion," —most effective weapons.

"This is a test of patriotism," says a bulletin issued in connection with the program. "It is the time to demonstrate the faith of our fathers and our belief in ourselves. We are a people of disciplined democracy to a self-control—sufficient to unite our purchasing power—our labor power—our management power to carry out this great national covenant with vigor, with determination, but with the calm composure and fair play which should always mark the American way."

July 27, a letter from President Roosevelt was delivered to every employer in the United States along with a form of agreement pledging the employer's acceptance of the re-employment program. "This agreement," he says, "is part of a nation-wide plan to raise wages, create employment, and thus increase purchasing power and restore business. That plan depends wholly on united action by all employers. For this reason I ask you, as an employer, to do your part by signing." What the President is asking of all employers of more than two persons is: that child labor be abolished; that a $14 to $15 minimum wage and a forty-hour week be established for the white-collar class; that a 30 to 40 cents an hour minimum wage and a thirty-five hours maximum week with an eight-hour day maximum be set for factory and mechanical labor.

From recent occurrences, it is presumed that a determined effort will be made to have the next Federal Congress amend the Exclusion Law, so that "immigrants from Japan and certain other countries of the Far East whose nationals are not eligible to citizenship in the United States may be admitted on the same basis as is now open to so-called quota nations."

The yellow-dollar, in the guise of goodwill, is the real impelling motive behind this plan to open the immigration gates to Japs—to make California and the Pacific Coast of the United States safe and sure for Japan! Many powerful organizations, church and civic, are sponsoring the Jap-quota proposal, and unless those having the welfare of California at heart take steps to stop the Jap conquest of American opinion and be constantly on guard, the law will be amended to the satisfaction of the Japs, both yellow and white.

Secretary V. S. McClatchy of the California Joint Immigration Committee cautions: "We should, as does Japan, take care that in inviting the good-will of other nations we do not sacrifice the vital welfare of our own country."

"Tax tigers are eating up the nation's resources," says the "San Francisco Chronicle" editorially. "While business starves, workers take pay slashes and everyone struggles under depleted income, the levies for federal, state, county and city taxes go on virtually unchecked. An incredible number of taxing agencies continue to heap burdens on the people struggling to get back to some normal balance. . . . A very large part of the expenditure that makes up the tax levy is dead weight, charges on public debts gayly assumed in more prosperous days, long-term bonds on which the return is guaranteed by iron clad contracts. . . . The tax tigers got into the corral in better times, purring like house cats and ingratiating themselves with the family. Even in those days it was noticeable that they ate a great deal but they pleaded that it was only scraps from the table. Shrinkage of income has not been accompanied by corresponding reduction of taxes. The lower the income falls, the greater the proportion of the taxes. This is the most serious menace to every program for recovery." The people of California, incidentally, are going to pay more taxes, in one form and another, than ever before. And much of the increased tax-revenue will go to continue financing wasteful extravaganees in state, county and city governments. The cost of government must be reduced, by kicking the political racketeers out of government.

Marriages and divorces are decreasing throughout the nation. In California last year the percentage decrease was, respectively, 9.2 and 6.7 percent. That's not to be wondered at. The laws of both God and man are, with general approval and applaud, openly transgressed. Why, therefore, bother about a marriage ceremony, or go to the expense and trouble of obtaining a divorce? As a nation, we are liberal minded. So, eliminate the camouflage and legalize what has, to our shame, become a custom—"free love."

Addressing the National Congress of Parents and Teachers at Seattle, Dr. Anthony Blanks of the University of California pleaded for America to return to basic simplicities and homely living. "Yesterday men frequently spent all their lives with the same wife and dad could snooze on the old horsehair sofa without being disturbed by some crooner from Medicine Hat," Dr. Blanks said. "Today Reno is a national shrine and the old-fashioned three R's have become rouge, rum and runabouts. This apparently frivolous way of stating a very serious situation implies that yesterday we had some standards that were positive. We knew where we were going."

In an address to the Civilian Conservation Corps of 300,000 young men July 17, President Franklin Roosevelt said: "Too much in recent years, large numbers of our population have sought out success as an opportunity to gain money with the least possible work. It is time for each and every one of us to cast away self-destroying, nation-destroying efforts to get something for nothing and to appreciate that satisfying reward and safe reward come only through honest work. That must be the new spirit of the American future."

The Japs and the Mexis in the southland have been having labor troubles among themselves. In a statement, the Mexican Consul called attention "to the intolerable working conditions, the employment of child labor and the inhumanly low wage scale of from 6 cents an hour for children and from 9 to 13 cents for adults paid to Mexican agricultural workers employed by Japanese farmers in Los Angeles and Orange Counties." The Federal Government should cure that sore by deporting all concerned!

The National Railroad Workers' Syndicate of Mexico has asked that government to compel the discharge of Americans employed on railroads in Lower California. The Mexican government should do that very thing, in fairness to its nationals, and the United States Government, in fairness to its nationals, should compel the railroads operating in California to discharge all Mexis employed by them.

It is to laugh! The drug stores are howling because butcher shops, fruit stands and most other lines of business are now retailing drugs. It's all right, of course, for the pillrollers to sell hardware, confections, etc., and to engage in the restaurant business, but it's all wrong, so they contend, for others to butt in on the drug line. The so-called drug store of today is, in fact, a department store, and should be so classified.

Representative Doughton, chairman of the Federal House ways and means committee, assures that "by the January session of Congress we will have plans to stop tax dodging." Let's hope the plans do not go a-stray. And the Congress should, also, remove all exemptions, including the horde of public office-holders and employes, from the income tax lax.

"Advertising is like liniment," remarks an exchange. "It is not very effective when applied with a feather, but needs to be rubbed in for results. One or two applications should not be expected to bring adequate relief for a sick business" or organization.

This declaration of the "Livermore Herald" has the right ring: "No sympathy whatsoever will [should] be wasted on those Americans who have lost their happy homes in Europe, Paris especially, because of the drop in the value of United States currency. We will accept them back in this country because we have to, but we would just as soon force them to stay in France if we could and let them struggle along as best they could. If the land of their birth was not good enough for them in their prosperity, it should not be good enough for them in the days of their adversity. But that class was never noted for strength of character, and will now, as usual, take the easiest way out."

Pro-Japists have often given assurance that Japan has done away with dual citizenship, in deference to American opinion. Little credence can be placed, however, on any statement emanating from Jap sources; the Japs promise anything, for publicity effect, and continue on their course. This Associated Press dispatch from Honolulu was dated June 23: "Victor S. K. Houston, former congressional delegate from Hawaii, told a meeting of Japanese-Americans here today the 'real reason' for President Roosevelt's request for authority to appoint a non-resident governor of Hawaii was the preponderance of Japanese residents in the islands. Houston said suspicion had arisen on the mainland because many American citizens of Japanese ancestry here still hold dual allegiance to America and Japan. He urged renunciation of Japanese citizenship by residents of the territory." Many, if not all, Japs in California also still hold that dual allegiance. Why?

These headings appeared recently in newspapers of the state: "You Can Still Have the Sun for $1 a Year." Listens like the croon of a get-rich-quicker. "Be Careful in Driving Over the Holidays." How about humans? The holidays will live on, care or no care. "Many Attend 3 Forks Fete." Many, also, attend no-forks and no-clothes fetes.

A submerged mountain has been found in the Pacific by the Federal Coast and Geodetic Survey. It lies about fifty-two miles southwestward from Point Sur in California, and rises from depths of approximately 2,000 fathoms. The mountain runs in a north and south direction and if the ocean were to be drained it would show up as an isolated mountain 7,500 feet in elevation. The discovery was made by the Survey ship "Guide" which is now engaged in hydrographic surveys off California.

Ray W. Howard, newspaper publisher, arrived in San Francisco July 7 from a tour of the Far East, and expressed the opinion that the American Navy should be brought up to full treaty quota immediately. "The fact is," he said, "that the Japanese public has become convinced that America is too penurious to fight. In that misconception lies real danger. . . . The last two years have demonstrated that so far as the Far East is concerned America's efforts to substitute reason for force in international disagreements were premature." In brief, the pacifists of this nation should be muzzled, and our lights should be brightly burning when the day of reckoning comes, and come it must and will.

"The operations of the government affect the interests of every person living within the jurisdiction of the United States."—President William Howard Taft.

"All the doors that lead inward to the secret place of the Most High are doors outward—out of self, out of smallness, out of wrong."—George Macdonald.

THINK THIS OVER!

The order of Native Sons of the Golden West is, we believe, with the exception of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, the only organization that limits membership exclusively to NATIVE-BORN AMERICANS.

Knowing the serious conditions in this country today, this fact alone should impel every Native Son of California to immediately SEEK AFFILIATION with that American-born and American-operated institution, the man-power and wealth of which are pledged to the protection of American institutions in times of peace as well as in times of war.

1933 CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR WILL TYPIFY SPIRIT OF PEOPLE

(HAROLD J. McCURRY, Sacramento Postmaster, Fair Director.)

THE SEVENTY-NINTH ANNUAL CALIfornia State Fair, to be held in Sacramento September 2 to 9, will bring to life the days of '49 in a vivid expression of the spirit, past and present, of California. Once, the annual State Fair was a simple harvest festival where people met to display and admire the soil-given wealth of this land of fruits and flowers. But the wealth sources of the state have multiplied since that simple beginning. Today, a California harvest festival must include the harvests of industry as well as the harvests of the soil.

California has a richness that no exhibit of oranges, peaches, cows, or tractors can express. This richness is the spirit of California people. To appreciate that wealth of spirit, you must be one of the thousands who come to the Fair to express joy in the present and confidence in the future. The spirit of California can only be seen in the faces of Californians.

This year, the directors of the Fair searched for a more concrete expression of the spirit of California. September 8 has been dedicated to mining,—California Mining Day. It will include gold-panning contests, a double-hand jack drilling contest, displays of mining machinery, exhibitions of old-time square dances, scenes re-lived from the days of '49. The mining parade will be a vivid picturization of the actual days of '49. Everyone who attends the Fair that day is urged to come dressed in the picturesque costumes of by-gone days.

Mining Day will bring to life the traditions upon which California was founded,—the spirit of '49. But more than that, it will be a modern exhibit of the spirit of today. Today, when once again our streams are lined with patient panners of gold; when once again the whirr of machinery can be heard at our mines. Today, when gold must again be added to the long list of important products of this Golden State. Mining Day is but one of the many features planned for the 1933 California State Fair, to give the largest and most representative display of California resources ever shown.

Yet, four months ago no one knew whether there would be a California State Fair this year. Faced with the most difficult financial problems it has ever faced, the State Legislature seriously considered the abandonment of the Fair until times were better. Faced with the fog of complete economic uncertainty, the people of the state were in no mood for festivities, yet, undaunted, they voted to continue this time-honored institution, their Fair. Slowly the fog lifted. Plans were no longer half-hearted. In every part of the state the great need to rejoice that no longer was California living under an "uncertain tomorrow" found expression in hearty and lavish plans for the State Fair. The day-by-day growth of plans would make a temperature chart of the rising spirits of Californians that even those who run might read and, reading, heartily rejoice.

Sensing the need in the heart of every Californian to gather together and rejoice, the directors of the State Fair have instituted two new policy changes, planning thereby to make the Fair more easily accessible to anyone and everyone.

With the exception of the working press who so faithfully keep all of California informed of the progress of the Fair, and of the exhibitors who actively participate with entries, absolutely no passes will be issued this year. Everyone will pay his small bit for entrance to the Fair.

The companion measure to this "no-pass" policy is a reduction of fifty percent in the admission price. This price reduction in "seeing the fair" is made possible by the pre-sale of scrip books. Patrons can walk through the gates this year for twenty-five cents, instead of fifty cents, provided they have purchased a scrip book. Each book will contain five dollars' worth of admissions, but can be purchased for two dollars and fifty cents any time during August and up to and including the first day of the Fair.

Accompanying all the visible evidence that depressions cannot stem the steady flow of California's basic wealth, will be the entertainment features. Prize contests for young and old, and all of the traditional Fair entertainment will be there. Spelling bees, bicycle races, children's competitions,—there will be things to watch and things to do. But perhaps the most exciting of all entertainment features will be the spectacle of legal betting on horse races, possible for the first time in twenty-eight years. This will have a special meaning to those who hold the past of California close to their hearts. For it was the speed and quality of its race horses, the tense spectacles of its races, that first made California known all over the country as a sunny playground.

All in all, this year's Fair is not a fair to be missed. All will be eager to give an affirmative response to the message from President A. B. Miller of the State Agricultudal Society: "We ask you to make a special effort to visit the Fair this year, for its success depends wholly on you, and especially on those who have in the past so faithfully helped and supported us by exhibiting their stock and products. You will, after your visit, be better informed, and thoroughly satisfied that YOUR State Fair in its seventy-ninth year has lived up to its slogan of BIGGER and BETTER."

I stood in the same old cabin, Jo,
That sheltered us oft from cold
Where the candle's light full many a night
Shone bright on our pan of gold.

The cabin has crumbled away, Jo;
It didn't seem quite the same
For the logs that are thar today, Jo,
Are feeding the campers' flame.
The hearth and chimney too, Jo,
Have crumbled away to dust
And the pick that belonged to you, Jo,
Is covered with dirt and rust.

The dirt we used to pan, Jo,
Is only a gravel mound
And the water that ran by it, Jo,
Is sunken beneath the ground.
Thar's part of a rocker near, Jo,
The one we ust to use
And oh it brot many a tear, Jo,
And many a fit of blues.

The pan that hung on the wall, Jo,
The one we left behind,
Is rusted beyond recall, Jo,
Tho it lay where we last had mined.
It seemed to be full of gold, Jo,
As bright as the nuggets then—
As bright as the days of old, Jo,
Which never can come again.

The people I met in Shasta
Were different, new, and strange;
While some have died on the prairies wide
And others upon the range,
But those who were with us then, Jo,
The friends whom we learned to love
Are sorting ore on another shore
And working the mines above.

The few who are living now, Jo,
Are as helpless as you and I;
Death's shadow lies dark on their brow, Jo,
And the angel of death is nigh.
So here's to the good old times, Jo,
And the camp whar we ust to be;
We'll drink to the toast in rhyme, Jo.
To the winter of Sixty-three.

CALIFORNIA'S WINE FAME CREDITED TO HUNGARIAN-BORN CITIZEN.

"History of Grape Growing in California," is the title of an extended, but most interesting, article in the "Index-Tribune" of Sonoma City, written by Mrs. C. G. Murphy. She says:

"The man responsible for California's vast vineyard and wine area, was Agoston Haraszthy —Hungarian born, a citizen of the United States by adoption. He was the commissioner delegated by Governor J. G. Downey of California in the year 1861 'to report on the improvement and culture of the vine in California' and to make an extended stay in Europe to observe methods of grape growing and wine making.

"To him, California owes the wealth and fame which grapes and wine brought to the Golden State before prohibition. After an eventful era, Haraszthy went to Nicaragua, where he fell into a river and was devoured by an alligator."

"Questions like the tariff and currency are literally of no consequence whatever compared with the vital questions of having the unit of our social life, the home, preserved."—Theodore Roosevelt.

Homeless Children

A WORTHWHILE NON-SECTARIAN ENDEAVOR SPONSORED AND SUPPORTED BY THE ORDERS OF NATIVE SONS AND NATIVE DAUGHTERS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

The three human rights of every child—a home, a school, and a chance to play—have been given to 4,242 children through the aid of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

A HOME DOES NOT MEAN FOUR WALLS, attractive as the interior may be with luxurious furniture, a radio, one or more high-priced cars in the garage. Nor is Home a place where liquor has taken the greater share of father's earnings, and compelled mother to work in order to help with its upkeep.

Real mothers are not those whose sole aim in life is to be able to provide for their children the choicest of viands, up-to-date clothes, travel and amusements, with social obligations uppermost in their minds and hearts. A real father is not one who is too harassed by economic demands to enjoy the companionship of his wife and children, or to be interested in what each is doing.

A HOME.

When the Native Sons and the Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children refer to a Home, they have in mind the carefully selected home for the homeless child which measures up to all that the word home implies: harmony, affection, morality, refinement, intelligence, and a deep sense of duty to one's church, whatever that church may be. Parents in the home who LIVE the life—rather than prescribe it for the child whom they have taken into their affections—of truthfulness, sobriety and honesty, and who are willing to sustain toward the child all the legal obligations and relations of parent and child, including support, affection, education, maintenance and inheritance.

A School, in which there shall be the heartiest co-operation between teachers and parents, thus assuring a child's advancement.

A Chance to Play which, according to the interpretation of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters, means freedom from work in factory or mill, city streets or asparagus fields, with an accepted responsibility for simple home duties and with time for wholesome play.

A good recipe, in short, to preserve children: "Take one (1) large grassy field, ½ dozen children, 2 or 3 small dogs, a pinch of brook and some pebbles. Mix the children and dogs well, put them in the field, constantly stirring. Pour the brook over the pebbles, sprinkle the field with flowers, spread over a deep, deep blue sky, and bake in the hot sun. When brown, remove and set away to cool in a bathtub. When thoroughly cleansed, place between 2 clean sheets to rest, after flavoring with kisses. The next day, repeat the process, with variations."

"He [Abraham Lincoln] was not a born king of men, ruling by the resistless might of his natural superiority, but a child of the people, who made himself a great persuader, therefore a leader, by dint of firm resolve, and patient effort, and dogged perseverance."—Horace Greeley.

MURDERER'S BAR

A town whose name was law
And none ignored that name
Was Murderer's Bar.
And known as peaceful diggings, too,
Both near and far.

A quiet mining camp
Where stealing never paid
And there was peace
For reputations were maintained
Without police.

All theft was held to be
A most disgraceful crime
And hanging meant
Triumphant law in Murderer's Bar
With full consent.

(This is another contribution from Betty L. Whitsell of Burlingame, San Mateo County, whose writings frequently appear in The Grizzly Bear.—Editor.)

WHAT IS REFORESTATION?
PLANTING JOB IN CALIFORNIA BIG ONE.

The word "reforestation" is much before the public nowadays. It is a headline word. President Franklin Roosevelt has done much to popularize it, and it has been dealt with in a congressional act. There is apparently much popular confusion in the use of the word. Just what is "reforestation?"

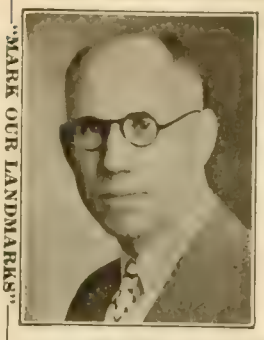
To the forester, it is a word with a definite and specific meaning. As a technical word, it means the restoring of an area to forest, either by artificial or natural means. That is, either the growing and setting out of young forest trees or seedlings on land which once had forests; or the slow or gradual re-stocking with forest by nature of land once forested. That is the correst or technical meaning. Likewise, afforestation means the planting of a forest on land which has not previously borne forest. Deforestation means the destruction or removal of forest from land with no conscious effort to restock the land.

Of late, however, the word "reforestation" has come to be popularly used to cover a much wider field. In this loose or popular sense, it has come to mean almost any method, means or system whereby forest land is improved, developed or protected, whether the land is cut over or is now bearing mature timber. For example, a system of fire lines or trails, or protection roads, the felling of snags or dead standing trees for fire protection, the thinning out of too-dense tree growth, or even a law to encourage the holding and protection of cut-over lands for future tree crops, have all come to be referred to as "reforestation" measures.

The area of once-forested lands requiring planting in the California pine region is very large. Estimates ranging from 300,000 to 2,000,000 acres serve to emphasize the magnitude of the planting job. On a large part of these lands all timber growth has been swept away by repeated fires, and no chance for natural reproduction remains. For the rest, lumbering followed by fire, and in recent years lumbering alone, have denuded the land quite as thoroughly. Planting with native conifers is the only known possibility of making these areas again productive within several generations.

With so great a job of planting in prospect, efforts of the Forest Service have been concentrated on the areas where reforestation is most urgently needed and will be most effective. This has been done only in an experimental way, with stock grown in the Forest Service nursery at Susanville, Lassen County. The capacity of this nursery will be doubled to make 1,000,000 seedlings available during the life of the reforestation act, but Forest Service officials believe that "reforestation" in California will consist mainly of fire protection measures.

THE FOREST FIRE



(F. G. de STONE, M.D.)

Thou vast primeval mountain chain,
Ancient verdured in arboreal green,
Thy sides now licked by fierce devouring flame,
Thy loss so great can ne'er again be seen;
A memory only of the mind, I ween.

Thou low hung scarlet screened sun,
Though you depart now at the close of day,
And night shall fall and end the smoke murked run,
No mortal tongue could half so apt portray
Thy blood red symbol of our tragedy.

"MARK OUR LANDMARKS"

BITS OF HISTORY

"GOD BLESS YOU! YOUR SOUL'S IN Heaven! God bless you! California has lost her noblest son." An old man, as he touched the pallid forehead of the slain David C. Broderick, uttered the pathetic words just quoted. The body lay in state, surrounded by flowers and flags. A monument, still massive and imposing, marks his resting place at Laurel Hill Cemetery, San Francisco. But the fame of that noble Californian has not endured, and his last resting place has never been a shrine for Native Sons as it should be.

"There should be a law compelling all Californians to visit this lake on pain of—being transported to the East. The scenery is nobler than I anticipated, and the situation of the lake is certainly one of the wonders and masterpieces of scenery belonging to our insignificant little globe." This beautiful tribute to Lake Tahoe was written on the 5th day of June, 1863, by Thomas Starr King. He and Father Serra, in the Hall of Fame at Washington, forever represent the manhood of the State of California. He described with much detail, his arduous trip from Placerville to Lake Tahoe. As these warm days are upon us, our minds revert to that beautiful California mountain spot. The lure of vacation ease, health and beauty abound there today as they did when the tired Thomas Starr King left the rostrum from which he was oratorically voicing the cause of the Union. During the Civil War a strong southern influence was forever at work in California. The silver tongue of King helped keep our State loyal. After leaving the lake, he again returned to plunge into his patriotic devotion, which self-imposed duty was too much for his frail form and finally resulted in his death at San Francisco on the 6th of March, 1864.

"I decided that it was for me rather to govern events than to be governed by them." With this emphatic declaration on the 15th day of June, 1846, at his camp on the American River near Sacramento, Captain John C. Fremont threw down the gauntlet to the Mexicans, and determined once and for all to stand for American acquisition of California regardless of results. Next day, the Bear Flag Party struck at Sonoma, less than seventy miles from Sacramento. Had Fremont not uttered that memorable sentence and had he not been so close to the scene of hostilities, what would have been the fate of California? Historians resort to conjecture and some believe that the navy of Great Britain would have taken possession of these shores in the name of its king.

Fremont relates a rather unhappy incident of the military strife which followed the ejection from California of the Mexicans by Kearny and Commodore Stockton. A Mexican Indian, fighting on the American side in a small skirmish near Los Angeles, was run through the body by the sword of one of the Californians (Mexicans). When the Indian felt the sword go through him, he knew that the wound was fatal and called out in Spanish, "Enough!" "Another time," said the soldier-murderer, and ran him through the body a second time. "There it is," said he. "Yes, senor," said the dying man with the usual stolid submission of an Indian to his fate.

An example of the chivalry of the California Mexicans was demonstrated during the siege of General Kearny's army near San Bernardino. General Kearny and his force were surrounded by a Mexican command slightly larger than his own. General Pico, the Mexican leader, had him completely hemmed in. Things looked black and foreboding for the Americans. Pico captured a messenger who had been sent for relief through the Mexican lines to San Diego, forty miles away. As the scout endeavored to return to Kearny with the news that help was on its way, he was captured. From this scout, Godey, Pico learned that Lieutenant Gillespie was wounded. Gillespie was the man who had carried the memorable message from Monterey to Oregon for Fremont. This important message had caused the return of Fremont to California.

Pico was particularly interested in this brave young man, whom he personally knew, and when Godey told him that Gillespie was badly lanced and that his servant in San Diego had made up some supplies consisting of food and medicine for the wounded man, Pico's instant response to this news was to put the supplies under a flag of truce and send them to Gillespie with the invitation for him to come to his camp and receive better treatment than he could get on the dry rocks of the beleaguered army at San Bernardino. This chivalric offer was accepted and Gillespie left his companions-in-arms, went to the Mexican camp, and was treated like a friend.

Another incident of that little-known war was enacted at about the same time when General Pico, in seeking to exchange prisoners, sent a detail under a flag of truce toward the American lines. General Kearny, believing that the California Mexicans were treacherous, insisted that the emissary from the American camp go armed to the tryst. The American emissary, a young ensign by the name of Beale, protested against this fear, but complied with orders. As he approached the Mexican line, he was stopped by an outpost at the river. Kearny's beleaguered men had little or no water and were exposed to the burning sun. The Mexican lieutenant who stopped him offered him a drink of water. Beale put the cup to his lips, merely wet them and passed it back as much as to say, "I appreciate the civility of the occasion, but we have plenty of water on the hill."

What a chivalric act on the part of the Mexican, and what an heroic gesture on the part of the thirsty American! When the unarmed Mexican detail appeared to arrange for the exchange of prisoners, the conscience-stricken Beale could not conceal his weapon longer and, taking the weapon from his person, tossed it forty feet away, and thus high honor prevailed and negotiations were honorably and successfully carried on.

The very night of the incident just narrated, the same Beale and Kit Carson with stealth crept through the Mexican lines and, after a great deal of suffering, reached San Diego and brought succor to the inexperienced and unhappy Kearny, who had come to conquer the West and almost lost his army through his blundering and inaptness.

"Oh Temple! planned with the cunning skill of laborious art, rise in all thy majesty and beauty toward the skies. May thy walls be strength, and all thy tabernacles peace! May the votaries who shall in the long march of centuries enter thy sacred portals, find evermore therein repose, refreshment, peace! May the light of thy sacred altars burn ever like a star! May the 'stranger and sojourner in the land' ever enjoy the blessings of thy welcome and thy shelter; and when the hour of thy decay and dissolution crumbles thee to earth, may there be found thousands of faithful and devoted hearts to raise thee from thy ashes with renewed splendor and more enduring life!"

With this beautiful peroration on the 25th day of June, 1860, Harry M. Gray laid the cornerstone of Masonic Temple at San Francisco. I doubt if there is an orator in California today who could say more beautiful things in reference to a fraternal building than did this pioneer San Francisco orator on that long-forgotten day. And perhaps the most noteworthy thing about this noteworthy man was the fact that he was not an attorney but an eminently successful doctor gifted with polished and fervid oratory.

Unemployment Relief bonds to the amount of $20,000,000 were voted by California's electorate July 27.

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

GENERAL ANDREW MAVER WINN, California Pioneer of 1849 and Founder of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, died August 26, 1883, at his Sonoma County home. He was born in Virginia, April 27, 1810, the first of the twenty-one children of Captain John S. Winn, who commanded a company of American soldiers in the War of 1812, and Anjanet Maver-Winn. In 1850, the California State Legislature organized a state militia, and Governor Peter H. Burnett appointed him Brigadier General. In 1850 also, he was elected the first Mayor of Sacramento.

In 1869, General Winn organized a coterie of native California boys to march in the San Francisco Independence Day parade, of which he was the grand marshal, and this incident resulted in the founding, by him, of what later became the Order of Native Sons. The initial organization, now known as California Parlor No. 1 (San Francisco), was perfected in 1875, with John A. Steinbach as the first president. The funeral of General Winn, in Sacramento, August 28, was largely attended by men prominent in affairs of the state.

The State Board of Agriculture published statistics this month showing the following acreages sowed to grain in California this season: wheat, 2,634,716; barley, 775,405; corn, 65,766; oats, 122,618; rye, 29,251. An eighty percent yield was estimated.

John Lester Kaye, an English baronet, purchased 5,000 acres of overflow Yolo County tule land for $75,000. He sowed 3,500 acres to wheat. A dry winter saved the land from being overflowed by flood waters of the Sacramento River, and he harvested 35,000 sacks of wheat, which he shipped to England and got his investment back.

Hop growers held a convention in San Francisco to organize a state association. The hop acreage was double that of 1882, and the price had dropped from a dollar to twenty-five cents a pound. There was a scarcity of harvest labor, hence the growers were "up against" a bad situation.

A rancher brought into Los Angeles City, August 10, six watermelons totaling 444 pounds in weight, an average of 74 pounds each. August 20 another rancher, from Cahuenga, brought in a melon weighing 95 pounds.

John Wolfskill, a Yolo County fruit grower, this season sold the apricots from 250 trees for $4,800.

California wheat exports during August totaled 996,400 centals, valued at $1,662,000.

Land values in California North were booming. Henry Cutter of Biggs, Butte County, in 1880 tried in vain to sell 100 acres of land for $800. This month he was offered $45 an acre, but refused to sell.

On the William Hamilton ranch in Kern County was a lake which, while filled with water in winter, dried up in the summer and exposed a deposit of pure table salt. It proved a bonanza for its owner, who shipped enormous quantities of the product.

A gigantic irrigation scheme was inaugurated to take water from Kings River to irrigate 30,000,000 acres of land in Fresno and adjacent counties. A dam 25 feet high, 800 feet long and 140 feet thick was being thrown across the river, and the canal was to be 100 feet wide and 15 feet deep.

Cutter Salmon, boring an artesian well seven miles from Stockton, San Joaquin County, at a depth of 1,225 feet struck a flow of water and a gusher of gas. He piped the gas, and with it illuminated his home.

A brilliant violet-hued meteor passed over California South the morning of August 11.

A V-shaped flock of wild geese alighted August 7 in a Butte County grain field, and all of California's weather prognosticators began predicting an early and a wet winter.

Ventura County was seething with excitement over the effort to collect a $150-per-quarter license from every liquor dealer. The citizenry divided on high or low license, and an intensive talk-war was on.

Unmarried women, desirous of obtaining teacher positions in Sacramento City's public schools, made a successful fight and had seven instructors, with husbands able to support them, dropped from the payroll.

Pasadena, Los Angeles County, was building its second public school building, at a cost of $4,500, and was boasting of the fact.

A forest fire along the North Fork of the Feather River was doing immense damage to timber and settlements. Over thirty square miles of territory had been burned over, and the fire was still raging at the end of the month, although a hundred men were fighting it.

In San Francisco, August 4, fire destroyed the Winter Garden theater and several other large buildings, causing a $150,000 loss. The Salinas, Monterey County, flourmill burned August 2; loss, $10,000.

The Southern Pacific bridge across the Yuba River at Marysville, Yuba County, burned August 9. It was 700 feet long, and cost $80,000.

Fire in Red Bluff, Tehama County, August 7 destroyed a dance house in the rear of which lived a Mexican family, named Morales. The mother and a ten-year-old daughter were cremated.

Confidence engine No. 1 of Sacramento City was sold August 3 to a Honolulu fire engine company and shipped there. Built in Philadelphia for the company in 1857 at a cost of $7,500, it was shipped around Cape Horn, and when it arrived in San Francisco, January 1858, the volunteer fire department of that city turned out in full uniform and paraded through the streets with it, then loaded it aboard a chartered steamboat and, accompanied by a large escort, sent it to Sacramento. There the population turned out to receive it, and delegations of volunteer firemen came from Marysville, Placerville and other interior towns to join in a three-day celebration. The engine was christened with twenty baskets of champagne, while additional buckets of the beverage were passed around for everybody to quaff. It cost the Confidence Fire Engine Company over $5,000 to celebrate the engine's arrival.

The Sierra Valley stage was held up by two masked men fifteen miles from Truckee, Nevada County. The express box, containing over $1,000, was taken, and the six passengers were relieved of $160.

The stage from Yosemite Valley was stopped by three road agents, who robbed the seven tourists aboard of money and jewelry. The stage afterward upset, and all the passengers were more or less hurt.

C. C. Peters, founder of Yreka, Siskiyou county, died there August 3, at the age of 71.

Mrs. Margaret Taylor died in Yolo County, August 12. As Mrs. McDowell, in 1847 she gave birth to the first White child born at Sutter Fort. McDowell was killed in the Sacramento squatter riots of 1850.

Joseph H. Austin of Chico, Butte County, aged 82, was a devout spiritualist. August 20 he said he was being called to the spirit-land, and committed suicide.

James G. Fair, Comstock bonanza magnate, was building a mansion at the corner of California and Mason streets, San Francisco. He had just completed, at a cost of $45,000, a granite wall around the street frontage.

Mrs. Ellen M. Colton, widow of General Colton, presented a handsome and commodious schoolhouse to Colton, San Bernardino County, named after the general.

Pioneer D. O. Mills, noted early-day banker, presented to California a marble statue of Christopher Columbus and Queen Isabella of Spain making arrangements for Columbus' voyage of discovery. It arrived in Sacramento City August 20, and was being placed in the State Capitol rotunda.

Charles Crocker, railway millionaire, had a raft anchored in Monterey Bay, 700 feet from shore, and invited San Francisco's elite to a picnic thereon. All had to swim to the raft, however, for no boats were allowed. About sixty, of both sexes, accepted the bid, and on reaching the raft were regaled with a luncheon of tempting edibles washed down with champagne.

Diamonds were being found in the sluiceboxes of the Cherokee, Butte County, mines. The first diamond was found there in 1853, and of the sixty that had been discovered to date the largest, picked up by John Moore, weighed two and three-quarters carats. Zircons and platinum also were frequently found.

A quartz boulder, worn smooth by the action of flowing water, was found in a Gibsonville hydraulic mine. It weighed ninety-nine pounds, and yielded $2,600 in gold.

The United States Mint at San Francisco coined during August 120,000 twenty-dollar gold pieces and 900,000 silver dollars.

Frank Walton of Ventura City, student at the University of California, Berkeley, went home with typhoid fever and died July 27. His father and his mother contracted the malady, and the father died August 2 and the mother the following day.

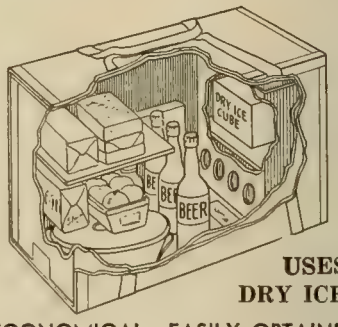
Sixty Greek fishermen attempted to defy the law declaring a closed season for salmon during August. Constable Jones of Rio Vista, Solano County, was resisted in his efforts to arrest a couple of the law's violators. He shot and killed the reputed leader, and the war ended.

John Droglevich, proprietor of a Santa Clara City winery, fell into an empty wine vat August 22 and was suffocated. Attempting to rescue him, Joseph Brothers met a like fate.

Archie Johnson, aged 12, and the Webber boys, aged 10 and 12, were drowned while swimming in the Sacramento River near the Capital City, August 28.

Wm. Fleming and James Scanlan were driving in a spring wagon near Vallejo, Solano County, August 14. A railroad train struck the conveyance, and both were killed.

Nicholas Skerrit, wealthy San Francisco realtor, was lured to a vacant house and murdered by Wm. Ladue, an ex-convict from Idaho.



Henry Eaton, keeper of the Bonito Point lighthouse at the entrance to the Golden Gate, fell 150 feet off a cliff August 10 and was killed. He had been employed but five days.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

FEELING LOW IN YOUR MIND? PERhaps you need a new dress, and that is a normal sensation this time of the year. The remedy is to buy something new that your friends will exclaim over. No tonic will revive the state of mind with more speed. This being the middle of summer, you are proabbly wearing out the summery things and by now they bore you. Designers have "come across," as they always do, with many new ideas. What we used to consider strictly morning materials, now go dining and dancing, and former high-tea fabrics do the marketing. This paves the way to tell you of two charming dresses.

One is a plaid organdie, the sheerest, finest material imaginable. The other is a dark-brown and red-brown plaid. Instead of sleeves, a ruffled flounce grows fuller and fuller at the shoulder. On the whole, they are quite prim, and very well tailored. Another is of taffeta trimmed in black and white organdie. This, too, is tailored and relies on a wide belt and stiff bow of taffeta for trimming. A white hat is banded in matching plaid or black grosgrain ribbon. The new taffeta gloves would be exactly the right thing to wear with this costume.

Stripes are terribly important this year, not only the simple straight stripes but the wavy ones. For instance, a divided skirt is in dull orange and navy blue heavy cotton. The yoke is of plain navy blue with orange string lacings at the sides. The skirt is cut so that the stripes, running diagonally, form a "V" at the front, the back and the sides. This novel skirt is worn with a smart little cotton blouse which has short cupped sleeves and a novel neckline.

We see much style in the new negligees, such as higher waistlines, the princess silhouette, puffed or capelet sleeves, shoulder crests with width, ruffles and flounces. Some of the current style trends have been incorporated into the newest lingerie and boudoir frocks. Even the materials are of the type used for day frocks.

A negligee is made of french blue triple sheer and has self-ruching at the neck. It closes at the end of a surplice front with a soft sash that ties at the side. The capelet sleeves are trimmed with self-ruching, and the skirt is fitted about the hips, falling in graceful lines to ankle length. Another luxury, in the form of a printed negligee, has made itself so practical, in addition to being bewitchingly charming, that you absolutely must have one. It is most attractive for traveling. It takes up the smallest bit of room and the wrinkles fall out as if by magic.

Another note is the short sassy jacket, to be worn in bed, when comfortably propped against the reading pillow. There are numerous designs. Some, for age sixteen, with ruffles over the shoulders and down the front, are made of dainty flowered print. Others, not unlike the top of the negligee, are merely soft, with a trifle of warmth. These little toplets for the gown are cozy things to possess.

Some activities demand natural freedom of the body, which is a difficult art without especially created undergarments. There must be just enough restraint to confine one's figure, and an airy quality about the fabric so one may feel cool.

Some inspired woman must have dug into friend husband's wardrobe to copy his mannish trunks, downright masculine, but cut to fit the female figure. These are loose enough for active sports and free enough to not hinder long strides. They come in sheer white broadcloth, madras, nainsook and fine mesh. The fitted band which buttons in front is adjustable. In the back there is another amusing idea.

Shorts and skirts (petticoats) are made of bright plaid; in fact, make them of any material. No matter how perfect your limbs, stockings have a way of slipping unless evenly supported by long garters. With hot weather at hand, you will approve of the new garter panties. Two sets of garters are attached to the two-way-stretch waistband, and the panties themselves are of a fine openwork mesh, light as a feather.

Since every smart summer wardrobe is almost entirely of cotton, it is fitting that morning dresses should also be. The joy of it is, that women have such a flock of materials to choose from,—batistes, dotted swisses, ginghams, piques, voiles, linens and muslins. Of course, there are the plaid organdies and polkadots. Others, of flowers, are for those who prefer the floral designs. Nice neat little boquets of field flowers, for instance, come in red, white and blue daisies, pansies, asters and all sorts of blooms, and are printed over a black batiste ground.

A white organdie sailor collar has a girlish ruffled edging. The whole thing is as simple as can be, and is quite flattering. Top the lighter dresses with a floppy hat and cotton accessories. A tailored linen hat, linen gloves and white shoes would be style-proof with the flowered dress.

Deep-toned red proves popular. Costumes of sheer fabrics this year have found a new popularity and, strangely, too, the preference has been given to the dark colors, especially navy blue, brown and deep-toned reds.

The mannish suit has a touch of feminity, and there seems to be no tendency to break away from this season's edict of fashion. The shoulders are severely plain and mannish. The feminine touch, however, is given by the white pique collar and bow tie worn with a blouse of white pique. Gloves, too, match. Straw sailors have black bands or white ribbon. Black pumps complete natty costumes and are as smart as they are simple.

The new swagger coats go slouchy—pleasingly slouchy, instead of form fitting. We are to have the scarf with us for fall. Early showings are featuring scarfs in the new taffetas, rayon crepes and prints. Some show how one may pep up a limited wardrobe. For chic blouses, checks, plaids and stripes are all important. The new materials are silk, rayon, taffeta and cotton.

Krinklvel is a new light-weight velvet, which is very important. It fashion some of the smartest new evening wraps, including various new waistlines and shoulder caps. For color, the new "eel gray" promises to be important. One notes such luscious new color now a poppy red, spring green, majorca blue and water blue.

Deep suntan is one of the smarter new shades for two piece pajamas. The coat is finger-tip length and trimmed with buckles of old gold, set with coral and turquoise. One is on the shoulder, and one at the belt front. The sleeves are full from the shoulder to the elbow, then are tight to the wrist, and are made of many-shaped gores. These make very smart lounging garments. Another is of green satin. The body lines are given additional chic by a belt fastened with an ornamental buckle of imitation carved jade. Green satin mules complete the ensemble.

THAT'S CALIFORNIA!

(ROBERT L. HAWKENSEN.)

Fragrant blossoms everywhere,
Melodious song birds flood the air
From lofty snowy mountain peak,
To sun baked sands that bathers seek.
That's California!

The Gateway to the Golden West,
The one great State that's really blest
With sunshine, flowers, birds and bees,
And such a cooling summer breeze.
That's California!

Of all the places that I know,
There's only one to which I'd go;
The grandest spot on all this earth,
Where leadership has had its birth.
That's California!

(This verse came to The Grizzly Bear from Robert L. Hawkenson of Glendale, Los Angeles County.—Editor.)

COMB THE FIELDS!

"EDITOR GRIZZLY BEAR: CHEERing news is coming in from all parts of the state in support of the new system of organization. This is Native Son year in California! The readjustment period is in our favor. People are thinking more than ever before of the value of companionship, fraternal fellowship, and of the substantial and lasting things of life, and less of the dollar as a source of all happiness.

"Everywhere the auxiliary bodies are making plans for a year of intense activity. The officers of local Parlors, past president associations, committees on the extension of the order, district deputies, lapsation committees and the rank and file of the Order are taking up the work with a zeal and earnestness that has not been equaled in years.

"The great number of native born of this state offer a fruitful field for recruiting possibilities. Do you know, brothers, as a matter of fact there are thousands of worthy young men who have never been solicited to join the Order? Let us comb the fields! No man is so big that he will not be helped by membership in our Order. Self-interest, as well as loyalty and duty to his native state, are impelling reasons why he should join our ranks, leaving out of the question all other human and practical advantages which the Order offers to its members.

"From one end of the state to the other, both small and large Parlors have expressed determination to make a drive for an increased membership. We expect to have a more definite report from all the Parlors by the first of October. In the meantime, let each Parlor write in to The Grizzly Bear Magazine and give to the other Parlors any good news it may have.

"The Grizzly Bear Magazine wants to be a newsy periodical, as well as an historical publication. It cannot supply the news of the Order unless it is furnished with it by the members of the Order. Make your articles short, but don't fail to report the news. The magazine is our official journal, and it should be heartily supported by the subscriptions of all of the members of the Order.

"Preparations for a bumper celebration at Santa Rosa on September 9th [Admission Day] are engrossing the attention of many Parlors. We will have in line a wonderful group of Native Daughters and Native Sons from every county in California. The eyes of the state will be upon us, and we count upon the magnificent display we will make on California's natal day to greatly help us in building up local Parlors. The official, civic and industrial life of the state will take part in the state celebration. It will be a splendid success! Fraternally,

"EMMET SEAWELL,
"Grand President, N.S.G.W.

"San Francisco, July 17, 1933."

Co-operation's the Needed Thing.

President Ervin J. Beall of Sacramento No. 3, under date of July 12, addressed a letter, overflowing with food for thought, to each member of that Parlor. "With a little co-operation it won't be long before we are again 'sitting on top of the world'," he says, and in commenting on the dues situation—a perplexing question in all Subordinate Parlors—he speaks plainly:

"In going over the financial secretary's books I find two classes of delinquent members. The first is the brother who, through no fault of his own, is absolutely unable to pay. He has been out of employment, unforeseen expenses have arisen, things have gone hay-wire with him in general, but in spite of all he is still anxious and willing to pay his honest obligations. The second is the member who, although steadily employed, has not paid, never has and never expects to. He is perfectly willing to let 'George' carry the load. He is very indignant, and makes the loudest noise when matters do not suit him. He is absolutely worthless as a member. For the first type, I have the greatest respect and, in line with the wishes of our grand officers, the Parlor hopes to be able to carry them on until they get their second wind. They are men enough to realize the Order cannot be run on bluff and wind. For the second type, I have no regard. They will be suspended. They are an expense to the Parlor and we will have no more of them." —C.M.H.

Officials Well Pleased.

Ukiah—Grand First Vice-president Chas. A. Koenig and Grand Secretary John T. Regan, visitors in Ukiah July 15, were entertained at luncheon by Ukiah No. 71. Harold Zimmerman presided, and speakers included President Henry Spurr of the Ukiah Chamber of Commerce, Koenig and Regan. The two latter, after an inspection tour, expressed themselves well pleased with the housing and other accommodations in Ukiah, selected as the meeting place of the 1934 Grand Parlor. Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin was also in the city, but missed the luncheon.

Officers of the Parlor were installed July 17, Kenneth Phillips becoming president. Plans are already under way for next year's Grand Parlor, and Henry Spurr and Keith C. Eversole have been appointed a general committee of arrangements.

Anniversary Celebrated.

San Bernardino—Arrowhead No. 110 entertained a large crowd at its annual Independence Day barbecue at its Crestline clubhouse in the San Bernardino Mountains. Henry B. Peake was the general chairman. Outdoor sports and dancing were provided. A feature of the occasion was the dedication of two plaques under the direction of Chairman Jerome B. Kavanaugh of the Parlor's history and landmarks committee. One, at the old Mormon springs where, in early days, lumbermen of the San Bernardinos secured water for themselves and their teams. The other, a monitor used by hydraulic miners in the early days, in memory of the late Charles Doyle, who found the relic on one of his many trips over the mountains.

July 26, Arrowhead celebrated its twenty-sixth institution anniversary. Charter Members Joe Rich, Emory Tyler and Albert Burcham were honor-guests. Ben Harrison was the principal speaker of the occasion. Henry B. Peake, as president, heads the Parlor's new corps of officers, installed July 12 by District Deputy Walter E. Hiskey.

Six Initiated.

Sonoma—Sonoma No. 111 added six new names to its membership roll July 3, the ritual being faultlessly exemplified by the officers of South San Francisco No. 157 (San Francisco). There was a very large attendance of visitors, including twenty members of No. 157 and delegations from all the Sonoma County Parlors. A chicken dinner concluded the enthusiastic gathering.

Speakers of the evening included Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Sheriff Mike Flohr and Treasurer James Ramage of Sonoma County, Chairman Wesley Colgan of the Santa Rosa Admission Day committee, and Dr. W. C. Shipley, chairman of the committee arranging for the Admission Day, September 9, parade.

Annual Barbecue.

Santa Barbara—Santa Barbara No. 116 will hold its annual barbecue at Stow's ranch, in Goleta, just west of Santa Barbara, Sunday, August 13. Plans are being arranged for sports, music and dancing, as well as other amusements and good times, both before and after the barbecue, which is held at 12:30 p.m.

FITTING TRIBUTE

(JUDGE FLETCHER A. CUTLER, Past Grand President N.S.G.W.)

AT THE SESSION OF THE N.S.G.W. Grand Parlor held in Grass Valley, Nevada County, the attention of the delegates was called to the fact that the last resting place there of Past Grand President Jo V. Snyder was unmarked. A motion was made, and carried, that a committee be appointed to decorate the grave with appropriate floral offerings during the session of the Grand Parlor, which was accordingly done.

The Past Grand Presidents attending the Grand Parlor called a meeting to discuss plans for a proper monument to be erected to the memory of Past Grand President Snyder. In accordance therewith, it was arranged that a substantial piece of granite be taken from the hillsides of his native county, and that a proper inscription be placed thereon. As a result thereof, a piece of granite in the rough, five feet high, was obtained, and on one side there was chiseled a scroll bearing the inscription "Jo V. Snyder, Past Grand President, N.S.G.W., served in 1918."

The monument was unveiled July 30. Grand President Justice Emmet Seawell, accompanied by Fletcher A. Cutler, representing the Past Grand Presidents, and Grand Secretary John T. Regan participated in the ceremonies, which were attended by members of Fred H. Greeley Assembly of Past Presidents and prominent Native Sons of the northern counties of California.

Thus there has been paid a fitting tribute to the memory of one who devoted a large measure of his time and talents to the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West. No member of the Order ever took a more active interest in its affairs, nor evidenced the sentiment of loyalty that inspired Jo V. Snyder as he traveled about the state while he was passing through the respective stations of a grand officer. His eloquent addresses, his words of encouragement and cheer, and with all his happy, smiling presence, endeared him to all. It will be a source of satisfaction to every member of the Order who came in contact with him to know that "high up in the Sierras," as he loved to refer to his hometown, there is a monument reflecting the affection and esteem in which he was held by all Native Sons.

THOROUGHLY AGED

SAN FRANCISCO

"EVEN HAD GOLD NEVER BEEN DISCOVERED, California would be today much as it is," declared Secretary Rodney S. Ellsworth of the scientific research section of the San Francisco Commonwealth Club in a recent address. "Early advertising had built up such a picture of California in the minds of Easterners that heavy migration here was bound to come, with or without the lure of gold. Gold merely hastened the process. This migration was so portentious that had there been no Mexican War, the conquest of California was nevertheless on its way."

Ellsworth cited as an example of early advertising an issue of the "American Register," published in 1808, in which an article stated that California was a province "wanting nothing but a vigorous, progressive population." He showed that advertising, through its pulling power, brought to the West the civilization whose inroads caused wild-life depletion.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS DOINGS.

The monthly Native Daughter Home breakfast was held Sunday, July 9, with Mollye Spaelti of Marinita Parlor No. 198 (San Rafael) and Emma O'Meara of Dolores Parlor No. 169 (San Francisco) as hostesses. The dining room and the tables were beautifully decorated with red, white and blue flowers, in keeping with the Fourth of July. Parlors represented were Orinda, Castro, Buena Vista, Aloha, Alturas, Marinita, Alta, Las Lomas, Dolores, Golden State, Twin Peaks and El Vespero.

Speakers included Hubert Caveney of Stanford Parlor No. 76 N.S.G.W., Past Grands Dr. Mariana Bertola, Evelyn I. Carlson and Emma Foley, Millie Tietjen and Elizabeth Douglas. The Native Daughter Glee Club favored with "My Own United States" and southern selections.

Alta Parlor No. 3—Mrs. Annie C. Thuesen was tendered a reception and banquet by her home-Parlor July 12, in honor of her election to the office of Grand Marshal at the Oakland Grand Parlor. A special song of greeting to the tune of "Smiles" was sung while she was being escorted to a seat of honor at the banquetboard, where she was welcomed by Mrs. May L. MacDonald, chairman and toastmaster on this auspicious occasion. Among the artists who contributed to the success of the program were Mrs. Mary Jordan, Madam M. Marchand and Miss Estelle M. Carr. Grand officers present were Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler, Past Grands Dr. Mariana Bertola, Genevieve W. Baker, Eliza D. Keith and Margaret G. Hill. Among the gifts presented Grand Marshal Thuesen was a set of fine damask napkins. Mrs. Catherine O'Reilly, the mother of Mrs. Thuesen and also a member of Alta, shared her daughter's honors. Officers were publicly installed by Deputy Ida Mesquite July 25, Claire Bolman becoming president.

Genevieve Parlor No. 132—The drum corps and that of Castro Parlor No. 232 N.S.G.W. have arranged for a big whist at Native Sons Building, August 1, and an enjoyable evening is assured. Arrangements are in charge of Misses R. Taube, E. Kilkenny, E. Taube, I. O'Leary, C. Jacobsen, E. Joorisen and G. Joorisen of Genevieve, and Messrs. Bartholomew and Leary of Castro.

Dolores Parlor No. 169—At public ceremonies July 15 attended by 200, officers with Juanita Blanchfield as president were installed. Deputy Pearl Wedde officiated and was assisted by Past Grand Evelyn I. Carlson and members of Bret Harte Parlor No. 232. Junior Past President Alma Hall was presented with an emblematic pin. Among the guests was Mrs. Madge Blanchfield of Guadalupe Parlor No. 153, mother of President Blanchfield. Dancing concluded an enjoyable evening. Dolores' drill team, which will make its first public appearance in the Santa Rosa Admission Day parade, will hold a card party and dance at Native Sons Building August 10.

Linda Rosa Parlor No. 170—An "old fashioned clothes" party was given July 12. The costumes were the center of much merriment, which lasted throughout the evening. Guests and members joined in a virginia reel, and then were served refreshments. Among the honor-guests was Deputy Muller.

Castro Parlor No. 178—A reception was held July 5 in honor of Financial Secretary Alice Lane, elected Grand Trustee at the Oakland Grand Parlor. It was a very pretty affair, and no pains were spared by the able chairman, Cora Stobing, to make it so. An entertainment innovation was the introduction of twelve little charges of Superintendent Tanghe of Russian missions, who appeared in a sketch which was hugely enjoyed. At the banquetboard the new grand officer's place was marked by a floral arch of red, white and blue flowers, and a most delicious cake especially made for "Our Alice." Other table declorations were in keeping with the national holiday.

Past Presidents Association No. 1—At public ceremonies July 17 officers, with Merle Sandell as president, were installed by Junior Past President Louise Cases, assisted by Margaret Grote Hill and Chief President Winnie Halter. Mrs. Cases was presented with an emblematic ring. Several vocal selections were rendered by Marie Vogel and Ann Godfrey. Refreshments were served.

NATIVE SONS DOINGS.

New officers of the Extension of the Order Committee are: Hubert Caveney (Stanford No. 76), chairman; Charles H. Spengemann (Hesperian No. 137), vice-chairman; L. A. Werner (Golden Gate No. 29), treasurer; Harold J. Regan (South San Francisco No. 157), secretary. Since July 7 the committee has been operating, jointly with representatives of the Native Daughter Parlors, as an Admission Day Committee, and meetings are held every Friday night to arrange for participation in the September 9 celebration at Santa Rosa.

A committee headed by Peter T. Conmy has been appointed to arrange for observance of American Education week. The Extension Committee contemplates a monster initiation, probably in October, in honor of Grand President Justice Emmet Seawell; all the local Parlors will participate.

George H. Barron of Precita Parlor No. 187, retired July 1 as curator of the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum in Golden Gate Park after twenty-four years of efficient service. He was born at San Francisco, September 19, 1869. "George" says "I want to rest before I reach the wheel-chair stage. I want to retrace the footsteps of the padres; to re-visit the missions and adobes, and pause again among the historic scenes of California's romantic days. I will travel back through the land of tradition, and it will be a journey of happy memory."

Passing of the California Pioneer

(Confined to Brief Notices of the Demise of Those Men and Women Who Came to California Prior to 1870.)

SISTER MARY CATHERINE HANRAHAN, native of Ireland, 93; came to California in 1850 and long resided in Marin County. Died at Benicia, Solano County. She is said to have been the oldest Dominican nun in California, having joined that religious order in 1858.

Mrs. Aurelia Swain-Webber, native of Massachusetts, 86; came in 1851; died at Berkeley, Alameda County, survived by two sons.

Newton G. Finley, native of Missouri, 92; came across the plains in 1852 and resided in Santa Clara and Sonoma Counties; died at Campbell, survived by two children. He was a nephew of Benjamin Campbell, Pioneer of 1846 who founded Campbell.

INFORMATION SOUGHT BY ONE OF FEW REMAINING "ORIGINAL" NATIVE SONS.

Editor Grizzly Bear—Note in the July issue the passing of Ellis Bloch, a member of California Parlor No. 1. Brother Bloch was No 19 of the 113 members who joined the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West between July 11, 1875 (the date of its organization), and the date of its incorporation, March 27, 1876.

To the best of my knowledge, the only others still living who joined between those dates are: William M. Josephi, No. 23; R. V. Taylor, No. 31; James V. Stovall, No. 56; A. Gilbert, No. 63; Aaron Heringhi, No. 68; Albert Goldman, No. 81; A. C. Leutgens, No. 100; and the undersigned.

If any member knows of others still living of the original 113, or of any in this list who have passed away, will be glad to receive the information.

CHAS. H. SMITH, No. 4.

Joined July 11, 1875; now a member of Ramona Parlor No. 109. Address P. O. box 1016, Avalon, Catalina Island, California.

There is no substitute for membership! Respond to the call of the Grand President for laborers in the eligible field, now ripe for harvest. Work, with ENTHUSIASM!

Anniversary Observed.

Marysville—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the institution of Marysville No. 162 was observed July 12 with a supper and program in the garden of the Sperbeck home. President Anna Sperbeck gave an address of welcome and then called the charter-roll. The following, honor-guests of the evening, responded: Past Grand Esther R. Sullivan, Mabel Kimball-Richards, Martha Sullivan-Boyd, Ina Hedger-Wells, Ada Hedger-Lewis, Anna Noyes-Moncur, Elizabeth Delay and Mary Moncur.

A resume of the outstanding activities of the Parlor constituted the program: Past Grand Sullivan, homeless children work; Mrs. Ina Wells, restoration of missions; Mrs. Ada Lewis, historic building at Timbuctoo; Mrs. Gertrude Cable, markers at Fremont camp, Hock Farm, Mary Covillaud grave, Cortez Square and the Mary Covillaud school; Miss Bernice Sperbeck, tribute to the Pioneers.

Mms. Gertrude Cable and Ruth Manwell had charge of the program, and the refreshments committee included Misses Bernice Sperbeck, Ruth Galligan, Mary Meade, and Mrs. Blanche Tharp. The Parlor was instituted July 10, 1908, by the then Grand President, Mrs. Ema Gett, now deceased. Mrs. Elizabeth Delay was the charter president, and Miss Violet Heyl, now deceased, was the organizer and the first recording secretary.

Marine Band's Co-operation Appreciated.

San Diego—Members of San Diego No. 208 enjoyed a pot-luck supper at which a small sum was cleared for landmarks purposes. Miss Elva Crowley entertained at a bridge luncheon, and the proceeds were donated by the Parlor toward repair of the exposition buildings in Balboa Park. A dessert-bridge at the home of Mrs. Louise Miller and a garden party are planned for the near future.

June 29 a committee representing the Parlor visited the United States Marine Base and expressed appreciation for the willing assistance of the marine band on many public programs. The aims and objects of the Order were briefly outlined by Miss Marion S. Stough, who presented the score of "I Love You, California," which was played by the band. President Isabel Young presented a large box of home-made candy. Both gifts were accepted by First Sergeant Raymond G. Jones, bandmaster.

President Mary Zappettini cut the birthday cake, presented by Supervising Deputy Delphine Todt. In Memoriam

CATHERINE H. HIMES.

(Portola Parlor No. 172 N.D.G.W.)

Whereas, The golden chain of our fraternity has been severed by the loss of our dearly beloved sister, Catherine Himes, we must know that it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call our dear sister to the Eternal Parlor above. Let us think of her as a sweet-scented rose that climbed the garden wall and is blossoming on the other side.

Whereas, God is merciful and just, we bow before His sight, knowing by our faith and trust He doeth all things right. We hold in fond memory her cheerful smile, her loving ways and her sweet disposition. The trials, the sorrows and the disappointments that come in every life, however sheltered, are ended for our beloved sister, she sleeps peacefully. Reverently, then, we must say, "Thy will be done." We here record our love and affection for one whose kindly ways endeared her to all who knew her. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family our deepest sympathy, with an earnest prayer that God, in His infinite mercy, assuage their grief and send peace into their hearts; be it further resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning in due respect for our dearly beloved sister, that a copy of these resolutions be spread in full upon our minutes, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

AGNES CURRY,
NAN KELLY,
CATHERINE DOLLY,
Committee.
ETHEL HERNAN,
President.

San Francisco, July 9, 1933.

DOLLIE KING GRANGER.

The Angel of Death has entered the portals of Bonita Parlor No. 10 N.D.G.W. and taken from our midst our sister, Dollie King Granger. She was a loyal Native Daughter and loved California with a true and tender love. Our Order has lost a loved and faithful member. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning; that a copy of these resolutions be sent to her bereaved family, and that they be published in the "Redwood City Tribune," and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

"May the California winds blow lightly,
May the California sun shine brightly,
May the California rain fall softly,
Where sleeps our Sister dear."

Respectfully submitted in P.D.F.A.,

JESSIE LESLIE,
MAMIE GLENNAN,
DORA WILSON,
Committee.

Redwood City, July 13, 1933.

MINNIE TABER.

To the Officers and Members of Aloha Parlor No. 106, Native Daughters of the Golden West: We, your committee appointed to draft a resolution of respect to the memory of our departed charter member, Minnie Taber, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Another of our beloved members, Sister Minnie Taber, has answered the call of our Heavenly Father, it is with deepest sorrow we bow in humble prayer, realizing our loss is the heavenly gain of our dear sister. While we pay loving tribute to her memory, we are not unmindful of the sympathy we owe her loved ones; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy; also, that this resolution be recorded in the minutes of our Parlor, that a copy be sent to the family of our deceased sister, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

GRACE DuPONT,
GLADYS FARLEY,
LURINE MARTIN,

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

THE N.S.G.W. CENTRAL MEMBERSHIP Committee, Henry G. Bodkin chairman, is progressing in its determination to aid Grand President Justice Emmet Seawell in his campaign to arouse interest among the members of the Order and to enroll thousands of the numerous eligibles. The meetings are well attended and constructive suggestions are given careful thought. Among those active in the conferences are the presidents of all the Los Angeles County Parlors and the district deputies.

As a means of instilling enthusiasm, a monthly series of high-class standard entertainments will be staged, and six Parlors—Los Angeles No. 45, Ramona No. 109, Hollywood No. 196, Sepulveda No. 263, Santa Monica Bay No. 267 and University No. 272—have agreed to finance the enterprise. The shows will be staged by these Parlors, in numerical order, the last meeting night of each month, and there will be no admission fee.

The first of the united Parlors' mammoth entertainments will be staged Thursday, August 31, at the hall of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, 1832 South Hope street. Every Native Son, regardless of Parlor affiliation, is urged to lend his presence at each of these entertainments and to bring along eligible friends.

SIX INITIATED.

At a largely attended public ceremony July 26, officers of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. were installed by Deputy Marion Crum, Miss Dolores Malin becoming president. The ceremony was very beautiful, the officers-elect being gowned in white and carrying shower boquets in pastel colors. Dancing and refreshments followed the installation.

Six candidates were initiated July 5. The sewing club met July 8 at the home of Bertha Murray; many garments were completed and delicious refreshments were served. A big crowd enjoyed the "dog" bake at Santa Monica July 12; Esther Rinne was chairman. The drill team is practicing weekly. Los Angeles' August program provides: 9th, swimming party Womens Athletic Club, Edna Trombatore chairman; 23rd, weinie bake, Olinda Kerby in charge. The monthly card parties will be resumed September 13, when Ann Schiebusch will preside.

GOES OVER BIG.

The N.S.G.W. Luncheon Club, originated in June, is a great success, and each week both the attendance and the interest increase. The gathering affords an excellent opportunity to get better acquainted and to "gossip" about affairs generally, including those of the Order. During July the following presided: Leslie Packard (Los Angeles), Ernest Orfila (Ramona), Bernard Hiss (University), John Ford (Hollywood) and "Sid" Witkowski (Los Angeles).

The luncheon club meets every Friday at 12:15 (noon) in the Rosslyn Hotel, Fifth and Main. A separate compartment off from the main diningroom has been set aside for the club's use. All Native Sons and eligibles are welcome. Come on in, the spirit is exhilarating and you will be well repaid.

TO INCREASE NUMBERS AND INTEREST.

Officers of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. were publicly installed July 25 by Deputy Mattie Edwards, Mrs. Inez Sitton becoming president. Beautiful decorations and the officers' lovely gowns created a charming scene. The occasion was, too, a "home coming day," and many friends were in attendance. Miss Mary Emily Foy was chairman, and Mrs. Edith Adams and the hospitality committee served delicious refreshments.

July 11, Mrs. Irene Blank presented three talented artists in a delightful program—Misses Alice and Margaret Papst and Amado Fernandez. Following luncheon, Treasurer Minnie Behm, on the Parlor's behalf, presented a gift to Past President Gertrude Tuttle in appreciation for outstanding service rendered No. 247. Mrs. Charles Jacobson, third vice-president, entertained the new officers at a charming luncheon at her home.

Californiana will vacation during August, the next meeting to be held Tuesday, September 12. Plans for the future are expected to bring about more interest and to bring into the ranks many oldtime members and scores of new ones. One meeting a month will be given over to the program committee. The history study class will be resumed, and a new section, early California folk lore, has been created under the guidance of Mrs. Isabel Lopez Fages. Tours to historic spots are planned, and members will learn to step the colorful dances of the days of the dons.

OUTING AT CABRILLO BEACH.

President Charles Straube of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. has long advocated a monthly outing for Native Sons, Native Daughters and their families, where sports will be featured. The first will be held Sunday, August 13, at Cabrillo Beach, shore end of the San Pedro breakwater. Autos will leave Patriotic Hall, 1816 South Figueroa, at 9 a.m. It will be a basket picnic, everyone bringing his own "grub," and baseball, games and swimming will be on the program. "This is not a Ramona affair," says Deputy Grand President Walter E. Odemar, in charge. "We want to make this an event for the enjoyment of all Natives and their families, and we are hopeful that a similar outing, some where, may be held every month."

PRESIDENT GRATEFUL TO ASSISTANTS.

Glendale—July 11, at the last meeting of Verdugo Parlor No. 240 N.D.G.W. at which President Vera Carlson presided, she presented each of her officers with a corsage in colors of red, white and blue. Dorothy Courtney sang "I Love You Truly" and "The End of a Perfect Day." At the meeting's close Mrs. Carlson entertained at her home. The centerpiece of the festive board was a huge cake with the names of all the officers inscribed thereon. A recent bridge party at the home of Dorothy Ravn attracted many players; the hostess was assisted by Maud Molen and Mayme Kirri. Myrtize Tregea and Etta Fulkerth served dainty refreshments June 27.

Newly elected officers of the Parlor, with Sarah Burleson as president, were installed July 25 by Deputy Adele Frankish. At the conclusion of the ceremonies President Burleson entertained.

POWER

Cheap . . . a total capacity of 1,613,287 horsepower! Back of the tremendous industrial growth of Los Angeles County . . . from twenty-seventh place in the United States in 1919 to seventh today . . . stands the cheap power developed by the City, the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, and Southern California Edison Company. 1919, a "highlight" year, marked the start by Southern California Edison Company of a construction program in the High Sierras to cost more than the Panama Canal. 1919, also a "highlight" year for this bank. Deposits of over $26,000,000 . . . greater opportunities to aid community development. Since 1903 . . . through good times and bad . . . California Bank has stood ready to lend money to sound business enterprises. Today, with its increased millions, it continues to do so.

DINE AND DANCE AT SANTA MONICA.

Santa Monica—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. entertained another big crowd July 19, the occasion being the installation of its officers jointly with those of Glendale Parlor No. 264 and University Parlor No. 272. District Deputy Arthur Leonard officiated, assisted by District Deputy Walter Baskerville and Deputy Grand President Walter Odemar, and the following became presidents: J. Edward McCurdy (No. 267), Harvey Gillette (No. 264), Maynard Garrison (No. 272). Municipal Judge Joseph Call conducted the good of the order, and there were many speakers, including Grand Trustee Eldred Meyer. William M. Dowsing was guest of the evening, Santa Monica thus honoring each month one of its past presidents. Entertainment was provided and refreshments were served.

No. 267 is sponsoring a sports dinner dance in the silver palm room of the Grand Hotel, Santa Monica, August 1 at 7:30 p.m. A splendid orchestra will furnish music, and a midnight swimming party is a promised added attraction. This affair is for the benefit of the Parlor's newly-organized twelve-piece drum corps, which plans to appear in the Santa Rosa Admission Day parade. "A cordial invitation is extended all Natives," says Chairman Clayton Brandt. During August, Santa Monica Bay will honor Past President Harold Barden.

JOINT INSTALLATION.

San Pedro—Officers of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 and Compton Parlor No. 272 N.S.G.W. were installed at a largely attended joint meeting July 7. District Deputy Walter E. Baskerville officiated, and Walter C. Richards and Ray W. Hecock became the respective presidents. Among the speakers of the evening were Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, Grand Inside Sentinel William A. Reuter and District Deputy Edward E. Baldwin. A tamale supper concluded the ceremonies.

SUNSET BARBECUE.

Santa Monica—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 N.D.G.W. had several visitors from Long Beach and Verdugo Parlors July 12, among them Deputies Bulah VanLuven and Violet Henshilwood. Lucretia Coates, No. 245's former deputy, was honor-guest, and to her the Parlor, through Deputy Rita Smith, presented a gift. One candidate was initiated, and Chairman Helen Burke of the veterans welfare committee sponsored a shower for "her boys." With Audrea Merritt as hostess, delicious refreshments were served. The favors, in the state's colors, were made by Mrs. Smith.

Kathryn Worsham entertained July 11 with a tea at her home; sewing for the fall bazar was the order of the day. A food sale July 22 was in charge of Hazel McCreary. Mrs. Harold Barden entertained July 28 with a pot-luck luncheon in the gardens of her home. For the Parlor's benefit, President Amada Machado will have a sunset barbecue at her home, 1301 Jefferson boulevard, Culver City, August 5. Music will be furnished by a Spanish trio, and cards will provide entertainment. Admission, 75 cents.

LOS ANGELES NATIVE SONS BRIEFS.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 officers were installed July 14 by District Deputy Arthur Leonard, Roger M. Johnson becoming president. The membership campaign aroused considerable discussion, among the many participating being Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, District Deputy Walter Fisher, Owen S. Adams, Sidney B. Witkowski and Ray LeMoine.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 officers were installed by District Deputy Walter Fisher, July 7, Charles Straube becoming president. The July birthday dinner drew a large crowd, including many visitors, and at the festive board Edwin A. Meserve made a brief talk. The affair was also complimentary to Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer who, at the meeting, detailed the Order's activities. Ramona's greetings to him were extended by Robert Todd. The athletic committee, Homer Chapelle chairman, is planning activities. Scout Master Robert Martin has arranged to take Ramona Troop No. 109 of Boy Scouts on an outing to Yosemite, August 10-19. The Parlor will hold initiation August 11, and the monthly birthday dinner, with a surprise, is set for August 18.

Hollywood Parlor No. 196 has retained Henry G. Bodkin as president for another term. Several new members have been added to the rolls, among them Paul, the son of Federal Judge McCormick. The Parlor proposes to take up the study of important civic questions, and a lively discussion along that line July 14 was participated in by President Bodkin, Deputy Grand President John Ford, District Deputy Walter Fisher, M. U. Rosenthal, John F. Lieb, W. L. O'Meara and many others. A class of candidates will be initiated August 21.

University Parlor No. 272 initiated six candidates last month, and will have a class of seven August 9. The next dance, at the Casa de Rosas, 1008 West Adams, August 19, will be in charge of William J. Quast (chairman), Howard Babb, Roy Parsons, Lucien A. Griffin, Walter Wells and James Shorten. Carl Martin is the new recording secretary, succeeding Martin DeFazio. The Parlor's baseball nine, under the leadership of James Shorten, promises to give the Santa Rosa team a hard fight on Admission Day.

ADMISSION DAY LOCALLY.

The Interparlor N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Committee elected these officers July 21: Burrel D. Neighbours (Ramona N.S.), chairman; Mary Noerenberg (Californiana N.D.), vice-chairman; Clyde H. Davis (Los Angeles N.S.), secretary; Frank Frank (Los Angeles N.S.), treasurer.

A committee was authorized to arrange for the observance locally of Admission Day, September 9. Gertrude Allen (Los Angeles N.D.) was made chairman, and among her assistants are the first vice-presidents of all Subordinate Parlors. A tentative program includes a basket supper, followed by a program and dancing, at the Breakfast Club, 3213 Riverside drive. Full particulars in The Grizzly Bear for September. The committee will meet August 4 at 8 p.m. in the library of Patriotic Hall, 1816 South Figueroa.

ALL NATIVE SONS INVITED.

The Californians Civic League, recently formed to participate in civic affairs, will have an open meeting at 7:30 p.m. August 1 in Ramona clubrooms, 1816 South Figueroa, to which all Native Sons are invited. "The purpose of the organization, composed entirely of Native Sons, is to further the interest of California for Californians." Sidney B. Witkowski is the chairman, and J. F. Meehan the secretary.

"MARK OUR LANDMARKS"

"MARK OUR LANDMARKS"

WITH THE ADVENT OF A NEW Admission Day, our thoughts revert to the significance of that event and recall early celebrations connected with California's birth into the sisterhood of states.

Perhaps no state accepted statehood with more joy than did California on that memorable 9th day of September, 1850, when Congress approved her application for admission. It meant to the people on this far-western shore that their property and lives would be protected by the parent government. Prior to that, great uncertainty existed as to the title to lands, and life itself was precarious.

Therefore, when in October 1850 the glad tidings came slowly over the waters that California had become a sovereign state in the federal sisterhood, enthusiastic citizens of San Francisco celebrated the memorable event with great pomp and ceremony.

Then, more so than now, no celebration was complete without the services of the ablest orator to be had. In San Francisco then, lived Pioneer Nathaniel Bennett, miner, lawyer, judge, born in the State of New York in 1818 and who had migrated to California on the whaling vessel, "Mentor," with a group of twenty-five intimate friends. This boat had been chartered by Bennett and friends, who brought with them in a part of the vessel designated as "steerage," fifty other adventuresome souls. After a pleasant voyage 'round the Horn, the vessel finally landed its passengers at San Francisco on June 30, 1849.

Five months had been consumed with the passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. Probably no more intelligent passenger list could have been found in any of the pioneer vessels than those who came with Bennett. The captain and crew were old whalers and well-behaved men, and the cabin passengers were men of integrity and learning, and were well supplied with books, chessboards, cards, etc. During the long five months of the voyage, Bennett spent considerable time every day studying the Spanish language. Almost immediately after landing, Bennett was successful in mining on the Tuolumne River about two miles below Jackson. Even though the strike at this point yielded profitable returns, Bennett was importuned to leave mining and return to the practice of law in San Francisco. This he did, in the fall of 1849.

This was the type of Pioneer who, on October 29, 1850, at San Francisco, was selected on that long-forgotten Admission Day to speak for the people of the West their message of thanksgiving for California's birth, in an oration that must have consumed an hour and a half to deliver. Among other things this brilliant, many-sided Pioneer said,

"To the people of the old States the admission of a new one has always been a source of honest pride. They behold with gratification the spread of the empire of freemen; and their welcome voice has always been heard in the past, as in gay and glittering procession, and laden with varied gifts, State after State has gone thronging up for admission and been marshalled into the lists of the Union. How then could it be otherwise, when California, with her robe glowing with silver and a diadem of gold upon her brow, had so long and patiently waited for the privilege of being allowed to participate with her elder sisterhood in their hopes and fears, to share with them the common benefits and sustain her portion of the common burdens. The numerous manifestations of kindly feelings from our brethren of the East prove that their satisfaction is inferior only to our own—that they receive us into their embrace with sincere friendship, and with warm wishes for our continued prosperity and permanent welfare. . . .

"Californians, natives of the soil! such is the nation, its progress in the past and its prospects for the future, which you have chosen to adopt for your country. You and ourselves stand on common ground. Born and reared under different governments, and speaking different tongues, we nevertheless meet here today as brothers. The same fraternal roof shelters us all. The aegis of the Constitution guards and protects us alike. Though you have been severed from the parent tree, your strength is not sapped nor your leaves withered; but, grafted into a strange branch, you nevertheless spring forth with more than former vigor, and flourish with fresh and unwonted luxuriance."

As your Historian read this brilliant oration by this long-forgotten man whose very existence is unknown to most of us and whose grave perhaps is neglected and unhonored, he thought to himself, "How many of our present-day orators could excel this Admission Day orator? Could Fletcher Cutler, Lewis Byington, Joseph R. Knowland or Justice Emmett Seawell match it with their known and tested ability? Could Charles 'Tears' McLaughlin in his best days have ranked with Bennett?" This question can only be decided by the individual, for we know our older contemporary orators to be very able. Given the same time those old-time orators took to prepare their masterpieces, would not California's present forensic ability have compared with the old school which your Historian has heretofore designated as "California's Golden Age of Oratory"?

Homeless Children

A WORTHWHILE NON-SECTARIAN ENDEAVOR SPONSORED AND SUPPORTED BY THE ORDERS OF NATIVE SONS AND NATIVE DAUGHTERS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

SOME VERY INTERESTING STORIES about adopted children have come to the workers of the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Homeless Children Committee from foster parents. It seems too bad not to share them with the members of the Orders.

One small boy was learning to swear quite proficiently from a boy in the neighborhood, so the foster parents decided it might be well to separate the boys and send their hopeful to kindergarten. The first day of school the foster mother and son arrived in the schoolroom, and the small boy, all dressed up in a pretty blue suit and white collar and with his pompadour all "sta-combed," was introduced to his teacher. By way of acknowledgment and with the idea of making the child feel at ease, the teacher said, "Well, little man, do you know your letters?" and, looking up at her in the most astonished manner he said, "Hell, no! I've only been here five minutes."

A little girl was inclined to be selfish, and her mother was somewhat concerned over this fact. One day as the mother sat sewing, her child and three or four little girls were playing school. The mother noticed that her child usually chose to be teacher, so in quiet tones she said, "Frances, you must let the other children be the teacher once in a while. You must not want to be the teacher all of the time." So Frances said, "All right, Julia, YOU can be the teacher." (The mother was quite pleased over the child's readiness to heed her admonition). "YOU can be the teacher, and I'LL be the PRINCIPAL!"

A small boy had learned in Sundayschool about the wonderful story in the Bible of the great friendship between David and Jonathan. A few weeks later, by way of reviewing the lessons, the teacher asked the children who the two men in the Bible were between whom there was the great friendship, and one small boy spoke up and said, "Potash and Purlmutter."

A little six-year-old girl, reared in the mountains near Yosemite in a home of squalor, was left an orphan and was brought to a San Francisco institution. The Committee was asked to find a home for her. The first Saturday that the child was in the institution she was told by the matron not to make her bed as it was the day to change the sheets. "Change the sheets?" said she, "Who do I change with?"

"Love is a pipe we light at twenty, smoke until forty, and rake the dregs until our exit." This sage philosophy was uttered by the captain of the boat which brought Lola Montez back to England when she left India for the last time. Strange, this exotic woman in whose career romance and love played such a part, died in her forty-third year, soon after the period quoted as the time for the dying of that well-known spark in human breasts.

"When Brigham Young gives me a receipt signed by the Lord then, and not until then, will I give him his tithes." This was the terse answer Sam Brannon gave to the messenger which Brigham Young, located at Salt Lake, Utah, sent to California. When the father of the Mormon Church heard of the rich returns from Brannon's mining on Mormon Island in the American River near Folsom he sent this messenger across the miles to collect for the Lord. Sam was too smart for his employer. The proposition of paying one-tenth of all his gold to Brigham Young for the Lord was too much for him. Sam was promptly excommunicated by Brigham Young, but that little bothered the carefree Sam, who went on to make a name for himself as a leader in early California and who died after as exciting and as accomplished a life as any Pioneer ever lived. Your Historian had read that the grave of Brannon is practically unmarked in a San Diego cemetery. If this is the case, then his memory should be commemorated by a suitable marker, and suitable honor paid to the grave of a man whose only fault perhaps occurred in his later years when he took to excessive drink.

"You never injured me. Take me across the river and I will pay you for your trouble." This was the answer of Joaquin Murietta to the plea of the old ferryman on the Tuolumne River, when at midnight Joaquin, with gun in hand, awakened him from his rude hut and demanded his money or his life. The frightened man told the bandit king that he had only $100, but that he was welcome to it. Somewhere in the heart of the monster burned the light of chivalry, and instead of robbing the old man of his small belongings made the above reply, which shows a latent goodness in a heart then reeking with blood and cruelty.

Native Sons who attended Parlor in the last six months know well what the name of "William B. Ide" was employed for. Few perhaps realized the importance of Ide in the Bear Flag uprising. Ide was the leader of the Pioneers at Sonoma and not only was he a brave man but his letters, intact today, show a man of great breeding and learning. His letter under date of June 15, 1846, addressed to Jno. B. Montgomery, Commander of the United States ship "Portsmouth," lying in San Francisco Bay, concludes with these words:

"Destined as we are to certain destruction should we prove unsuccessful, we have the honor to be your Fellow Countrymen, and whether we conquer or perish we are resolved to approve ourselves not unworthy the kindly regards of those who 'build to the honor and glory of the American Flag.' It is our object and earnest desire to embrace the first opportunity to unite our adopted and rescued country, to the country of our early home. With every consideration and by the will of the people, I have the honor to be, etc., WILLIAM B. IDE."

This letter is comparable to the last message sent out by the leader of the ill-fated garrison in the Alamo at San Antonio, Texas, when in 1836 he appealed vainly to the United States for help from the death which speedily overtook the entire command.

FOREVER ONWARD

(ROBT. L. HAWKENSEN.)

O shifting sand of the desert,
If blest with heart or soul,
I beg that you have mercy on
Men striving toward their goal.

Far across your barren wasteland
The traveler wends his way,
Tramping on till the burning sun
Melts at the close of day.

Then peacefully he goes to sleep,
Out in your arid land,
Dreaming of the glittering gold
Buried in yonder sand.

Morning comes as a brilliant sun
Climbs over distant slope,
And he renews his endless march,
Possessed of love and hope.

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

ADMISSION DAY, SEPTEMBER 9, COMing on a Sunday in 1883, the holiday was observed the 10th. The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West had a celebration at Stockton, San Joaquin County, the principal feature of which was a mile-long parade, headed by Grand President A. F. Jones. Participating were Governor George C. Stoneman and staff, a corps of Mexican War veterans, pioneer associations, civic and military organizations and ten Subordinate Parlors of the Order. The San Francisco contingent went by steamboat, accompanied by the First U. S. Artillery band. Arthur L. Levinsky was chairman of the arrangements committee.

In his report of the celebration to the Seventh (Marysville 1884) Grand Parlor, Grand President Jones said: "Every member of the Order should be gratified at the energy and enthusiasm displayed by Stockton Parlor No. 7, which resulted in such a grand success on the 10th of September, 1883. We can only wish for at least an equal occasion each year. To properly celebrate and make the appearance of the Natives uniform on this occasion, I sanctioned the use of the hat and plume worn on that day."

In observance of the day, the Society of California Pioneers, San Francisco, had an outing at Del Monte, Monterey County, and Pioneers of Solano and Napa Counties had enthusiastic celebrations, respectively, at Suisun and Napa City.

The annual California State Fair opened at Sacramento City September 10 for a week's run. Irving M. Scott delivered the address. The receipts were $19,475.80, the largest to date of any fair. To solve the gambling question, the Sacramento Board of City Trustees licensed the games and relegated them to the second floors of buildings. Thirty-five licenses were taken out, and the city collected $3,350 in fees.

Other fairs this month were: California North District at Marysville, Yuba County, and Nevada County, at Grass Valley, the 4th; San Joaquin Valley, at Stockton, the 17th; Santa Clara County, at San Jose, the 24th. A feature at the latter was a fifty-mile riding race between P. Figueroa and Charley Anderson of Los Angeles; the latter won.

Wool growers of the state organized September 12 and elected J. B. Hoyt of Solano County president. It was claimed the industry was in a paralyzed condition.

The Federal Government reduced letter postage from three to two cents September 15, and a special car loaded with the new stamps was sent to California.

The season's first rainstorm prevailed September 29 and 30. The precipitation was .90 of an inch.

Eight steamboats were busy on the Sacramento River towing barges loaded with grain from points south of Colusa City to Port Costa, Contra Costa County.

Charles Martell, at Vaca Valley, Solano County, raised twenty tons of tokay grapes on two acres of vines and sold the product for $1,700.

Frank Kimball of San Diego offered to deed 1,000 acres of land to anyone who would plant half the acreage to grape vines; Arpad Harathy of San Francisco accepted the offer.

Ventura had a ten-seconds shock of earthquake at 4 a.m. of September 5.

The stage from Yreka, Siskiyou County, was robbed by a lone highwayman near Shasta, September 12. The express box was taken.

A woman in Maine died and left an estate valued at $150,000. A brother, who went to California in the '50s, was advertised for as the heir. He turned up as a citizen of Downieville, Sierra County, named Walter Plummer, and went East to claim the estate.

Adolph Hartman, secretary of the Humboldt Savings Bank in San Francisco, was short $15,000 in his accounts, and September 20 committed suicide.

Lakeport, Lake County, had a dozen buildings burn September 6; loss, $25,000. A big fire on the Sausalito, Marin County, waterfront September 12 caused a $20,000 loss. Tehama City suffered a $10,000 fire loss September 24.

In a Butte County mine, at a depth of forty feet, the skeleton of a man six feet tall was found. By his side were an ax and a pipe, both of stone.

General George S. Evans, once adjutant-general of the state and a senator from San Joaquin County, died at San Francisco, September 17. The same day, J. F. Chellis, lieutenant-governor of California in 1862-63, died in Oregon State.

Stewart S. Brook, Pioneer of '49 who built the Yreka Canal, claimed to be the longest mining ditch in the state, died September 19 at San Francisco.

Pressley Dunlap, who arrived in Sacramento in August of 1849 and was that county's first clerk, died September 21.

D. M. Kenfield, Tuolumne Pioneer who was treasurer of the county for ten years and state controller from 1879 to 1883, died at San Francisco, September 29.

The Four Hills mine near Downieville, Sierra County, struck a bonanza September 4. Gold streaked the quartz taken out, and one ton yielded over $100,000 worth of the precious metal.

At Sweetland, Nevada County, the Manzanita hydraulic mine cleaned up its sluices after a forty-day run and recovered gold dust valued at $110,000.

Two men, sinking a well on the Santa Maria rancho, San Diego County, put in a blast that threw out a shower of quartz impregnated with gold. As a result, they located a rich ledge.

A pocket containing several large nuggets of pure gold was found September 19 in the Nevill mine, at Middle Bar on the Mokelumne River in Amador County. The find was valued at $90,000.

Wm. A. Gordon, Ventura farmer, committed suicide September 2 by lying down upon a giant-powder cartridge and exploding it. His head was found a hundred feet from where his feet were picked up.

H. H. Harrington of Livermore, Alameda County, September 12 shot and killed 14-year-old Mary Davis, a servant in his home, and then ended his own life.

Redding, Shasta County, had a shooting affray September 11 in which George Finch killed Marion Berry.

Quarreling in Fresno County September 13 over the belling of a cow, Isaac Harris was shot and killed by Charles Slocum, his soninlaw.

At North San Juan, Nevada County, a wagonload of 185 kegs of powder exploded September 20. Thomas Cleveland, the driver, and four horses were killed.

A powder explosion at the Alameda County works of the California Powder Company, September 30, blew thirty-six Chinamen and a Whiteman to atoms.

H. H. White, working in an Inyo County location, one Sunday rested and, taking his Bible, sat beneath a pine tree on the hillside of a deep ravine. He dozed, the Bible fell off his lap and rolled down the bank about sixty feet, and he descended to pick it up. It was open at the seventh chapter of St. Matthew, where lay a piece of quartz the book had dislodged. The verse beneath the quartz read, "Ask, and it shall be given unto you; seek, and ye shall find," etc. The quartz was gold streaked. He climbed the steep side and found the ledge from which it had been dislodged. The quartz assayed $225 a ton.

Jim Townsend, pioneer miner of Grass Valley, Nevada County, gave an editor this remedy for drinking too much booze: "I don't care if a man is as drunk as a democrat every night for a month, raw beef will cure him. When his stomach is weak at even the looks of cold water, raw beef is a panacea. When feeling groggy, go to a butchershop, get a piece of juicy roundsteak, sprinkle it with salt, then eat it. The gastric juice will flow freely again, and inside of an hour you will feel as solid as a brick house with a slate roof."

A Los Angeles hotel had tacked up in each room the following sign: "No combustibles such as paper, old clothing, empty bottles and oyster cans are to be thrown out of the window."

A man filing his papers in the United States Land Office at San Francisco, wrote his christian name, "Usual." Asked how he came to get such an unusual name, he stated, "I am the seventh son. My parents had hoped for a daughter when I was born. When it was me, my father remarked 'Another son, as usual.' That gave me the name of 'Usual'."

A saloon in Paradise, Butte County, was named "Soretoe Retreat," and one in Yankee Hill was called "Bellywash Castle." "Hog Hollow was the name of a small town near by.

Comments on subjects of general interest and importance received from readers of The Grizzly Bear.

WOULD SAVE LAUREL HILL FROM GREEDY REAL ESTATE DEALERS.

Editor Grizzly Bear—I have been extremely interested in The Grizzly Bear writings of Mr. Chester F. Gannon on the subject of the duel between Senator Broderick and Judge Terry which my father considered no duel at all, but a dastardly murder. Perhaps I am more interested in this now, because I do not believe there is another person on earth but myself who stood by Mr. Broderick's death bed a few minutes after he breathed his last, and witnessed what was to be the most vivid picture in all my memory. It is a terrible sight to a child to see a man cry, and I was awestruck to see one man with his head bowed over the pillow and another bending over the foot of the bed where was the body of their loved friend lying so calm and peaceful. Both of these gentlemen were sobbing aloud, as were several others, for there were many of Mr. Broderick's friends there that day, overwhelmed with grief. Do you wonder that I could never forget it? We were living on Black Point at that time, and my father, who was a friend of Mr. Broderick, feeling that this was a part of California history, thought it was right for my sister and my older brother and myself to have the memory of this scene. I had never before seen anyone who was dead, but Mr. Broderick was noble looking in death and there was no horror attached to that part of it, only sorrow at seeing such grief.

And this brings me to a subject so near to my heart: the beautiful old [San Francisco] cemetery where nearly all the Pioneers are buried; where there is hardly a foreign name on the stones erected there. We always pause at Mr. Broderick's grave and Col. Baker's when we go to the cemetery. They are both on the way to our lot, and we have often found flowers on Mr. Broderick's grave. I have hoped so much that the Native Sons and Daughters would take an interest in saving Laurel Hill from the greedy real estate dealers and let the Pioneers of our state rest undisturbed! It would make a beautiful park, and perpetuate the memory of many brave and noble men who built California. All power to Mr. Gannon! I wish he might succeed in arousing an interest in saving the burial place of these truly great men.

MRS. ANNA E. WILLEY.
Alameda City, August 10, 1933.

(The writer of the above, Mrs. Anna Cook-Willey, arrived in California via Panama in 1851, at the age of three. She is a daughter of Pioneer Charles W. Cook, deceased, who came to this state aboard the "Oregon" in 1849 and engaged in the banking business in San Francisco under the firm name of Palmer, Cook & Co.—Editor.)

VERY FEW OLDTIME PIONEERS NOW LEFT—SLOWLY THINNING OUT.

Editor Grizzly Bear—Will you please publish these good anecdotes in The Grizzly Bear? Died in Oakland, Mrs. Mariana Sorden de Moreno, August 2, 1933. She was born in Monterey, California, in 1850. Her father was Charles Sorden, who came with Commodore Sloat in 1846. He was one of the men who helped raise the American Flag at the Casa de la Duana, now called Old Custom House, under Commodore Sloat. Her mother was one of the many colonists who came up to Monterey from San Jose del Cabo (Lower California). Her name was Juana Sombreros de Campos, a member of the Hipolito family. Mrs. Moreno had many friends, and was well known to many of the old residents of Monterey. She was baptized at the old Carmel Mission church, was one of the many pupils who went to school at the old Quartel building ("adobe"), and later on lived in Watsonville. Very few now left of those oldtime Pioneers; slowly thinning out.

The writer is also a pioneer of the old town of Monterey, born there in 1858. Mother was a Pioneer of 1848, and father was one of the old side-wheeler passengers who came around the Horn on steamer "Senator" in 1850. We are all good Native Sons and Daughters, believing in the Orders.

BOYHOOD DAYS RECALLED.

Editor Grizzly Bear—I see by an article in The Grizzly Bear Magazine of August, under "Fifty Years Ago," about a project to irrigate 30,000,000 acres of land and take the water from Kings River. The notice was pleasing to me.

As a boy 15 years of age I was employed on that survey, as a hunter for fresh meat and a roustabout. We started the survey at Clark's Fork of Kings River, which is on the Laguna De Tache ranch. Thence we ran the line out west to Summit Lake, which they were going to use as a reservoir, and thence north to Tracy. Yours very truly,

FRED W. ZIMMERMAN.

AMADOR COUNTY'S OPPORTUNITIES EXCELLENT FOR THE GOLD MINER.

Amador County has the deepest and richest gold mines on the North American Continent, says Harold V. Tallon in the "Amador Ledger" of Jackson. Situated in the "Heart of the Mother Lode" and having an enviable mining history since 1850, gives Amador County the right to claim that most excellent opportunities for the gold miner exist here today, as they did yesterday, and as eminent geologists affirm, "will continue for time to come."

The greater part of the gold mining history of the Golden West has been made in Amador County and is being made today. . . . Opportunities for gold miners exist here on every hand, but one cannot be deluded into the thought that plenty of enthusiasm, a few men, a grub stake, and some picks and shovels will produce a good mine over night. Such conditions may have existed in the old placer days of the '49er, but in this day and age things have changed, and mining is no exception. Amador County is primarily a deep-ledge mining section. New operators must be well financed, must have a definite program, and must have mining men of experience and practice to direct developments. After all, gold mining is not magic—it is a business, and an exacting one.

Native Sons of the Golden West

"TO THE OFFICERS AND MEMBERS of all Subordinate Parlors of the Native Sons of the Golden West—Dear Sirs and Brothers: Admission Day Greetings!

"Our entire membership is eagerly awaiting the approach of California's eighty-third anniversary. We are already beginning to feel the thrill of the occasion, as we vision marching columns of thousands of California's sons and daughters, arrayed in colorful uniforms, interspersed with drum corps and bands of music, and uniquely designed historical figures, representative of the romance and adventure of a pioneer epoch which has no counterpart in American civilization. Admission Day celebrations and parades have become a fixed pageant feature in the life of our State, and if they should be discontinued it would seem that we were no longer living in California.

"The annual custom of celebrating the ninth day of September was commenced many years ago by our Order. The appropriateness of the annual celebrations of the admission of California into the Union, held by our Order on each succeeding year, grew so strong in public favor that the legislature of the State finally included it within the list of national events worthy of State recognition. Our natal day celebrations are distinctively Californian in color, attractiveness, and in spirit. They are solely concepts of Western origin and aptly symbolize the habits, customs, thoughts and ways of the actors who played heroic parts in one of the greatest of all human dramas, which had for its stage settings the vast mountain chains, broad and fertile valleys, great rivers and primeval forests which are now included within our State lines.

JUSTICE EMMET SEAWELL,

"At the fifty-sixth session of our Grand Parlor, Santa Rosa was selected as the place in which the Admission Day celebration is to be held this year. The selection is a happy one, as Santa Rosa is the seat of government of Sonoma County, and but a short distance from Pueblo de Sonoma, where the first decisive action was taken in California to establish a civil government which should in due course of time become annexed to the union of American states. Many exciting and historical events have transpired within this pioneer county. The flags of Spain, Mexico, and Russia have been raised upon its soil as symbols of foreign dominion. Then came the fourth, the Bear flag, and lastly and forever, the Stars and Stripes. In the midst of these hallowed scenes, surely we may befittingly celebrate the day.

"The assuring word comes from every part of the State that the attendance will be the largest that has gathered upon a similar occasion in many years. A revival of the spirit of the Order is sweeping the entire State. Our ideals are unquestionably taking hold of the public mind. We are becoming better understood year by year. The pioneer county of Sonoma bids you thrice welcome. The day will abound in good fellowship and good will greetings.

"Let us join hands again in renewal of our loyalty to the State of California, and to the pledge which we have taken to promote the welfare and happiness of our citizens to the fullest measure of our strength.

"With every good wish for the Order and its members, I am, sincerely and fraternally,

"EMMET SEAWELL,
"Grand President N.S.G.W.

Murder Site Marked.

Nevada City—The forenoon of July 30, several Native Sons gathered on the Blue Tent road, about four miles above Nevada City, where Hydraulic No. 56 placed a marker at the site of the murder of Arthur Myers, a stage driver, October 31, 1894. Dr. C. W. Chapman gave the following account:

"The killing of the driver of the stage was due to a trifling peculiar habit he had of always standing with his left hand in his pocket and his right hand resting on his hip while he talked to anyone. He had been breaking in some new horses and shifted a couple of colts from the wheel to the lead. They were doing fairly well but could not be trusted yet, and when he got the order, 'Hands up!', he stuck the left hand with the lines between his knees to keep the colts from bolting and then mechanically put the right hand on his hip. That was fatal. The highwayman mistook it and plugged him just under the heart. He slumped forward into the boot of the stage and onto the lines, drawing them tighter and holding them fast. There was one passenger on the seat with him. That passenger jumped and ran back down the road, where some men were working wtih a plow. Two shots followed him, but missed, and the highwayman took to the woods without finishing the robbery. The workmen hurried to the scene and one of them, Pete Arbogast, drove the stage to town."

Schnarr, Grand Marshal Gam Hurst and Deputy Frank Smith.

The married and the unmarried members of the Parlor engaged in a baseball contest July 30. The latter won, and the former served the barbecue which followed the game. Filbert Soares captained the bachelors.

The Parlor was officially visited August 14 by Grand Trustee Edward Schnarr, and there were many visitors from the east San Francisco Bay district Parlors. MY OLDTIME BURRO

Marysville (Yuba County)—A highly pleasing number on the program rendered August 6 during the annual reunion of residents of Yuba and Sutter Counties in Mosswood Park, Oakland, was the reciting of an original poem "My Old-Time Burro," dedicated to the young miner of '49—by Miss Eleanor Sooy of San Francisco, former Camptonville girl:

Wasn't any shakes fer beauty,—just a burro, small 'n' gray,—
Tiny thing, an' him a-havin' just a reg'lar jackass bray;
Waked me up most ev'ry mornin',—warm 'n' bright, or wet 'n' raw,— Chills a-chasin' through my innards when I'd hear that old hee-haw!

Lift? My lord, you should-a seen 'im, with my load upon his back,—
All my tools 'n' other fixin's, 'n' my heavy beddin' pack,
Off he'd march, his long ears pointin', for he knew my word was law,
An' I knew how things were goin', when I'd hear that old hee-haw!

Once I nearly lost th' feller. (Golly! what a life we led)!
Comin' down a river grade, sir,—bluff 'n' danger just ahead;
Slipped, 'n' nearly lost 'is footin',—death fer him was what I saw,—
Trembled,—cowered,—s-t-e-a-d-i-e-d,—started,—with that welcome old hee-haw!

Spirit an' a heart uv oak, sir,—lurkin' devil shore wuz there,—
Hurt me, too, to have to whale 'im, but 'e didn't seem to care,—
Shook 'imself when all wuz over,—in 'is eye endurance raw,—
When he knew I'd bust out cryin', loud would come that old hee-haw!

I wuz just a striplin', mister,—that wuz many years ago,—
My ol' pan 'n' rocker helped me,—made my pile an' saw it go;
Made some more 'n' quit a-minin'; came home; learned respect fer law,—
Lef' my fun 'n' little burro; gee, I missed that old hee-haw!

Him an' me we shore wuz cronies; boy loved beast,—I cared a lot;
Al'ays listened to my stories,—broke or flush it mattered not;
Couldn't bring 'im, so I left 'im where the strength of might wuz law,
An' I feel he heartened others with that lusty old hee-haw!

Another feature of the gathering was the appearance of Mrs. Sophia Davis, former Sutter County resident, now 99 years of age and determined, she declared, to reach the one hundredth milestone. Five hundred former or present Yubaites and Sutterites attended the reunion.—PETER J. DELAY.

—referred to in The Grizzly Bear last month—was most impressive, and profuse compliments were extended those who arranged the details. REDWOOD TEMPLE

(Memorial Redwood Grove.)
(RUTH PARLE.)

A quiet hush; eternal calm
Is templed here.
Its silent beauty holds heart's balm,
For God is near.

In welcome stand old redwoods high
For those who pray.
Towering spires reach the sky
To clouds of grey.

This, a poem in solemn wood
Memorial to Him
Made in beauteous, revering mood
By faith ne'er dim—
Cathedral peace where love is food—
Eternal Hymn.

CALIFORNIA STATE MONUMENTS THAT PERPETUATE HISTORY OF LONG AGO.

California has ten state monuments, all of historic interest, administered by the State Park Commission. They include:

Donner Monument—Nevada County, at Donner Lake. A memorial erected by the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. to the ill-fated Donner party, snowbound at Donner Lake in the winter of 1847.

Marshall Monument—El Dorado County, near the site of the cabin of James W. Marshall, discoverer of gold at Coloma, in 1848.

Fort Ross—Sonoma County. Site of a Russian settlement founded in 1812.

Mission San Francisco de Solano—Sonoma City. Most northerly of the Franciscan missions.

General Vallejo Home—Outskirts of Sonoma City. Home-place of General Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo, soldier, statesman and patriot.

First California Theater—Monterey City. Erected in 1843, and used as a place of entertainment.

Junipero Serra Landing Place—Outskirts of Monterey City.

Monterey Custom House—Monterey City. Where Commodore John Drake Sloat raised the American Flag, July 7, 1846.

Hacienda Governor Pio Pico—Whittier, Los Angeles County. Adobe residence of Pio Pico, a governor of California in the days of Mexican rule.

San Pasqual Battlefield—San Diego County. Where American troops defeated Mexican forces, December 5, 1846.

The number of these historic monuments is being increased from time to time. Soon to be added are the San Juan Bautista, San Benito County, Plaza and old buildings facing San Juan Mission.

KNOW HUMBOLDT COUNTY—NUMEROUS HISTORIC PLACES LISTED.

The Humboldt County Board of Trade, with headquarters at Eureka, has prepared for distribution an authoritative list of historical places in Humboldt County. The various sites which have associations with the pioneers of the Redwood Empire are described in detail.

Among the places included in the compilation are Trinidad Head, discovered by Spanish navigators June 9, 1775; Fort Humboldt, near Eureka, where U. S. Grant was stationed in 1853; scenes of fighting with Indians, and many other historic sites. A narrative on the discovery of Humboldt Bay is included, besides a list of books referring to the history of Humboldt County.

This report on the historic places in Humboldt County may be secured from the Humboldt Board of Trade, which has also issued a new strip map showing the route of the redwood highway. The Eureka Chamber of Commerce has published a new illustrated leaflet on Eureka, its advantages and attractions.

Pinnacles Monument Enlarged—Some 5,000 acres have been added to California's Pinnacles National Monument. With the exception of the portion embracing Chalone Mountain, in Monterey County, the Pinnacles area is in San Benito County.

Flower Festival—The ninth annual California Flower Festival is to be held September 14-17 at San Leandro, Alameda County. The largest and most spectacular orchid display ever seen in the West will be a feature.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

"TO THE OFFICERS AND MEMBERS of Subordinate Parlors Native Daughters of the Golden West—From the time when Jason and his Argonauts traveled the Aegean Sea in search of the Golden Fleece, the heart of man has yearned for the 'Golden.' His aspirations were realized in this blessed land, where Golden Sunshine sheds its light upon the hills, covered with the Golden Poppy, and containing precious Golden Metal.

"One has but to understand the meaning of the symbols in the Great Seal of State, to fully appreciate the significance of Admission Day. The tall goddess tells how, Minerva-like, California was born a state, without having gone through the probation of a territory. The grizzly bear feeding upon the grapevine, typifies peculiar characteristics of California; the miner with uplifted pick, toils to gather the rock-bound treasure, picturing industry and the golden wealth of this sun-lit land; the ship points to the situation of the State with respect to commercial greatness; the snowcapped Sierras emphasize the beauty, strength and nobility of California's natural beauty, and the motto 'Eureka' indicates that the Pioneer fathers and mothers after traversing a continent, found in California the wealth and beauty of the world. The golden wealth poured from these western shores in time of civil conflict established the priceless heritage of human liberty.

MRS. IRMA W. LAIRD,
Grand President N.D.G.W.

"In 1881 the people of the State of California by common consent delegated to the Native Sons of the Golden West the privilege of naming the place for holding a state-wide celebration in honor of Admission Day. Since 1887 the Native Daughters of the Golden West have been coworkers with the Native Sons in perpetuating this date as a holiday, a day set aside for the observance of Pioneer customs, songs and traditions. The covered wagon and the oxen have become symbolical of those days of tragedy and romance, the days of '49, when our mothers came, young and unafraid, side by side with the Pioneer fathers, to build this land of the West.

"It is particularly fitting that on this eighty-third anniversary of our Statehood that we should pay special honor to those Pioneers who established our first western homes. It is from them that we inherited our love of home, and we are still close enough to them to have retained at least a little of their pioneering spirit.

"This year upon Admission Day, the Native Sons and Native Daughters will gather in the city of Santa Rosa, the home of the late Luther Burbank. Our thoughts will naturally turn to the well-known plant wizard, who was able to develop the most mediocre varieties of plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables to such an extent that even the thorny cacti of the desert became edible for livestock; drab flowers took on spectral hues and exhaled fragrance; bitter fruit became luscious, and even the lowly tuber developed into an aristocrat of the table.

"Analagous to the remarkable scientific work of Burbank might come the development of 'Better Parades.' We are expecting the usual magnificent and glamorous display, the long line of brilliantly garbed Native Sons and Daughters, and we realize that each individual success shall redound to the honor and credit of the Orders. Each individual in that line of march holds to a degree the reputation of our Order. It is because I believe so profoundly in the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and because I am so proud of what it is and what it is doing, that I covet for it the best personal character, in ideals and in all personal appearances.

" 'In the land of heaven's peculiar grace, the heritage of nature's noblest race, there is a spot on earth supremely blest, a dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest. Where shall that land, that spot of earth be found? Oh, thou shalt find, howe'er thy footsteps roam, that land thy country, and that spot thy home,'—CALIFORNIA.

"Sincerely and fraternally in P.D.F.A.,

"IRMA W. LAIRD,
"Grand President N.D.G.W.

"Alturas, August 11, 1933."

Thirty State Flags Presented Schools.

Editor Grizzly Bear—The inclosed poem was written by a 12-year-old girl attending Bryte school, Yolo County, after she had accepted a California State (Bear) Flag for her class, presented by Woodland No. 90. The Parlor is very interested in presenting the state flag to the schools of the county. To date, thirty have been presented, and the history and landmarks committee is anxious to continue the work. President Lela Ewert has appointed Edna Richter, Rhoda Maxwell and Gladys Nieman to act. I would appreciate having the poem published in The Grizzly Bear, as we are very proud of the interest shown by the children.

EDNA RICHTER.

Woodland, August 14, 1933.

The poem, entitled "Pioneers," by Eunice Quuner, seventh grade pupil of the Bryte, Yolo County, school, follows:

Our Pioneers! Good and great were they,
To make this West of ours.
They did not come in the month of May;
They did not choose the brightest way.
They took this land so large and great;
They did not wait—and wait.
Brave in heart and brave in soul,
They marched straight on to this land of gold!
They built their homes and started trade.
Brave men and women, not afraid!
They left this land to you and me,
Now let us try and keep it free.

Large Crowd at Public Installation.

Fullerton—Some three hundred persons attended the public installation of officers of Grace No. 242, conducted by Deputy Irene Eden. Among the number were Past Grand Grace Stoermer and Mms. A. H. Rothaermel, Nellie Cline, Helen Anderson, Lucanna McFadden, Carrie Ford, Mattie Edwards and Lena Aspden, past presidents of the Parlor. A garden effect was created in the hall by the use of baskets of gladioli in pastel tints, combined with potted ferns and a profusion of shasta daisies.

The assisting installing officers, from Los Angeles No. 124, and the new officers of Grace, headed by President Erma Watts, were gowned in white and carried boquets of gardenias. A program arranged by Helen Anderson included numbers by Mrs. James Sutherland, Kate McCullah, Mary Mason and George Forster. To Lena Aspden was presented a past president ring. Concluding the delightful occasion, refreshments were served at tables beautified with carnations, ferns and scabiosis.

Grand President Visits.

Oakland—At a very interesting meeting August 17, Piedmont No. 87 had as guest of honor Grand President Irma W. Laird. Four candidates were initiated, and President Dorothy Hadlen and her assisting officers were congratulated on the efficient manner in which the ritual was exemplified. All in attendance missed the smiling countenance of Past Grand Addie L. Mosher, who has been very seriously ill for a year.

Among the many visitors were Past Grands Dr. Mariana Bertola, who instituted Piedmont during her term as Grand President, Margaret Grote Hill, May C. Boldeman, Evelyn Carlson and Estelle Evans, Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler and Grand Trustee Orinda Giannini. The Parlor will turn out in strong numbers in the Admission Day, September 9, parade at Santa Rosa.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER

WHEREVER SMART WOMEN GATHER, the latest in hats, suits and ensembles will be observed. Satin and velvet are obviously the most popular fabrics this fall, and that is a pleasant surprise to those who love the sheen of these lovely materials. Shirt-waist frocks are new ideas, made in these shiny fabrics. They will be exquisitely tailored, trim and neat, and undoubtedly will win a new popularity. Some very lovely fashions are being seen and many accessory sets of these materials are frankly frivolous, but they are beautiful and quite elegant.

Gloves, scarfs and purses are often sold to go with hats, as a matter of course. One little velvet hat is seen with a stitched fold coming forward to one side. This new idea is used instead of the hat being pulled down over the eyes. When down-in-the-front headgear had narrow brims like visors pulled sharply over the eyes, they would come a bit higher in back. Feathers are sprouting on a large percentage of hats. Black satin dinner hats are slightly dressy, and usually have a curled bunch of feathers perched near the brim. These are worn in the evening. Those cocky, mad, independent crochet hats are still with us. Young girls who hate to look sedate wear these, and feel charmingly absurd.

From all this, it is obvious that whatever is most becoming to you, will be the fashion for you to cultivate. For winter, your choice is endless. It just means, suit yourself. There is need just now of a hat or two to fill the gap between the white hats of summer and the dark hats that the first touch of fall in the air will serve to introduce. The beret type hat of thin black felt or velvet with a jaunty side tip will be one of the most popular with which to start the autumn season.

Bows continue to be a most important feature of this season's styles, which probably accounts for the fact that many women are wearing dark-hued clothes of sheer material during the warm weather, depending upon the fresh looking bows of white pique or organdie to create the effect of coolness. Organdie cuffs are also refreshing. Bows are predicted for the coming autumn season. Large satin ones are being supplemented for those of wash fabrics.

The frantic search for school wardrobes is on. Young girls are picking up pens, pencils and carefully selected clothes to start college life again. True, they need a very special wardrobe, but it is a simple one to put together. Knitted things stand at the head of the class. Nothing better suits the atmosphere, and a good fashion never dies. To date, nothing has been created to overshadow the prominence of knitted clothes. One knit is a bit more tailored than the other.

For town wear, we see the jacquard combination which will find itself very much at home on the campus. There is something classic about it. As the years go by it becomes evident that this very simple sweater suit with round basque neckline is a fashion that young people insist on wholeheartedly. The new licorice brown, eel gray, bright and purplish navy, green, black and color combinations of woolens and precious silk fabrics are exactly duplicated in yarns. Some of the new weaves are masterpieces in design.

Another good school want that you cannot keep down is the suede jacket. Snoop around until you find the new version, which should be in the shops by this time. They have adjustable slide fasteners, shaped like fashionable frogs, which close the jacket at one side. The whole thing fits well. Many sizes are eliminated because you simply jerk the slides a little to the right or left and the jacket will adjust itself to you.

The newest knitted dresses look more like woolens or sheer tweeds, and that is a part of the plan to fool you. If they are of this year's crop they will catch you, so perfectly do they resemble the woolens and tweeds. Of course, they will shine on campuses in the fall, but before that you and I are going to wear them against all sorts of backgrounds.

This is a most acceptable costume for town and traveling by motor. It is a wise woman who realizes the value of trim lines. They minimize her size. The nice thing about these new knits is the new idea of contrasting colors. For instance, a deep red, tobacco brown and grey striped top has a chic mouse-colored taupe skirt with matching crocheted hat, touched off by a red feather.

Luck is with the woman who has a frock she can make over, for fall has promised us satin in combination with other fabrics, and in addition to a continuation of accented shoulders. One of the newest is made from a black crepe, the kind that does not go to pieces with even two seasons' wearing. The top is made of satin, with the looped sleeves tapering from the elbow to the wrist. The sash, of satin, has a fair-sized bow and quite long ends at the left side. A small bow finishes the high, round neckline.

When any new fabric is launched, look for it in dresses and suits and also in accessories. Which brings us to the point: some of the best looking satin, velvet and taffeta gloves, hats and bags go with dresses of these fabrics. With a black evening dress, look for the new coral beads. Incidentally, with the advent of satin, pearls assume a new significance again. Black, a favorite color for years, is stronger than ever.

Cocktail-hour dresses with long or short tunic tops are important, besides adding a new fashion interest. A two-piece arrangement is a handy one. It allows one to make several costumes from the first foundation. A white lace top would be charming with a black lace skirt. Black and white are tremendously smart again.

Some delightful new coats are being displayed as harbingers of the early fall. They continue to show the broad shoulder effect. A model has huge winglike flaps at the shoulder, which adds a fashionable touch to an otherwise simple garment. While the rough fabrics promise to hold their own in the new fall styles, the smooth-textured materials will be used extensively for very smart and expensive coats.

PACK TRAINS

A winding file of mules
In slow deliberate climb
Up mountain-side
Has played a part in history
That will abide.

Upon each mule was lashed
Four hundred pounds of freight.
An ominous load!
Yet with true fortitude they climbed
The perilous road.

And eager hungry men
Buried in mining camps
Did love this sight—
That weary train of laden mules
Brought them delight.

These trails are roads today
The mules are motor trucks
Dependable.
For transportation has progressed
Man's miracle!

But in the trackless past
Are forms of shadowy trains
That used to be—
Up long, long paths that some can see
In memory.

Capital City's Birthday—Sacramento City reached its ninety-fourth milestone August 12. On that day, in 1839, Captain John Sutter landed at the mouth of the American River and established a settlement designated New Helvetia. It grew, and later became known as Sacramento. Sutter began the construction of his fort in 1841, and it was completed in 1844.

"School Zones Are as Safe as You Make Them," is the September slogan of the California Public Safety Committee in its campaign to lessen the constantly increasing auto death-toll.

SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO'S NATIVE SONS AND Native Daughters, meeting weekly in joint committee for some time, have completed arrangements for their participation in the celebration at Santa Rosa, September 8, 9 and 10, of Admission Day, the eighty-third anniversary of California's admission to statehood, September 9, 1850. And they will, as usual, be no small contributing factor to the success of the Golden State's birthday festivities in old Sonoma County, where the American California had its beginning, with the raising of the Bear Flag, June 14, 1846.

The joint committee is officered by Hubert J. Caveney, chairman; Charles H. Spengemann, vice-chairman; Harold J. Regan, secretary; L. A. Werner, treasurer. Chairmen of the several Admission Day subcommittees include Herbert De la Rosa, accommodations; Frank Biedermann, parade; Charles H. Spengemann, arrangements; Joseph J. McShane, observance; Al Lobree, publicity; Jack Smith, reception; Jesse H. Miller, finance; Mrs. Lulu Porter, costumes.

Sixteen San Francisco Parlors will have "open house" at Santa Rosa in the Elks Building, the afternoon and evening of September 9. Details have been arranged by a committee composed of Charles H. Spengemann (chairman), Harry Romick, Charles Wolters, Harold J. Regan, Paul Coniff, Albert Vlautin and Nicolas Murphy. Guests will be looked after by a reception committee which includes Jack Smith (chairman), William Bryce, George J. Leahy, Eugene Herzog, Fred Kane, Gus E. Ritter, George Kendall, Helen Cunningham, Louise Sullivan, Gulda Minton, Elise Barth, Evelyn Nopper, Marie Thieubaut, Ursula Lawless, Lea Christern, Claire Bohman, Julia Chicazola, Milton Lawlor, Thomas Dillon and Edward Wren.

FIRST N.D. OFFICIAL VISIT.

The honor of receiving the first official visit in San Francisco from Grand President Irma Laird was accorded Castro Parlor No. 178 N.D.G.W., which showed appreciation by giving a reception perfect in every detail. A delicious dinner preceded the meeting, attended by over 400 members of the Order, including Founder Lily Reichling-Dyer, Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler, Grand Marshal Anna Thuesen, Grand Trustees Alice Lane and Orinda Giannini, Grand Outside Sentinel Alice Oldham, Past Grand Presidents Dr. Marianna Bertola, Dr. Eva Rasmussen, Evelyn Carlson and Emma Foley, four supervising deputies and twenty-seven district deputies.

A feature of the opening ceremonies was the escort of honor, eight young women bearing flower-decked staffs, which they raised to form an arch under which the Grand President was escorted to her station. The exemplification of the ritual was without flaw, each officer being letter perfect, and five young girls were initiated. The N.D.G.W. Glee Club was a feature of the entertainment. Gifts were presented the Grand President, Grand Trustee Lane and Deputy Agnes Curry, and the meeting closed with an inspiring and interesting address by Mrs. Laird. Members and friends then repaired to the banquethall and were served with dainty refreshments. Deft hands had turned the place into a bower of beauty, the pretty little favors, the flowers, the candles set upon pedestals and the ornamental table decorations, all in pastel colors, being most effective. Grand Trustee Lane was chairman and Cora Stobing her assistant for the affair.

SUCCESSFUL MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

San Francisco Parlor No. 49 N.S.G.W. is conducting a most successful membership drive under the leadership of one of its youngest members, Frank Marini, who has been treasurer for exactly fifty years! He proposed as a first step that the Parlor remove its place of meeting to that part of the city where most of its members have always resided, to the North Beach district, which embraces the old San Francisco founded by Governor Figueroa. This change was made June 8. Then things began to hum. At the meeting June 22 fourteen candidates were initiated. Twenty-three applications were presented, and exactly twenty-two of them were brought in by that young fellow, Frank Marini. Since then, seventeen additional candidates have been initiated, and sixteen of them Marini's finds.

The change of hall to the real neighborhood of the Parlor's membership has increased attendance at the meetings of over 100 percent. The new officers were installed July 27, Alfred Watts becoming president. A banquet followed the ceremonies. Moral: "Keep in touch with your members, and remember that the OLD BOYS are still YOUNG FELLOWS!"—R.P.T.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS NEWS PARAGRAPHS.

Mary Waters (Las Lomas Parlor No. 72) and Harriet Cate (Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185) were hostesses at the Sunday breakfast at the N.D.G.W. Home August 13. The chief speaker, Congresswoman Florence Kahn, related doings in Washington and answered several questions pertaining to national affairs. The program consisted of musical selections by the Native Daughter Glee Club, Kathryn Kay and C. Ray Cate. Among the seventy in attendance were Past Grands Dr. Mariana Bertola, Evelyn Carlson and Margaret Hill, Grand Trustees Orinda Gianini and Alice Lane. Twenty members from Las Lomas took occasion to celebrate the birthday anniversary of Mary Waters.

Orinda Parlor No. 56 held a reception in honor of Grand Trustee Orinda Gunther-Giannini, and the guests assembled represented a goodly number of local Parlors, and included the parents of Mrs. Giannini. President Marie McGrath extended a welcome, and remarks were made by the honor-guest, Grand Trustee Alice M. Lane, Past Grands Stella Finkeldey and Emma G. Foley, and Deputy Mae E. Waring. Vocal selections were rendered by President Alyce R. Gendotti (Fairfax Parlor No. 225). Dancing was a feature of the entertainment. Grand Trustee Giannini was the recipient of many gifts from personal friends and the Parlor.

NATIVE SONS NEWS PARAGRAPHS.

Stanford Parlor No. 76 has an Admission Day "booster" meeting September 5. Dave McCarthy will be general chairman, and Frank Biedermann the irrigation engineer. For the Santa Rosa doings, the Parlor will be quartered at Aqua Caliente. A hike August 20 was in charge of Chas. Roberts, and Frank Morris was chairman of the August 29 whist party. John J. Mazza lectured on "Tramping in the High Sierra" August 15, and initiation was held August 22.

Officers of Sequoia Parlor No. 160 have been installed, with Frank Sullivan as president. With Dr. Wm. Vizzard as master of ceremonies, an elegant repast followed the ceremonies.

John S. Ramsay of Castro Parlor No. 232 has been appointed a member of the State Board of Pharmacy.

GOLD IS KING

Edward Pollock

My friends, and Pioneers, once more to you
My thanks, good wishes, and respects are due;
The circling years, that glide in joy or pain,
But bind us closer in their lengthening chain,
Enclosed more firmly, as we all draw nigh
The grateful solitude where all shall die.
'Tis well this way to notice, as they pass,
The fading moments in reflection's glass,—
To think what friends have fell, what foes have fled,
And, only grieving for the gallant dead,
Rejoice so many yet in firm array
Remain to fight the battle of the day.
For as in war a strong battalion falls,
Man after man, before beleaguered walls,
The faithful warriors close the ranks, and still Maintain the combat with determined will,
So we should gather nearer day by day,
And cling the closer as we pass away.
With your good leave, again in earnest rhyme
Your bard would show the spirit of the time.
Half hopeful and half sad must be the strain
Which he shall sing, and sing, perhaps, in vain!

Our youngest statesman, and our future sage
When time has soothed acridity with age,
As harsh and stringent juices of the vine
By years are mellowed into generous wine,
Has lately told us, in his regal way,
Who o'er the land omnipotent hath sway,
What hand with his the royal sceptre sways
Above the masses of these latter days,
What monarch reigns despotic and supreme
In all the realms of life's delusive dream.
Thus hath he said, and echoing nations ring
With, 'tis not cotton, it is Gold is King.

So, long ago, on Syrian plains, there came
A voice of thunder from a haze of flame,
Commanding to His presence him who made
Egyptian priests before their shrines afraid;
Whose strong right hand had made his people free.
Upheld by Aaron's arm and God's decree.
Long days of weary waiting chilled the throng
Whose feet had sought the promised land so long;
Impatient to their priest—to Aaron—cries
From all the wayworn wanderers arise,
"Go, Aaron, make us gods to go before,
For this man Moses we shall see no more."
The priestly man to their appeals gave way,—
For priests their congregation must obey;
The golden treasures that the pilgrims stole
He seeks, he gathers, he dissolves the whole,
And from the crucible on their behalf
Comes out the miracle,—a Golden Calf!
From the low mound he waves his sacred rod,
And cries to Israel's hosts, "Behold, your God."

But from the splintered cliffs of lone Sinai,
Where sulphurous clouds had long obscured the day,
There came, with downcast eyes, but stately pace,
The man who met Jehovah face to face;
Where on the granite summit topped with snow,
While lightnings veiled his splendor from below,
The lines were graven and the words were said
By Him, the Lord, to rule the world He made;
And holy anger filled the prophet's eyes,
A wrath divine succeeding his surprise.
With sacred fury from his hands were thrown
And crashed in dust the consecrated stone;
Struck by his arm, the golden idol fell,
Consigned to fire,—premonitor of hell;
Reduced to ashes, to the saddened wave
The remnant of idolatry he gave;
While all the people shrank before his nod,
To Israel's hosts he said, "Behold, your God!"

Yes, Gold is King, and vices he controls;
King of all sordid and ignoble souls;
Strong to destroy, but powerless to save,
Impotent, save for pleasure and a grave.
But not one generous heart can Gold seduce
To bend its energies to evil use
Can Gold buy love? I know you blush with shame
That dross should mingle with that sacred name,
Gold may be King in clouded walks by night,
In lawless passions and impure delight,
But the fond heart, the tearful eye, the cheek
That waits the kisses that it fain would seek
The rapturous tender pulses of that love
Which shuns the blessed in the realms above,
Can these be bought? can these by wealth be made,
Like gold or cotton, articles of trade?
Wealth win one heart throb from the chaste and true?
O lovely ladies, I appeal to you.

And there are mothers, sisters, daughters, wives,
Who hold their honor as they hold their lives,
Whose firm affections are not bought and sold,
Whose last and least idea would be of Gold
Thank God, not few are they; in mass they stand,
The health, the wealth, the glory of our land
Behold the matron, who through want and woes
Still lulls her family in sweet repose,
Relieves the opening soul of griefs and cares,
Her children all the jewels that she wears.
Can wealth buy such? The priceless gem may be Without a price, my friends, consigned to thee.
And deem its radiance brighter than the day.
Oh, prize it, gaze on its unsullied ray,
'Tis a rich pearl in every good man's eye,
That all the gold of Ophir could not buy.

Can Gold buy friendship? Service, Gold may bring,
And o'er such purchased service Gold is King;
But the strong arm, free heart, and liberal thought
Of noble natures never can be bought.
O stainless charity, immortal faith,
Soother of life, and conqueror of death.
Your places, vacant, Gold cannot supply;
Your priceless services no gold can buy.

Gold is not King: 'tis Virtue that controls
The tides that ebb or swell in noble souls.
The faithless lawyer, statesman, priest, or spy,
Lost to all shame, cupidity may buy;
But there are millions, strong in truth divine,
Who scorn the yellow Monarch of the Mine,
Who shield the State, and calmly tell the world
This land shall flourish while her flag's unfurled,—
Not hirelings, but our unbought volunteers:
In the first ranks I greet you, Pioneers.

(This poem was delivered before the Society of California Pioneers, San Francisco, Admission Day, September 9, 1858. The thoughts expressed therein, three-quarters of a century back, are most pertinent today, for worship of King Gold unquestionably accounts for the devastating ills sorely afflicting this Nation.—Editor.)

ALAMEDA COUNTY DAUGHTERS WILL BE AT SANTA ROSA IN FORCE.

Albany (Alameda County)—Elaborate plans are being formed by the various Native Daughter Parlors throughout Alameda County to do their part in making the parade to be held September 9 in Santa Rosa a most colorful one. Many beautiful floats and snappy drill teams are being entered in the line of march, with large marching units to swell the ranks.

Much interest is being shown by the large attendance of Native Daughters at the joint committee meeting held with the Native Sons every Monday evening. Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler of Aloha Parlor No. 106 and the supervising deputy of Alameda County, Dora Brayton of Bahia Vista Parlor No. 167, are among the active workers for the Native Daughters. Miss Martha Watson of Aloha Parlor is co-chairman, working with Allen Sunkler of Athens Parlor No. 195 N.S.G.W.—R.L.T.

TRI-COUNTIES N.D.G.W. PARLORS DISTRICT MEET AT SALINAS.

Hollister (San Benito County)—The six Native Daughter Parlors of Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito Counties will hold their annual district meeting at Salinas, Saturday evening, September 23, the session opening with dinner at 6:45. Arrangements are in charge of Supervising Deputy Rose Rhyner of Aleli Parlor No. 102 (Salinas).

The theme of the evening will be "California Romance." The program, which will be participated in by every Parlor of the district, will be broadcast by "radio station N.D.G.W." Current events in each of the six Parlors will be announced, and brief talks of interest to the membership will be interspersed with musical numbers appropriate to the theme of the evening.—B.A.B.

AID TO SMALL-SCALE GOLD MINERS.

As an aid to the small-scale placer miners and others interested in the placer-gold resources of the streams of California North, the State Mines Division has issued a new map on which the principal rivers and creeks from which gold was produced in 1932 are indicated and named.

The map covers the area from a line through San Jose, Santa Clara County, to the Oregon State boundary. It is for sale at offices of the mines division in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento and Redding at twenty cents a copy; by mail, twenty-five cents.

In Memoriam

MARY FRENCH MITCHELL

To the Officers and Members of Manzanita Parlor No. 29 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to prepare a testimonial of love and respect to the memory of our departed sister, Mary French Mitchell, beg to submit the following:

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has called to her eternal reward our beloved and most fraternal sister, and whereas, we feel the place made vacant by her absence and miss her cheery smile; be it

Resolved, That Manzanita Parlor No. 29 N.D.G.W. bows to the will of our Heavenly Father in love, and with the confidence that our sister whose earthly birthday is today, on today she enters her happier home in Heaven to live in joy and peace and in greater opportunities for usefulness. For, as Longfellow has beautifully said:

"There is no death.
What seems so is transition
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian
Whose portals we call death
In that great cloister's stillness and seclusion
By guardian angels led
Safe from temptation, safe from sin's pollution—
She lives—whom we call dead."

Be it further resolved, That through these lines we extend to her bereaved relatives our sincere sympathy in their loss, and also our appreciation of the noble life of our truly pioneer sister; and be it further resolved, that a copy of this memorial be spread upon our minutes, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

ANNIE F. CONLIN,
LOUISE WALES,
VINITA A. JONES,
Committee.

Grass Valley, August 11, 1933.

EDWIN P. HODGES.

To the Officers and Members of Plymouth Parlor No. 48 N.S.G.W.—Divine Wisdom has seen fit to transfer to the Heavenly Parlor on High our well beloved brother, Edwin P. Hodges, past president and trustee of this Parlor. Brother Hodges was one of our most active members and in his daily life he exhibited those qualities which make a man a good husband and father, a good neighbor and a good citizen, and which we like to think typify the true spirit of a Native Son. With those of us who had the privilege of working with him, the memory of his unselfish devotion to the interests of our Parlor and the purposes of our Order will remain as an inspiration, undimmed through the passing years.

However, we believe it to be fitting and proper that some permanent and public expression be made of the sentiments of the members of this Parlor, therefore, be it Resolved, That a copy of this statement be sent to his bereaved family as evidence of our sincere sympathy for them; that, in testimony of our sense of loss, our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days; that this statement be spread in full upon the minutes of the Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

THOS. D. DAVIS,
B. L. CRAIN,
M. N. POOL,
Committee.

Plymouth, August 21, 1933.

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

ADMISSION DAY, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, will be fittingly observed at an affair, sponsored by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, to be held at the Breakfast Club, 3213 Riverside drive. The general public are cordially invited to join in this recognition of the state's eighty-third birthday anniversary, where genuine old California hospitality will be dispensed. A small admission fee of twenty-five cents will be charged adults; children under 12 years free. Tickets may be secured from the secretary of any Native Son or Native Daughter Parlor.

The festivities will begin in the afternoon, with a family basket supper from 5 to 7 o'clock. Bring your own food, but coffee will be supplied. Then will follow a two-hour entertainment program, the varied talent being supplied through the courtesy of the several Parlors. Los Angeles No. 45 N.S.G.W. will present Roger Johnson in musical saw selections; Los Angeles No. 124 N.D.G.W. a California fiesta scene participated in by Dolores Malin, Marvel Thomas, Leonie Clos, Jeanne Clos, Marie Walsh, Henrietta DeGoede, Bertha Murray, Ascension Simon, Frances Ontiveros, Mercedes Caldwell, Ann Schiebusch, Erlinda Sepulveda, Edna Trombatore, Anita Santo and Lucy Jordan; Californiana No. 247 N.D.G.W., Marybelle Chapman and Alphonse B. Fages in vocal selections, and the Lick sisters in a dance duo; Verdugo No. 240 N.D.G.W., Dorothy Courtney in a vocal number; Santa Monica Bay No. 245 N.D.G.W., a violin soloist; University No. 272 N.S.G.W., specialty dance numbers. The program contributions from the other Parlors had not been announced at the time The Grizzly Bear went to press.

Frank G. Tyrrell, one of California's most gifted orators, will deliver a fifteen-minute talk on "The Significance of Admission Day." This will be followed by dancing until midnight, music being furnished by Burt Bair's Native Son orchestra.

Arrangements for the local Admission Day festival are in charge of a joint committee made up of representatives from all the Los Angeles County Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters. Mrs. Gertrude Allen (Los Angeles No. 124 N.D.G.W.) is the general chairman and Mrs. Dorothy Ravn (Verdugo No. 240 N.D.G.W.) the secretary. Miss Flora Holy is in charge of the ticket distribution, Mrs. Ella Steinbeck is attending to the publicity, and Mrs. Olinda Kerby is arranging the program.

"For California's birthday party," says Chairman Allen, "the Natives and their friends will have use of the entire grounds of the Breakfast Club, as well as the pavilion and the arena. A cleaner, shadier and more delightful setting would be hard to find. The family supper will be served under the spreading trees of the Garden of Friendship. Put aside your work and worries, and join with us. You will be glad you came!"

N.S.G.W. CENTRAL MEMBERSHIP ACTIVITIES—NEXT BIG SHOW SEP. 29

The Native Sons Luncheon Club—inaugurated by the N.S.G.W. Central Membership Committee, Henry G. Bodkin (Hollywood No. 196) chairman—has become very popular, and the attendance is on the increase. The club meets every Friday at 12:15 (noon) at the Rosslyn Hotel, Fifth and Main streets, and adjourns promptly at 1:15 p.m. This is not a talkfest, but a happy-go-lucky get-together for the Order's good and the individual's pleasure.

A different chairman presides each week. Those serving in that capacity during August were Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz (Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267), Lindsay K. Dickey (Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267), Charles Straube (Ramona Parlor No. 109) and Harry T. Honn (Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267). "All members of the Order are urged to come to these luncheons," says Secretary Walter Odemar, "and participate in true Native Son friendship."

The first of the six monthly big shows provided by the united Los Angeles County Parlors under the auspices of the Central Membership Committee, to aid in the membership drive outlined by Grand President Justice Emmet Seawell, was held at the meetingplace of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, August 31. Lindsay K. Dickey was the program director, and Burrel D. Neighbours was the speaker.

The second of the united Parlors' shows will be held Friday night, September 29, at the meetingplace of Ramona Parlor No. 109, Patriotic Hall, 1816 South Figueroa. Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin will be the sole speaker. Every Native Son should rally to these shows, which feature the highest class talent, and especially should he bring at least one eligible as a guest.

FINAL SYMPHONIES FEATURES.

Saturday, September 2, brings the final ballet production of the "symphonies under the stars" season at the Hollywood Bowl. This colorful feature was devised by Francesca Braggiotti, noted Boston dance creator, who will appear personally. It is "In the Vienna Woods," to the muisc of the Strauss waltz.

The final concert of the year will be the twilight program at 5:15 o'clock of Sunday, September 3. Bernardino Molinari will present an orchestral group including Respighi's "Pines of Rome," and Margaretha Lohmann will appear as piano soloist.

FRIENDS GUESTS OF FRIENDS.

The beautiful South Pasadena home of Herman C. Lichtenberger, Past Grand President N.S.G.W., and wife—La Casa de los Amigos, "The Home of the Friends,"—was the scene of another most delightful gathering August 5. A feast, fit for the gods, of barbecued bullshead and all the accompaniments, was served, and there was a flow of reminiscences as well as an interesting discussion of current events. Friendship was the keynote of the occasion, and hospitality reigned supreme. Guests included:

George Beebe, Henry Carter, Isidore B. Dockweiler, Percy A. Eisen, R. E. Barry, Louis A. Duni, Frank A. Duggan, Clarence M. Hunt, Harry J. Lelande, Lon S. McCoy, John T. Newell, Louis P. Russill, Charles Straube, J. Deacon Taggart, Charles R. Thomas, Robert A. Todd,

PAYROLLS

COME TO SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles County, twenty-seventh industrially in 1919; sixth today! 1927, a "highlight" year in this growth. Two more great tire companies, Goodrich and Firestone, enter the territory. Goodyear and Samson (now U. S. Rubber), local pioneers in the industry, are already firmly intrenched. The production of these four factories makes this community the Akron of the West. Their product has a normal yearly value of $50,000,000. Their presence has attracted many allied industries; has given an added impetus to domestic and foreign trade. 1927, a "highlight" year for California Bank, too. Five branch offices added. Deposits up another $4,000,000. The capital stock increased from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. Since 1903, through good times and bad, California Bank has stood ready to lend money to sound business enterprises. It will continue to do so.

SPLENDID REPORTS OF EXCELLENT WORK.

At the August 4 meeting of the N.S.G.W. and N.D.G.W. Homeless Children Committee, splendid reports of the excellent work being done were given. Officers were elected as follows: Irving Baxter (Ramona N.S.), chairman; Grace J. Norton (Los Angeles N.D.), vice-chairman; Annie L. Adair (Los Angeles N.D.), recording secretary; John Gower (Sepulveda N.S.), financial secretary; Flora M. Holy (Los Angeles N.D.), treasurer.

An account of the recent benefit ball showed a profit of $400.25. In July, the joint committee turned into the Central Committee $1,000, and a very appreciative letter from General Secretary Mary E. Brusie was read, thanking the local Natives for their liberal contribution to the great work.

WILL FEATURE HISTORY.

Commemorating the day, August 2, 1769, on which Los Angeles was named by Portola's men, Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. had a luncheon at the Women Athletic Club. The event inaugurated a year to be dedicated to the recognition of dates of historical interest, as well as the revival of customs typical of early California. Among the speakers were Past Grand Grace S. Stoermer, Miss Mary Foy, President Inez Sitton, Past Presidents Ora M. Evans, Mary B. Noerenberg and Gertrude Tuttle, Mms. Isabel Lopez-Fages, Charles Decker and Dexter Monroe.

September 4 the Parlor will celebrate the founding of Los Angeles with an informal gathering at the Plaza, wherein is placed the statue of Felipe de Neve, founder of the city, which was donated to Los Angeles by Californiana. Later, dinner and entertainment will be enjoyed in Olvera street. Mrs. Amos O. Evans is in charge of arrangements.

When the Parlor opens September 12 after the summer recess, President Inez Sitton and the chairmen of her many committees will outline a program which, it is hoped, will create an interest making for a most prosperous year. She plans to carry on the projects which have gained statewide recognition for Californiana, and the program includes a history class, talks on historical subjects and other interesting features.

EIGHT INITIATED.

University Parlor No. 272 N.S.G.W. initiated a class of eight candidates, the ritual being splendidly exemplified by the officers of Ramona Parlor No. 109, headed by President Charles Straube. Among the initiates was City Councilman Earl C. Gay. Among the many speakers were Burrel D. Neighbours, who stressed the necessity of membership activity, Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, District Deputy Walter Baskerville, Leo V. Youngworth, Deputy Grand President Walter Odemar, City Councilman John W. Baumgartner, Howard Babb and Ben Hiss. Refreshments were served.

The Parlor sponsored a sports dance August 19; snappy music was provided. University hopes to have its baseball team at Santa Rosa for Admission Day.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

CALIFORNIA IS IN A DEPLORABLE condition, financially, thanks to the Legislature, which lacked the guts to do that which its members know full well should have been done for the state's best interest, and the executive branch of the government which, it appears, knows nothing of economy and is concerned about tomorrow (next year) rather than today. As a result of the juggling of the legislative and the executive branches of the State Government, a sales tax has been added to the burden of the already near-pauperized majority,—to provide funds for the uninterrupted continuation of the spending orgy—but the income tax, that would have come from the well-able-to-pay minority, has been vetoed by the Governor. Because of these tax measures, the State Government is being severely criticised. Here are some of the comments:

"THE GOVERNOR'S BUM TAX JOKES—When Governor Rolph poses as a friend of economy and low taxation and when he assumes the they-made-me-do-it excuse for signing sales tax and and at the same time refuses to sign the income tax he is indulging in that sport known as drawing the long bow. If the Governor wants to prove that he had a mandate from the public let him dare withdraw his opposition to a popular vote on the law and get his thunderous 'No' from the voters. He had a clear, definite, unmistakable mandate from agriculture and labor to sign the income tax and his gay disregard of that is equaled only by his gay disregard of so many other obligations and duties. Had the Governor said he had a mandate from certain rich supporters not to sign the income tax bill it would have sounded much more convincing. This paper certainly tried to be definite and clear in expressing its opinion about this issue. It suggested that the Riley plan should be voted for only on the stipulation that legislators be instructed to stand staunchly for an income tax if a sales tax were proposed. In other words if a disproportionate burden were laid on folk of moderate means by a sales tax then lay a disproportionate tax on the rich taxdodgers by means of an income tax and thus make every one feel the weight of government and have a pocketbook interest in economy. Governor Rolph now qualifies as a comedian by claiming that the income tax would fall hardest on people of moderate income. That ought to be good for a hollow laugh in which the Governor's own echo would be the only voice to join. Meanwhile the Governor ought to heed seriously—if he has the capacity to be serious—the warning that if a property tax is laid to make up for the deficiencies of the vetoed income tax there may be a tax strike in this state. If the Governor imagines that is an idle threat he should get some one to read to him about Machado of Cuba. All over this state people are paying their sales tax pennies with quips about 'another penny for Rolph's salary,' 'a new silk hat for the Governor,' and similar cracks. These jokes are mirthless. The fact that the Governor refused to cut his own salary and income of approximately $50,000 a year is not a good joke to tax-weighted citizens."—Pacific Rural Press.

"THE SALES TAX IRRITANT AND ITS FUTURE—The average person now paying the sales tax in California would do so gladly if convinced that the money was to be wisely and economically applied to the needs of this great State, but the spectacle of extravagance, waste, experiment and incompetency which politicians have given us in recent years is poor incentive to dig up extra pennies. The psychological effect of pay, pay, pay, taxes, taxes, taxes, we believe, will have the effect of slowing up business in California which had begun to revive and should not be retarded at this critical moment. However, the Legislature had time to think about all of this and if our representatives at Sacramento have blundered, it will result in there being few old faces at the State Capitol next term. Voters will see to that. Most tax wails before the sales tax era were heard only twice a year and from a limited class—real estate owners who bore most of the tax load. After wheezing in April, taxpayers forgot about it until November, when they groaned again. With the advent of the sales tax, an augmented chorus of all-year-round groans should make the sales tax symphony a howling success. . . . Glad-handed politicians, from the Governor to Assemblyman, will find that the old blarney stuff will not win votes so readily in the future. The people will demand a strict accounting of their business at Sacramento, and ability in public servants to administer their affairs when a crisis looms. That is the test of statesmanship—a test which precious few have met. If such public servants cannot be found and elected, the states will revamp their form of government. Floundering representatives and irresponsible governors such as some of the states, including California, have put up with in recent years is a challenge to popular government."—Sonoma Index Tribune.

"ROLPH TRUE TO FORM—Governor Rolph announced yesterday the veto of the income tax bill passed by the recent Legislature as a part of the balanced tax plan under the Riley-Stewart amendment and thereby threatened flippantly to throw away from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 of much needed revenue. Rolph lives in a past era. He has never awakened to find out what the New Deal means. He still believes in the sanctity and untouchableness of wealth and has utter scorn for the spirit of the hour which is concerned with the underdog. The income tax would take from those who have. The sales tax takes from those least able to pay. If anyone is to be 'soaked,' and all tax-payers are soaked these days, it should be those who can stand the strain of governmental costs. . . . Rolph should not be too severely condemned for his action in this matter. No man should be twitted for being blind and deaf. Loss of sight and hearing is a great misfortune to the persons deprived of them, but it is a disaster to a great state when its executive is totally blind to governmental conditions and deaf to the advice of those in touch with popular sentiment."—Sacramento Union.

"NRA SHOULD NOT BE BLAMED FOR STATE SALES TAX—We have with us Mr. Sales Tax. Have you met the gentleman? You may not realize it, but he is the 'skeleton at the feast'—if feast there be—in every home in California, and he's likely to prove a regular guest for at least two years to come, perhaps more, for there are eighteen months left of the run of your present state administration. . . . No excuses, evasions or alleged exigencies can change the situation as it exists as of today. To blame the Legislature is of no avail. The Legislature did not 'blow in' the state's money. It did not by any 'presto change' necromancy cause a balance in cash of about twenty-nine millions of dollars, . . . to dissolve in air. That Legislature assembled leaderless. . . . All was chaos; out of it all came only chaotic pieces of hardly understandable matter, vague as to sensible and executable details, confusing and, in fact, gravely questionable as to constitutional legality. . . . Unfortunately the great program of the national administration came into active promulgation simultaneously with this California state administration sales tax matter. A lot of citizens are so mixed up that they are blaming the Roosevelt administration; blaming the NRA (National Recovery Act), destined and intended to help us all up on our feet, for this local, state, sales tax measure now in force, instead of placing the blame where it belongs, which is on the shoulders of our state administration, which is the sole responsible agent in this matter. Do not make this mistake. NRA has nothing whatever to do with the sales tax."—Weekly Calistogan.

"EFFICIENCY COULD HAVE MADE NEW STATE SALES TAX LOWER—All this blame being placed upon Governor Rolph for the new sales tax is by no means unjustified or misplaced. True, the Governor did nothing more than sign the bill when it was handed him by the Legislature. It was not in his budget-balancing plan and possibly he does not even approve of it. But, nevertheless, his administration of State affairs is in no small measure responsible for the necessity of the sales tax. Conditions over which the Governor has no control, including the transfer of school support from the counties to the State, were an important factor in the adoption of this tax, but there are millions of dollars involved in the unbalanced budget which could have been eliminated had there been efficient government at Sacramento. A sales tax would probably have been necessary regardless of Governor Rolph, but if he had furnished the State with the right type of administration the tax could have been much less and need not have been the highest, except one, in the entire country. So when purchasers make 'wisecracks' about the pennies going to Governor Rolph they are not missing the mark so very far at that. . . . California's rate is higher than 18 of the other 19 states using a sales tax."—Livermore Herald.

In Remembrance of
THE CALIFORNIA PIONEERS

Admission Day, 1933

Captioned "California Says Hands Off Exclusion Law," an excellent editorial, to which we add a fervent "Amen!," appeared in "The Sacramento Bee" of August 24. Keep ever in mind the warning therein—which has so frequently been sounded in The Grizzly Bear—"necessity for the friends of the present law ever to be on the alert." Here's the editorial, in full:

"A small leak in the dyke is all that is often necessary to bring about its ultimate destruction. A parallel case is the movement now under way so to modify the Asiatic Exclusion Act of 1924 as to give preferential treatment to the Japanese. That act now stands as a staunch barrier to the influx here of all who are ineligible to American citizenship, of those who can never hope to be assimilated into the dominant American racial strain. But begin to tinker with it, make a break in the barrier, however small, and the whole structure will become endangered.

"Hence the necessity for the friends of the present law ever to be on the alert against the insidious propaganda now being widely circulated to secure congressional modification in 1934. Inspiring and directing this propaganda is a curious and strange alliance—returned missionaries, inoculated with the Japanese viewpoint; professional pacifists, ever ready to sacrifice the interests and welfare of their own country to cure some imagined slight to a foreign nation; selfish shipping interests which vision a profit in the return of conditions such as prevailed before 1924; and a coterie of idealists so-called whom President Theodore Roosevelt once fittingly described as the 'lunatic fringe' of the body politic. These are all parroting the idea that somehow Japan has suffered a permanent insult from the present law; and that until proper amends are made the friendly relations between the two countries are endangered.

"That is clotted nonsense. The exclusion issue is today practically as dead an issue in Tokio as it is in Washington. The only thing that keeps it alive is the misguided and misdirected agitation of a group of Californians who ought to know better, men and women who should be thinking first of the welfare and security of their own state instead of advocating a policy so detrimental to her. But even if there were substantial support for their fears, the sacrifice they call upon the country to make is too great to be given favorable consideration—namely the sacrifice of the principle that America herself must be the sole and exclusive judge of those whom she believes should be welcomed to her shores.

"The simple fact is that the doors of immigration cannot be opened to the Japanese without at the same time giving a like concession to every other Asiatic people. So far as California is concerned, the overwhelming majority of her people feel strongly that it would have been far better and wiser had the act of 1924 been applied a quarter of a century earlier. And they are in no mood to tolerate the undoing of the good job finally accomplished in that year. Keep the dyke intact."

The dailies these days are overcrowded with racketeer dope, the propaganda, however, being directed at the gun-toting variety, the kidnaper, etc. No reference whatever is made to the source and sustenance of the racketeer "profession"—political racketeering, the nation's chief menace; the direct cause of the depression which has exacted and continues to exact a stupendous toll from honest, lawabiding citizens.

The political racketeers in national, state, county, city and municipal governments must be cleaned out of public office before there can be any appreciable relief from existant conditions—confiscatory taxation, etc., and The People, themselves, must do the job. California and its several counties and cities are today suffering more from political racketeering than from any other cause. NOW is the time for elimination of the cause!

The NRA, so advices from the National Capital state, is making satisfactory progress and several thousand people have been given employment through its operation. It was designed for the nation's good, and every loyal American will wholeheartedly, to the extreme of his or her ability, co-operate with President Franklin Roosevelt in putting the blue eagle over the top.

This good news comes from the California State Historical Association through Director Owen C. Coy: "We are glad to report that through the efforts of loyal friends of California history, the legislative measure which proposed to abolish the State Historical Association was held in an Assembly committee. The association is continuing to operate as a part of the State Department of Education. We take this opportunity to express our appreciation of the assistance which has made this continuance possible. We count on your live co-operation to keep the association active and useful."

Here's heartening news from Sacramento: The State Board of Equalization has warned county, municipal and district officials that the Riley-Stewart Tax Act limitations affecting tax rates for 1933-34 will be strictly enforced, and that increases exceeding the legal 5 percent may invalidate the entire levy.

THINK THIS OVER!

The order of Native Sons of the Golden West is, we believe, with the exception of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, the only organization that limits membership exclusively to NATIVE-BORN AMERICANS.

Knowing the serious conditions in this country today, this fact alone should impel every Native Son of California to immediately SEEK AFFILIATION with that American-born and American-operated institution, the man-power and wealth of which are pledged to the protection of American institutions in times of peace as well as in times of war.

So, Mr. Citizen Taxpayer, scan your tax bill, and if the law has been violated follow the course suggested by the State Equalization Board which, in a public statement, cautions: "Local taxpayers were guaranteed $38,000,000 a year in propetry tax relief by the shifting of school costs to the State, now being defrayed through the sales tax. The new tax rates must actually embody that relief and any attempt to dissipate it will not be tolerated. If any municipality, county or district exceeds by more than 5 percent the total expenditures of the preceding year such overage is invalid and cannot be legally levied.

"Any taxpayer can resist the excess levy and invalidate the entire amount. The taxpayer should tender only the amount legally due and demand a receipt in full. If refused a receipt he can then mandamus the tax collector to issue it, which will effect the cancellation of all overage." It probably would be a blessing if the tax levies were, for one reason or another, invalidated and the mis-governing agencies left without funds to operate. That would, indeed, hasten the end of political racketeering.

This statement, from the Los Angeles Realty Board, appearing in a written protest filed with the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors against a tax increase should have the earnest consideration of taxpaying citizens, hordes of them bankrupt: "We desire to call your attention to the item set up in the salary fund for 1933-34, amounting to $17,430,716.44, or an increase of $1,340,332.44 over the salary item for 1932-33."

Commenting on this, the "Los Angeles Times" said editorially: "Los Angeles County was well served, most people will agree, in 1925-26. In that fiscal year it spent $7,317,064 for salaries, which went to 7,909 employees. Since 1926 the population has increased about 32 percent; but the proposed budget calls for a salary list of $17,430,000 to go to 13,836 employees -an increase of 140 percent. How such an increase can be justified has not yet been explained. . . . Every plus of public expenditure is balanced by a minus of private expenditure." The increase can, but will not, be explained. To do so would necessitate exposure of the "inner circle." The condition can, if The People so will, be rectified by the recall.

Michimasa Soyeshima of Japan is reported in press dispatches to have stated in Ottawa: "The growth of the United States Navy is becoming a menace to the peace of the world. The fact that her Atlantic fleet is in the Pacific Ocean is causing ill-feeling in Japan. If the United States would remove her navy and repeal the Japanese Exclusion Act it would do much to disarm the minds of the people of Japan."

The tactics of Japan ARE a constant menace to world peace. If the United States Government would operate in accord with the wishes of Japan, everything would be "jake"—for the "rising sun."

A check by the Associated Press, made public August 2, revealed that with the exception of Los Angeles County, there was a marked downturn in relief activities. San Francisco and Alameda County had each cut off approximately 20,000 from the needy list. In Los Angeles County, 11,965 cases were added to the needy rolls during July, and it was officially reported that 485,000, about one-fourth of that county's population, are dependent on Los Angeles for aid. These statements and figures should, also, be given careful consideration by Los Angeles County taxpayers. Why the substantial decrease in San Francisco and Oakland, and the substantial increase in Los Angeles? Why are such a large percentage of that county's residents on the public relief rolls?

In this connection, the State Motor Vehicle Department reported, August 19, 150,000 persons came into California via motor routes the first six months of 1933. And the same day the State Emergency Relief Commission appealed for prompt Federal aid to care for "California's vast army of 100,000 indigent transients." Now, Los Angeles population promoters contend, in their voluminous propaganda, that most of the arriving tourists land in Los Angeles. They are attracted there by enticing advertisements spread broadcast throughout the nation, for the cost of which the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors annually appropriates thousands of dollars of tax funds. It would appear, therefore, that Los Angeles County, through its generous (with taxpayers' money) Board of Supervisors, spends oodles of money to attract "vast armies," and then provides additional thousands for their relief.

More power to the Minute Men! They should continue, and broaden, their activities, and should be re inforced by a REAL newspaper!

The State Motor Vehicle Department is authority for the statement that arrests for drunk auto driving have increased some 10 percent in number since the legalization of beer. There will be no lessening, but a continuous increase, of the number, legal or illegal booze, until such time as the courts impartially and promptly enforce the law, which now is not the custom.

The tuna packers of California South are emitting an awful howl because of Japan's "serious inroads into the American tuna market" via the dumping process, a method of commercial warfare extensively practiced by the "nice little yellow boys."

Little sympathy should be wasted on the California tuna packers, for they have steadfastly opposed any and every effort to curb the Jap menace in this state. Let them get a bellyful of the Japs and then, perhaps, they will join forces with those who have the welfare of California at heart and in mind always. It really might be a good idea to purchase the Jap rather than the California tuna, for the most effective way to reach a white-Jap is through the pocketbook.

"Today is the day to live your life; tomorrow's too far away. Today is the day for your honest strife; nor dream of the yesterday."—Ian Emde.

Motor Fees Divided—The California Motor Vehicle Department apportioned August 11 equally between the state highways division and the several counties of the state $4,758,944 in motor registration fees received the first six months of 1933. The apportionment was based on a total registration of 1,929,515 vehicles. Los Angeles County, having 789,691 of the total, received the lion's share of the divvy, $973,844.

Bar Meet—The annual convention of the State Bar of California will be held at Del Monte, Monterey County, September 21-23.

Nurserymen's Meet—The annual convention of the California Nurserymen's Association will be held September 18-20 at Oakland, Alameda County.

TALENT SOUGHT.

The Paramount Studios are seeking new talent, both adult and juvenile. Says General Director Harry King: "I believe that if many youngsters and talented people are given the opportunity and proper tests, and if directors would take a little more of their valuable time to determine the applicant's possibilities, we would have ample star material right here in Los Angeles for musical and dramatic stage and screen productions." Lon Murray, head of Paramount, is the husband of Mrs. Mary Louise Larkin Murray, a member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

TO AID THE BLUE EAGLE AND hasten the return of substantial prosperity to this land of plenty, the right-thinking, right-living citizens of the nation, who constitute a vast majority of the populace, should unite on and put into immediate effect a N.R.A.—NO RACKETEERS ALLOWED—code for all of the several subdivisions of government. The outstanding need of the country is to relegate to oblivion the racketeers in public office—the leeches who are taking the life-blood of the nation by impoverishing business and small-home owners through excessive taxation. Clear out the political racketeers, and others of that "profession," including the gangsters, will speedily abandon their "calling," for they will have "no friends at court." A vast reduction in over-excessive taxation is as necessary to assure the return of prosperity as are employment and higher prices.

California is paying dearly for political racketeering, in state, county, city and township governments. That condition accounts for bankrupting tax bills; for keeping on the payrolls, at the expense of taxpayers, unnecessary and incompetent employes; for failure to reduce the salaries of over-paid public employes and, in not a few instances, actually increasing salaries; for the creation of special assessment districts and thereby overloading with tax burdens the suffering property owner; for purchasing property at excessive prices, etc., ad infinitum. The costs of government, stupendous and far beyond all honestly necessary requirements, are due, mainly, to political racketeers, in and out of public office. Small in numbers and otherwise, they have, nevertheless, made the majority their slaves.

Are the people of this state desirous of contributing their all for the wellbeing of these political racketeers? Do they choose to remain in slavery? If not, they will proceed to oust the racketeers from public office. NOW IS THE APPOINTED TIME!

The efforts of a "select" few Californians to induce the Federal Congress to so amend the Immigration Act as to enable more Japs to come here via a quota is being extensively publicized in portions of the state press previously silent on the subject, and many publicity seekers are taking advantage of the get-before-the-public opportunity. The quota for Japs, another menace, has been advocated by certain interests for several years, as readers of The Grizzly Bear well know. No new facts have been expounded, but many heretofore presented in these columns have been, and are being, re-published. For lo, these many, many years, The Grizzly Bear has been keeping its readers well informed on the numerous phases of Japan's "peaceful invasion" schemes. Why the sudden awakening of certain dailies? Have they, at last, scented the "rising sun" danger? Whatever the cause, they are welcome in the campaign to keep California White.

President Robert Gordon Sproule of the University of California is one of the clique seeking to open the immigration gates to Japs. "Why should the president of the University of California feel it incumbent upon him," queries the "Bee" of Sacramento, "to rush into print with respect to a public matter so foreign to his own duties and responsibilities? Or is the academic atmosphere of the campus so tainted with a half-baked internationalism that even the heads thereof cannot escape its insidious influence?"

The "Literary Digest" says, "California, that traditional champion of exclusion, has already reversed its attitude." A falsehood, deliberate, or due to ignorance of the situation in this state! The Orders of Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, the California Grange, the California Labor Federation, the American Legion of California, the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco and numerous other organizations, as well as the California State Legislature, are on record as absolutely opposed to the quota for Japs, and will forcefully oppose any and every attempt to amend the Immigration Act. "It is exceedingly apparent," says the "Post Inquirer" of Oakland, "that California has not reversed its attitude on the subject of Oriental immigration, and has no intention of doing so—no more so, probably, than Japan, which rigidly excludes as immigrants the people of China, Korea and other Oriental countries."

Another red-hot war is on in Los Angeles, generaled by the Minute Men and the District Attorney. It started at a September 20 meeting of the governmental affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce when, according to published reports, the latter accused the former of being the "greatest allies of the underworld," and said, "if this Chamber of Commerce wants to help fight gangsterism in the community, let it suppress the Junior Chamber and its Minute Men." Minute Man Kegley called the district attorney a liar, and said, "You have listened to the district attorney's dastardly falsehoods long enough without contravention. . . . Los Angeles is infested with political crooks and gangsters in public office."

The following day, at the Del Monte meeting of the State Bar, President Guy Richards Crump, also of the Angel City, charged that politics had, in many instances, made courts a disgrace. "Too many incompetent and inferior men have been appointed to the bench through political pull," he declared. In criticism of superior court judges he said, "Some are good, some are bad; some are learned in the law, some are ignorant of its elementary principles; some are industrious, others indolent; some are guided strictly by the law and the dictates of conscience, a few are otherwise controlled. The trial bench in California, at least in the larger counties, is rapidly deteriorating. In Los Angeles County, for instance, we are getting no better fast."

President Franklin Roosevelt has decided to maintain the Civilian Conservation Corps for another six months. Excellent conclusion, for various reasons! Plans for winter C.C.C. activities in California call for a continuation of truck trail and fire break construction, camp ground clearing and erosion control activities in the southland, and for the building of an 800-mile fire break bordering the national forests in central and northern California.

Urging a code on domestic relations to "minimize the divorce debauch," Rev. Walter A. Maier, Lutheran theologian, made this pertinent suggestion in the course of an address: "If American industry has seen fit to adopt codes for the co-ordination and regulation of American manufacturing and business, there is a hundred times more reason for a code on domestic relations. . . . We have a veritable crazy quilt of divorce laws in our country. A man may be a reputable husband in one state and a bigamist in another. American divorce markets are competing in the sort of cut-throat competition that our industrial codes are seeking to eliminate from the business world."

The Grizzly Bear of last month called attention to the warning sent by the State Board of Equalization to county, municipal and district officials that the Riley-Stewart Tax Act limitations affecting 1933-34 tax rates will be strictly enforced, and that increases exceeding the legal 5 percent may invalidate the entire levy. The oversigned directed an inquiry to Chairman Richard E. Collins of the board, as to whether the lawful 5-percent increase applies to the tax rate or the tax bill, and received this reply:

"In response to your letter of September 6th concerning the 5 percent expenditure limitation imposed on county, municipal, and district expenditures, I wish to state that this limitation applies to the total expenditures of said governmental units, and not to the tax rate. In other words, the Board does not limit tax rates as such, but the limitation applies to the expenditure which, of course, determines the tax rate. For example, if a county, municipality, or school district expended $100,000 last year (1932-33) it would be allowed to expend under the new law $105,000 for the coming year, 1933-34.

"This expenditure limitation was embodied in our new tax law so that the benefits to the taxpayers in the way of reducing their property tax would not be off-set by increased expenditures. I know the plan will work very successfully and will prove a great assistance in relieving real and personal property in this State which we know to be at present greatly over-burdened with taxation."

So, taxpayers, scan the 1933-34 tax bills carefully and see if they are, as they should be, appreciably less than for 1932-33. The shifting of the school costs from counties to state should lower materially the coming tax bills. In some counties and cities, however, where political racketeers govern, the taxpayers will not benefit to any great extent from the shift. Any way, Mr. Taxpayer, you can lawfully refuse to pay this year's tax bill if it exceeds the 5-percent increase limitation.

"Something To Think About" headed this editorial in the "Star" of Saint Helena, Napa County:

"One of our heavily taxed farmers, whose tax bill every year is in three figures, was in a store in St. Helena the other day shopping when two Mexican children entered the store and purchased a package of smoking tobacco of a popular brand. Inquiry brought out the fact that the children were two of a family of ten and that county aid is being extended as the head of the family contends that he is out of employment most of the time. . . . It seems to us that when foreigners or others come into this or any other county and have no visible means of support or do not want to work, they should not be supported by local taxpayers in whole or in part but given their walking papers even to the extent of causing the deportation of those from other lands."

Concurring in the opinion, it is suggested that the course proposed be followed in Los Angeles and other southern counties, so that thousands of near-bankrupt resident citizens may be relieved of the alien-charity tax burden and that employment, now given preferably to Mexis, Japs, Filipinos, etc., may go to deserving Whites.

An A.P. dispatch from Tokio, September 2, says: "The Japanese government today rejected a proposal of an American missionary to establish a branch Christian church at Ogaki in Gifu Prefecture. The rejection was based on the grounds that friction between Christianity and Japan's national faith, Shintoism, might cause disturbances at a time when national feeling is running high."

And yet, we permit the Japs to establish their churches in this country, and allow them numerous other privileges that no alien would be given in Japan. How foolish of us, not the Japs, as time will prove!

According to Dr. T. I. Storer, University California zoology professor, muskrats colonized on a farm in Mud Lake, Fall River Valley, Shasta County, threaten the entire levee system of the Sacramento River and its tributaries. If they should get past the barriers which obstruct their access to the lower Pit River, it would be but a comparatively short time before they would be working in the Sacramento River valley.

Says George H. Dern, Federal Secretary of State:

"There is in effect today a foreign army estimated at 400,000—more than three times the size of the Regular Army of the United States—that is operating in this country, invading the domestic tranquility of our people, invading the security of our homes, and confiscating our property. I say it is a foreign army because it is foreign to everything that is really American—foreign to American principles and institutions—foreign to American ideals and traditions. I refer, of course, to the army of 400,000 men and women in the United States who make their living mostly through crime, constituting what may very appropriately be called 'The Scarlet Army of the United States.' . . . Racketeers are levying tribute, in one form or another, on our business and industry that adds to the cost of the necessities of life of every family in the land. . . . However, I believe with General Pershing that once the American citizen is aroused to the danger that menaces his country in this terrible crime situation, he will gloriously redeem his indifference of the past."

Hasten, Most High, the arousing!

There's a lot of meat for studious thought in this editorial, captioned "But the Bill Must Be Paid," from the "Times" of Los Angeles:

"Advances to California from R.F.C. and Federal public-works funds have reached the surprising total of $370,000,000 and if the allocations to Hoover Dam are counted, as they should be, the total reaches $497,000,000. Among the additional appropriations sought for the State and its subdivisions is a list of preferred projects totaling $421,000,000, and if these are granted the State will have obtained more than $918,000,000 of Federal funds under the R.F.C. and public-works acts. Most of the loans for 'self-liquidating' projects have come to this State, some 61 percent of the total granted. . . . The interest that will have to be paid on money already advanced or definitely allocated amounts to more than $20,000,000 a year and amortization on a fifty-year basis is another $10,000,000 a year. Getting half a billion dollars for more or less needed projects seems to be very helpful, but temporary well-being at the cost of a permanently high tax and interest burden may be purchased too dearly. The total is already very large and it may be time to stop, look and listen before venturing much deeper into debt."

The State Board of Health recommends that subsidies for tubercular patients in sanitoria be limited to American citizens, and presents these excellent reasons why that should be done: "The situation at Weimar [Placer County, where one-quarter of the patients are aliens] is typical of similar institutions over the state, except that in southern counties, with their heavy Mexican population, the percentage of aliens is even greater. The bed capacities, in some instances, are so crowded with aliens that American citizens suffering with tuberculosis cannot be accommodated and are forced to accept places on waiting lists. . . . The state should show preference to its own citizens in paying out these funds." Not only should California first care for unfortunate citizens, but it should deport the alien public charges.

The Stockton "Independent" observes, "Before adjournment, both houses of the California Legislature passed a resolution to 'study' the feasibility of holding a session of the Legislature annually instead of biennially." It suggests to the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco that the club "start a study of a simpler and more economical and efficient form of state government, with a council of state rather than a bicameral legislature, and submit the new state charter to the people for their approval. So long as the present unwieldy, inefficient and scandalously costly system remains there is little hope for lower taxes and better government."

From the records of State Legislature of the past, not excepting the one recently terminated, it is concluded the interests of both the state and the taxpayers would be best conserved and protected if the Legislature met every quarter-century.

Here's cheerful news: Chief J. B. Kincer of the United States Weather Bureau's climate division says there is little probability that the trend toward warmer winters will be broken by exceptionally severe weather this year. He observes, however, that householders should not have too optimistic hopes for small heating bills, as there is always the possibility of a "maverick" cold winter drifting into the grouping of warm winters.

"The California booster," says "Tax Facts," "calls California 'God's country.' God would probably deny the allegation if He could see the condition we are in now. . . . This is our boasted civilization!"

"Hindus captured in car now facing deportation," headed a news article in a city daily. The Hindus, not the car, should be deported.

James J. Garrigan, Santa Barbara County sanitation inspector, suggests the City of Lompoc reduce or eliminate its Mexican and Filipino housing and sanitation problems by effecting a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan with which to build dwellings for alien occupancy. The R.F.C. should make no loan for any such purpose. Lompoc should oust the Mexis and Filipinos, also the Japs. The alien evil should be completely obliterated, not encouraged, as proposed, or shifted.

MY GARDEN IN THE RAIN

(MRS. IMOGENE SAILOR.)

Sweet Rose, blushing Rose, droops her head in meek surrender
To the dashing, silvery rain.
But the Lily, white and haughty, fends him off In sweet disdain.

Poinsettia, gay and flaunting, lures him on with vivid smiles,
Then she shakes her red, red head.
But the Poppy, silly Poppy, tightly folds her yellow cloak
And hies herself to bed.

Mignonette, lovely, fragrant, sentimental Mignonette,
Smiles at him with gestures shy;
But the Rain, the careless Rain, glances at her not at all
As he swiftly passes by.

Thus, my garden in the rain.
The pepper tree, with glistening, emerald branches
Guards the silent fountain underneath.
The gold-fish dart like fiery arrows through the pool,
To elude the pelting drops.
But see—a rift of blue among the hurrying clouds!
A glint of gold, a gentle breeze;
And my flowers, laughing, swaying, sparkling,
Glow in beauty 'neath the sun.

NATIVE SONS HISTORY HONORS GO TO CALIFORNIA SOUTH STUDENTS.

Berkeley (Alameda County)—The two fellowships in Pacific Coast History supported by the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West have been awarded to Vernon Tate of Los Angeles and Theodore E. Treutlein of San Diego. The appointments were made on nominations by Prof. Herbert E. Bolton, chairman of the history department of the University of California. Tate was graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1929, and Treutlein took his bachelor's degree from the San Diego State Teachers College the same year.

These fellowships are awarded annually to the students in the graduate division who give the greatest promise in research in the field of California history.

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

TWO MILD STORMS PASSED OVER California during October 1883, dropping .97 of an inch of rain, and making the total rainfall of the season to date 1.89 inches. A cyclone cutting a swath eighty feet wide passed over the farm of George Perley, near Stockton, San Joaquin County, October 6. A barn was carried nearly a mile and wrecked.

An earthquake at 6 a.m. of October 22 caused a bluff 80 feet high and 200 feet long near Merced Falls to cave into the Merced River, which became dammed and cut a new channel. San Mateo, Santa Clara and adjacent counties had a severe shake at 9:10 a.m. of October 30.

A brilliant meteor passed over Nevada County the night of October 13. At 8 p.m. of October 31 a meteor passed over Santa Barbara County and illuminated the sky almost as bright as at noonday.

The State Grange had its annual session at San Jose, Santa Clara County, October 5. Among the many resolutions passed was one calling for an extra session of the Legislature to change the tax laws.

Exports of California grain this month totaled 1,825,000 centals, valued at $3,094,400.

George West and C. A. Wetmore of the Rincon del Diablo Rancho, San Diego County, were preparing to plant 2,000 acres in vines and 1,000 acres in olive trees.

The Natoma Vineyard Company was preparing to plant near Folsom, Sacramento County, 1,000 acres of grapevines during the winter.

Napa Valley had sixty-three wine cellars, and wine grapes were selling there for $30 a ton. The valley's wine yield this season was estimated at 2,150,000 gallons.

The Sherman ranch of 480 acres near Marysville, Yuba County, was unsalable at $5 an acre before hydraulic mining was enjoined. This month it was sold for $15 an acre.

J. P. Whitney, Rocklin, Placer County, rancher, imported from England a carload of Derbyshires, largest and strongest horses in the world. All were two-year-olds, and the stallions weighed 2,500 pounds.

One of the most prolific seasons of horse racing that the turfites of California had ever enjoyed terminated October 27.

The Siskiyou County Fair opened at Yreka October 3, the Los Angeles County Fair at Los Angeles City October 8, the Santa Barbara County Fair at Santa Barbara City and the Lake County Fair at Lakeport October 12, and the Monterey County Fair at Salinas October 20. Race meets began at Gilroy, Santa Clara County, October 8, at Santa Cruz City October 18, and at San Francisco October 20.

There was an exodus of Chinamen during the month. More than 2,000 left California on steamships China-bound. Most of them had round-trip tickets, so were expected to return after celebrating the Chinese New Year in January.

A cable 22,000 feet long, 4 inches in circumference and weighing 130 tons, made in San Francisco for the McAllister street railway, was hauled up market street October 26 by a team of twenty-four horses.

Eastern investors bought the Belmont quartz mine in Placer County, paying $65,000 for the property.

With another dividend payment this month, the Sierra Buttes Mine in Sierra County brought its total to $1,400,300.

During October the United States Mint at San Francisco coined 128,000 twenty-dollar gold pieces and 400,000 silver dollars.

A licensed faro bank in Sacramento City began paying off losses in silver, much to the discomfiture of winners.

A Yuba County judge granted, on complaint of a Butte Creek farmer, a perpetual injunction against the Spring Valley Hydraulic Mining Company at Cherokee, Butte County, operating the state's largest hydraulic mine.

October 16 the Sierra Valley stage was again robbed, evidently by the same old highwayman, near the same old place, about twelve miles from Truckee, Nevada County. The express box, containing $300, was taken and the three passengers were relieved of $20. The robber, subsequently caught in Reno, Nevada State, was tried, convicted and sent to the penitentiary for twenty years.

Blasting operations along the Sacramento River north of Redding, Shasta County, made in building the railroad to Oregon State by the C. & O. Railway, were causing salmon to quit their run up that stream.

San Francisco's streets were being illuminated by 5,500 gas lights, at a cost of 12½ cents a light per night.

Fire at Susanville, Lassen County, October 1 destroyed the grandstand and stables at the fair grounds. The Capital City Brewery at Sacramento burned October 7 with a $20,000 loss. Redding, Shasta County, had a $30,000 conflagration October 18.

San Pedro, Los Angeles County, was partially burned October 8, and Henry Meyers was cremated. A disastrous blaze October 16 at Grass Valley, Nevada County, swept "Battle Row," causing a $20,000 loss.

Horace Adams, who came to California from New Hampshire in 1850 and was prominent in the state's business and political circles, died of yellow fever October 3 at Mazatlan, Mexico, where he had gone on a business trip.

Elizabeth, wife of C. P. Huntington, one of the Central Pacific Railway builders, died October 5 at New York City. She was one of the Pioneer Women who came to California in 1849 and for many years resided in Sacramento City.

Dr. J. F. Montgomery, who came to California in 1850, died at Sacramento City October 8 at the age of 70.

Alex. Forbes, one of Marin County's largest land owners, died October 26 at San Rafael. He came to California in 1850.

James McClatchy, one of the founders of the "Sacramento Bee" in 1857 and the father of C. K., nationally known editor, and V. S. McClatchy, died at Paraiso Springs, Monterey County, October 26. He came to California via Mexico with the father of the compiler [of The Grizzly Bear's "Fifty Years Ago" notes, Thomas R. Jones,] in 1849.

William White, aged 16, was killed while horseback riding near Hollister, San Benito County, October 17. October 1 his father passed away, leaving a widow and eight children.

Hiram W. Doty, mining near Yreka, Siskiyou County, October 3 sat under an 800-pound boulder that fell and broke his neck.

Huram Miller, who killed Dr. Glenn, was tried and found guilty by a Colusa County jury, and sentenced to prison for life.

A Southern Pacific freight train went through a bridge over the Santa Ana River near Colton, San Bernardino County, October 31 and dropped eighteen cars fifteen feet. Two tramps were killed.

A gang of tramps found side tracked at Lancaster, Los Angeles County, a carload of wine, and were drunk on champagne for several days. A special train was run from Los Angeles City with a posse of officers to suppress them.

A Chinaman being called to the witness chair in a Nevada City, Nevada County, court was asked by the judge what kind of an oath would be the most binding on him to tell the truth. He answered: "Me no care. You clack him saucer, you kill him rooster, you blow out him match, you smell him book—allee same me."

J. P. Stanley of Hopland, Mendocino County, found about fifty petrified pumpkins in a ravine near there. They had been washed from a farmer's garden by a freshet and lodged in the ravine that flowed water impregnated with calcareous matter.

Thomas P. Turpen, a well-to-do farmer near Igo, Shasta County, had two noses, one roman and the other pug. The only trouble he had from them was when he caught a cold; that necessitated his blowing four nostrils. His good looks were marred. He came to California from Ohio in 1850.

Abel Jenkins of San Rafael, Marin County, went quail hunting October 5. He shot at a flock and saw one drop in a clump of bushes. This he entered and saw a man stooping, apparently in an effort to pick up the bird, and yelled at him. Getting no response, he went up to him, and discovered a clothed skeleton hanging by a rope from the limb of a tree. The dead man had committed suicide.

It took three Italian fishermen over two hours of tugging to haul in their seine October 19 near Angel Island, in San Francisco Bay. They had caught a big fish, ten feet long and four feet wide, with a mouth twelve inches across. It was called an elephant fish, and was the first to be caught in California waters. It is common in the Mediterranean Sea. This one must have come around Cape Horn or the Cape of Good Hope to get to San Francisco.

Frank Cooper, a lad living in Tehama, Tehama County, had trained two captured sturgeons to pull a boat eighteen feet long up and down the river. He fastened cords to their tails and to the boat for them to pull by. To their heads he attached stout twine, used as reins to guide them. He gave three of his schoolmates rides in the boat every afternoon. The sturgeon steeds were kept in a floating cage made of slats anchored near the river bank.

Homeless Children

A WORTHWHILE NON-SECTARIAN ENDEAVOR SPONSORED AND SUPPORTED BY THE ORDERS OF NATIVE SONS AND NATIVE DAUGHTERS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

OCTOBER 8 WILL BE CHILDREN'S Day, the time set apart by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West and the founder, Fairfax H. Wheelan, for remembering the homeless children. Now that Admission Day in California has been fittingly observed, it is time to think of the Homeless Children and their care and training, in order that they may, in turn, remember their whole duty to California.

There are children needing homes, there are over one thousand families wanting and needing children, and there are trained workers willing, with the help of the members of the Orders, to get the two together. But it cannot be done creditably without funds!

It is not surprising that many Parlors were not able to help as generously as usual during the past three years. Every charity has felt the effects of hard times. Even now, when hope and expectancy and encouragement are in the air, one cannot look for entirely adequate returns from a still-bewildered public.

The real burden of the Homeless Children work rests upon each individual. If every worker will do his utmost to help, even if results are less favorable than he anticipated, and not depend upon a few hard-working, conscientious members to carry the load, the children's work will continue satisfactorily. If the present needs of the work which the Orders have been proud of for twenty-three years could be broadcast over the radio every night of every week, the efficacy of repetition would no doubt be effective, and if 4,400 families could also broadcast the happiness which has come to each home's trinity of occupants,—father, mother and child—there would be such a chorus of gratitude that every Native Son and Native Daughter would say: "I'll do my FULL part this year! Our charity MUST be supported!"

A word of appreciation must here be recorded for all of the Native Daughter Parlors that have met the expense of the milk supply for their adopted children promptly and regularly. Orinda 56, Gabriel 139, Dolores 169, Twin Peaks 185, Supervisor and Deputy Grand Presidents of San Francisco County, Piedmont 87, Aloha 106, Ursula 1, Manzanita 29, Amapola 80, Copa de Ora 105, Reina del Mar 126, El Carmelo 181, Morada 199, Grand Parlor Home Committee, Presidents Assembly, Supervisor and Deputy Grand Presidents of San Mateo County, La Junta 203, Phoebe A. Hearst 214, El Tejon 239, Verdugo 240, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Hunt have all paid in full for the six weeks' care of a baby. Presidio 148, Portola 172, Castro 178 (twins), La Junta 203 and Phoebe A. Hearst 214 have adopted a second baby. Treasurer Willa Wilson of Phoebe A. Hearst Parlor writes: "It seems to me that having the baby's picture and working for his milk has given our members more interest in the work of the Homeless Children."

TRY IT

If for something you itch
And wish you was rich,
And could have things
Your neighbors to match,
Just put on a smile
And try humping awhile—
You will win if
You get out and scratch!

Enormous Debt—California, with a property assessed valuation of approximately $6,000,000,000, is weighted with a total bonded indebtedness of $1,009,514,327. The bond-debt of the cities alone is $449,560,928.

FEW PRESENT-DAY CALIFORNIANS ever heard of Henry H. Byrne, District Attorney of the City and County of San Francisco for terms from 1851 to 1854 and 1868 to 1871. No more ardent advocate of justice, no more talented lawyer ever practiced anywhere than this now almost unknown and forgotten man. It is said that only four men in pioneer days ever had more deference, respect and heartfelt sorrow shown at their graves than Byrne. Those exceptions were James King of William, David C. Broderick, General E. D. Baker and Thomas Starr King.

He was known as the most popular man who ever lived in pioneer California. Unquestionably he was much more popular than Baker, whose brilliancy seemed to awe the general public and kept him from having the common touch. Byrne possessed brilliancy and the common touch. Therefore his popularity was greatly enhanced. Many old reviewers believed that only two men ever excelled him in the flow of oratory—Edward D. Baker and Thomas Fitch.

The trial of Mrs. Fair, charged with the murder of the prominent lawyer, A. P. Crittendon, consumed a month in presentment of evidence. At this trial, one of the best jury addresses ever made by an American prosecutor was delivered by Henry H. Byrne. In these days of loose jury duty and indifference to law and order; in these days when criminals are clothed with a halo of leniency, and righteousness is driven from the temple of justice, it is refreshing to look back upon this fearless prosecutor and hear him as he stood before that jury and, in part, said,

"The juror's oath is not a by-play. It is held most solemn by all Christian communities where the jury system prevails. It is that chain which binds the integrity of man to the throne of eternal justice. And when that chain is broken, conscience swings from its moorings, and society is again in a condition to resolve itself back into the original chaos out of which it was carved."

This admonition to juries is as trite today, and more necessary, than it was in that long-forgotten courtroom scene. It should be read and reread by every potential juror and every American citizen who believes in the domination of justice over criminality.

"Walk in, gentlemen! Walk in! And take a Thousand Drinks!" This hospitable greeting by General Green, a Senator from Sacramento, who had rented a room adjoining the Senate Chamber, earned for the first California Legislature in the year 1850 at San Jose, the reputation of being the "Legislature of a Thousand Drinks." The generous Senator little thought when he engaged in convivial drinking with his legislative friends that he would put such a wet stamp upon that Legislature and becloud its sober members with the reputation of being inebriates.

The first Legislature of the State of California convened at San Jose, December 16, 1849. On December 20, four days later, Peter H. Burnett was inaugurated first Governor of California. John C. Fremont and William M. Gwin were elected United States Senators.

How ironic! Fremont, now little honored by the Native Sons for a military breach committed in 1847, was held in high esteem by the Pioneers, whose opinions were not prompted by prejudice or misunderstanding and who could view the man close up rather than in retrospective.

Some of the great orators of pioneer days were Matthew P. Deady, George Gordon, Matthew Hall McAllister, Joseph W. Winans, Edward J. C. Kewen, Eugene Casserly, Hugh Campbell Murray, Henry M. Gray, Tod Robinson, Joseph R. McConnell, Nathaniel Bennett, Edmund Randolph, Hugh P. Gallagher, Henry Huntly Haight, Stephen J. Field, James A. McDougall, Tom Fitch, Edward D. Baker and Henry H. Byrne. Nearly all of the above men of brilliant minds are buried in San Francisco. Their graves, as well as their living worth, are unknown to the present Californian.

The following address of J. B. Crockett at the Democratic State Convention at San Francisco in June of 1867 nominated Henry Huntly Haight, a lawyer, later elected in September of 1869 over his Republican opponent, Geo. C. Gorham:

"I rise to perform an agreeable duty in presenting for the high office of Governor of the State of California a gentleman whom I have known from his boyhood. I have known him twenty years; and I can say, truthfully say, that I have never known a truer, better, more upright man than he whose name I will present to the convention; a man distinguished for his integrity and perfect uprightness of character, in all the walks of life; a man against whom not a word of reproach has been or is likely to be uttered; a man in whose keeping the honor and welfare of the State will be perfectly safe; a man who will be a party to no scheme, who will not yield to any corrupt influences, and who will administer the government of the State with ability, in the spirit of the constitution and the laws; and who will do honor to the office and to the party which elects him. And I do now nominate for the office of Governor of California, Henry H. Haight."

This nomination is not presented for its superior forensic strength, but rather to recall the incident of nomination, the names of the nominator and the nominee as men who did their part when California was young. There is little difference in that speech than in dozens of others made before or since; it simply marks the enthusiasm of one man for the character and ability of his friend.

An interesting event occurred at Sacramento on September 8, 1933, when Howard Driggs, chairman of the Oregon Trail Marker Association, visited the Capital City and, on Second Street between J and K at the western terminal of the Pony Express, placed a bronze marker depicting an express rider galloping at full speed. The occasion was almost glorified by the presence of William Campbell of Stockton. At the age of 92 years, he is the only known surviving Pony Express rider. He spoke intelligently and well of his experiences in riding his 100 mile lap in Wyoming. Strangely, it was not the Indians who gave him his severest test, but the cruel elements which swept with unabated fury against man and beast and obliterated the trail and chilled the stoutest heart. Joseph R. Knowland, Past Grand President N.S.G.W., attended and spoke.

Driggs is an exceptional student of the Oregon Trail history and gave a splendid address. He is an English teacher at New York University and engages in the marking work for no remuneration but to follow his love for years—marking that grand old trail and its subsidiary branches.

The Californian who hasn't read Dana's "Two Years Before The Mast" fails to comprehend the romance and color of early California life. If one has read it, it bears reading and re-reading. This autobiography, written in fascinating style, gives a beautiful picture of California, such as no other book has ever recorded of that romantic period from 1836 to the discovery of gold. Your Historian also recommends "Troupers of the Gold Coast" by Rourke. This is an interesting story of Edwin Booth, Lola Montez, Lotta Crabtree and other histrionic lights of that era.

ADMISSION DAY

MEMBERS OF THE ORDERS OF NATive Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West by the thousands and from every section of the state invaded Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, being attracted by the three-day Admission Day festival arranged by Santa Rosa Parlor No. 28 N.S.G.W. in observance of the eighty-third anniversary of California's admission to statehood. It was a splendid celebration, and if anyone failed to have a good time, the fault was his or her own, for opportunities aplenty, to satisfy the desire and the inclination of any and every one, were abundant and available to all.

The main event of the celebration was the most excellent Admission Day, September 9, parade in which the Native hordes, colorfully uniformed and accompanied by their bands, drum corps and drill teams, glorified their heritage, California. The makeup of the parade was given in detail in The Grizzly Bear for September. It was directed by Gam Hurst and Mrs. Anna Thuesen, Grand Marshals, respectively, of the Native Sons and Native Daughters. Heading the parade were Mrs. Irma Laird, Grand President N.D.G.W., and Justice Emmet Seawell, Grand President N.S.G.W. and a charter member of Santa Rosa Parlor.

Some very attractive floats were in line, too. Those from San Francisco and Alameda County were particularly elaborate works of decorative art. That from San Francisco was a Viking galley, done entirely in greenery and flowers and featuring the N.R.A. blue eagle emblem. That of Alameda County, also of gorgeous flowers, featured the United States of America and the California State (Bear) Flags. Among the many other floats were the Great Seal of State, from Saint Helena; the historic Vallejo Adobe, from Petaluma; the Valley of the Moon, featuring Mission San Francisco de Solano, from Sonoma; the mining days of '49, from Santa Rosa; the Gravenstein apple tree, from Sebastopol; the replica of a stone house built in 1835, from Contra Costa County; the "baby" N.D.G.W. Parlor, from Sacramento; the golden bear, from Napa.

Novel entries in the parade were the keg drum corps of Hydraulic No. 56 (Nevada City) and Quartz No. 58 (Grass Valley) Parlors N.S.G.W., and the clown band of Eden No. 113 (Hayward) Parlor N.S.G.W. The former beat time on nail kegs, and the latter created a lot of merriment both during and following the march. The "walking maypole" of Marinita No. 198 (San Rafael) Parlor N.D.G.W. was new and very attractive, every color of the rainbow being represented. The Natives of San Francisco and Alameda County are deserving of special commendation for their great contributions, in numbers and outstanding features, to the success of the parade. They never fail!

Prize-winning entries of the parade, selected by Colonel E. K. Johnstone and Lieutenant H. E. Jacob, the judges, were announced late in the afternoon from the Sonoma County Court House steps by Chas. A. Koenig, Grand First Vice-president N.S.G.W. Silver cups went to:

Best float—Calistoga Parlor No. 86 N.S.G.W. and Calistoga Parlor No. 145 N.D.G.W., stagecoach, drawn by six white horses.

Best Native Son drum corps without field music—Oakland Parlor No. 50, first; Piedmont Parlor No. 120 (Oakland), second; San Jose Parlor No. 22, third.

Best Native Son drum corps with field music—Napa Parlor No. 62.

Best appearing Native Son marching unit—Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214 (San Francisco).

Best Native Daughter drill team—Dolores Parlor No. 169 (San Francisco), first; Presidio Parlor No. 148 (San Francisco), second; Gabrielle Parlor No. 139 (San Francisco), third.

Best Native Daughter drum corps—Tamelpa Parlor No. 231 (Mill Valley).

Best appearing Native Daughter marching unit—Marinita Parlor No. 198 (San Rafael).

Largest competing unit from greatest distance—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 N.S.G.W. (Santa Monica) drum corps.

Admission Day evening, under the auspices of the San Francisco N.S.G.W. Extension of the Order Committee, a program, arranged by Grand Trustee Charles H. Spengemann, was presented. Chairman Hubert J. Caveney of the committee presided, and introduced the speakers: Chas. A. Koenig, Grand First Vice-president N.S.G.W., who delivered a welcome message; Mrs. Irma Laird, Grand President N.D.G.W., and Justice Emmet Seawell, Grand President N.S.G.W. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss Maria Vogel, her closing selection being "I Love You, California."

Baseball contests attracted large crowds. September 9, teams from University Parlor No. 272 N.S.G.W. (Los Angeles) and Santa Rosa Parlor No. 28 N.S.G.W. contested, the latter winning with a score of 9 to 1. September 10, the hometown (Santa Rosa) boys lost to the team from Castro Parlor No. 232 N.S.G.W. (San Francisco), the score being 6 to 2.

All in all, it was a great celebration of a holiday—Admission Day -which should be respected and observed by every loyal resident of California, regardless of birthplace, for in the history of this glorious Golden State September 9, Admission Day, has a significance equivalent to that of July 4, Independence Day, in the history of the United States of America.—C.M.H.

Native Sons of the Golden West

"EDITOR GRIZZLY BEAR: I FEEL THAT it is proper to say a word to the members of our Order with respect to the celebration of last Admission Day, held at Santa Rosa, under the leadership of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West.

"It has won for both Orders the praise of the entire state. The celebration was held at an opportune time, and it is hailed as a civic triumph. It was the longest line of men and women and the finest display of the unconquerable spirit of Americanism that will be seen in marching form in California during the year 1933. The line was perfect, from the first to the last division. It was inspirational. The example of what our Order has done in re-establishing faith in our people is of inestimable value, not only to the state, but also to the nation. The State of California is proud of its Sons and Daughters, who exemplified the kind of courage which gave to the Union California and to the world the United States of America. From all parts of the state comes the word that the Native Sons and Native Daughters have done their full part by demonstrating in a profound manner their faith in and loyalty to the principles upon which our government is founded.

"We have set a splendid example to all the citizens of the state at an opportune time. We have taken a long stride, and have responded nobly to the call of patriotic duty which is ringing throughout the nation. It was one of the most colorful and picturesque parades, bristling with patriotic sentiment, that was ever held in this state. Much of the credit must be given to the tireless work done by the Extension of the Order bodies of San Francisco and the East Bay districts. Weekly meetings were held, beginning months before the date of celebration. Men and women gave their time and labor unsparingly to the success of the celebration. The attendance upon these meetings grew in numbers at each successive meeting, until the spacious halls became too small to accommodate the increased attendance. The interest grew greater at each meeting, climaxing in the wonderful parade and celebration on September 9th.

"Santa Rosa Parlor and the citizens of the City of Roses devoted themselves unceasingly to the success of the day. Parlors from the far south and north and from the valleys and mountains all had a part in honoring the state in a fitting and stately manner. The Grizzly Bear Magazine, the Parlor bulletins, the local press of Santa Rosa and the metropolitan and interior press cheerfully gave publicity to our program. We are much indebted to the press of the state and to every Parlor of the state for the support which they gave to the celebration of California's natal day. Both the Order of the Native Sons and the Order of the Native Daughters have gained much prestige throughout the state. We can go forth in our work for increased membership with a much better heart and with greater hope for success than we could have gone about our work before our great display of patriotism and good cheer at Santa Rosa.

"Our first great purpose of the year has been accomplished. LET US NOW TURN TO THE GREATER WORK OF INCREASING OUR MEMBERSHIP! By devoting the same energy and enthusiasm to increasing our membership that was exerted in making the celebration a success, we will be richly rewarded by a surprising increase in our ranks. Every Parlor and every member of the Order should feel stimulated and encouraged by the results of the last two months and enter the serious campaign which is now before us with increased enthusiasm. It will require organization and effort to accomplish the results, but they can be accomplished by united effort and co-operation by the membership throughout the state.

"LET US NOW DEVOTE OURSELVES TO THE REMAINING TASK OF THE YEAR OF STRENGTHENING OUR ORDER, BOTH IN NUMBERS AND PRESTIGE. We occupy a splendid position in the favor of the people of our native state.

"EMMET SEAWELL,
"Grand President N.S.G.W.
"San Francisco, September 21, 1933."

Foresight of Pioneers Extolled.

Marysville—September 17 was a red letter day here for the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, the occasion being the dedication of Marysville's $150,000 Federal building and postoffice by the grand officers of the two bodies. Incidentally, the members of the Sacramento Valley Postmasters Association figured, that body being in session here in regular quarterly meeting. With a vast assemblage of Yuba and Sutter Counties residents, the postmasters and their wives witnessed the impressive proceedings —a flag ceremony by the Native Daughters and the placing of the usual plaque by the Native Sons.

The latter ceremony was participated in by Grand President Justice Emmet Seawell, Grand First Vice Chas. A. Koenig, Grand Second Vice Harmon D. Skillin and Grand Secretary John T. Regan. Prior to the ceremony, Grand President Seawell delivered an address extolling the foresight of the forty-eight members of California's First Constitutional Convention, held in Monterey in 1848. He pointed out that the constitution there framed sufficed excellently until 1879, when the Second Constitutional Convention was called. Justice Seawell was followed by Grand Second Vice Skillin, who interpreted the significance of the wording on the plaque used by the Native Sons in the dedication of public buildings: "This Building Dedicated to Truth, Liberty, Toleration, by the Native Sons of the Golden West. September 17, 1933."

During the flag ceremony, and following an address by Grand President Irma Laird of the Native Daughters, Past Grand Esther R. Sullivan impressively related the history of California's flags through the Spanish, Mexican and Bear Flag eras to the present day. This was followed by the dedication of the flag that will float over the new postoffice building by President Anna Sperbeck of Marysville No. 162, who was assisted by a score of that Parlor's members. In both ceremonies the Marysville municipal band ably assisted by playing appropriate airs.

During the session Jefferson D. Wilcoxon, now a Yuba City, Sutter County, resident, was introduced by the master of ceremonies, Peter J. Delay, as the only surviving charter member of Marysville No. 6, organized in 1879. C. F. Parker formally presented the keys of the postoffice building to Postmaster James M. Cremin, who accepted them on behalf of the Federal Government. He was followed by Acting Mayor Leo J. Smith, who accepted the structure on behalf of the people of Marysville. In her address, Grand President Irma Laird attested her faith in the Golden State, built by the Pioneer Fathers and Mothers in the face of almost insurmountable difficulties. The ceremony concluded with a benediction by Rev. Raymond M. Huston; Rev. Jesse R. Rudkin delivered the invocation.

The following Native Daughters, visiting Marysville for the occasion, were introduced at the joint luncheon of the Native Sons and Native Daughters: Past Grands Anna Mixon Armstrong, Dr. Louise Heilbron, Margaret Grote Hill and Alison Watt, and Grand President Laird. Others introduced were Supervising Deputy Celia Gomes and President Anna Sperbeck. Reminiscing members of the local Parlors recalled during the day the list of the city's postmasters through the years since 1852, the date of the founding of Marysville, beginning with Phil W. Keyser, who later became judge of the Superior Court of Yuba and Sutter Counties. The others were Wm. C. Daugherty, Barney Eilerman, J. Fred Eastman, Charles Hapgood, Emma Hapgood, Thomas Farrell, A. S. Smith, J. M. Cremin (first term), John P. Swift, Oscar L. Meek, Thomas Fogarty, Ed Lewis and J. M. Cremin (second term). A dozen places were enumerated as occupied during the years as leased postoffice premises. At the close of the program the new building was opened to the public for inspection.—P.J.D.

INCREASED MEMBERSHIP, of substantial quality, is TODAY'S OUTSTANDING NEED of the Order of Native Sons. COMB THE FIELDS, urges the Grand President, who solicits NOW the co-operation of every Native Son. Bear in mind always, THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR MEMBERSHIP, and rally to the cause.

State's History Not Provincial.

San Diego—San Diego No. 108 had a rousing good meeting September 6, when oldtimers night was featured. Members whose fathers were Pioneers answered the rollcall. President John P. Murphy, Henry U. Emery, Joseph Kelley and Peter Rask perfected the arrangements.

Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer explained the program of marking the oldest commercial highway in the West, between Mission San Diego de Alcala and Ballast Point, Point Loma, and spoke on three historic Point Loma places which were formally marked September 9: where Cabrillo landed in 1542; the site of Fort Guijarros, built in 1800; the site of the old whaling station which was at its peak of activity in 1830. Several members of the Parlor participated in these marking ceremonies and in the evening attended the Admission Day dinner sponsored by the San Diego Historical Society. The main speaker was Dr. Owen C. Coy, director California State Historical Association, whose subject was "California's Admission as a State."

Dr. Coy stressed the importance of California's history, "In no way provincial, but touching the fringes of world history. To study the past, to study history, is to become interested in the problems of the present, is to help one to solve the problems of the present, is to make for better citizenship now. The history of each locality is different. San Diego's story, the story of Los Angeles and that of San Francisco, all are different. And the story of the mining towns in the mountains is altogether different from any of these. The Spanish nomenclature here in the south is one of our great assets and I think we do well to preserve it in all its aspects. The nomenclature of the mining towns also is most interesting and should be preserved." Dr. Coy traced the history of the rise of government in California from the ancient laws of the Indians, through California pueblo life to the first American attempts at self-government, and then the beginnings of the independent state which, September 9, 1850, was admitted as a free state.

Fiftieth Anniversary Observed.

Arcata—In recognition of Admission Day, Arcata No. 20 sponsored a public program at the Plaza September 9. The occasion also marked the Parlor's fiftieth institution anniversary. Honored guests were four surviving charter members of No. 20—James B. Hill, Albert Nelson, Howard Barter and David Wood—and F. E. Herrick, the sole remaining charter member of Humboldt No. 14 (Eureka), who was present at the institution of Arcata in 1883. Len Yocom was master of ceremonies, the Arcata Union high school band rendered selections and E. V. Jeffers favored with vocal solos.

John Lund of Ferndale No. 93 was the speaker of the day. He stressed the importance of California history, not only to Californians but to the entire United States, and paid a splendid tribute to the Pioneers who made the state's illustrious record. Referring to local fascinating history, he described the adventures of the Gregg party, who ate Christmas dinner in 1849 at a spring not far from the northeast corner of the Arcata Plaza. The first store building was erected by Major Murdock in 1850; a hall on the second floor provided a social center for the community. The first stone building was erected by A. Jacoby in 1850. In conclusion, Lund recounted the history of Arcata Parlor.

Flags Presented Museum.

Oroville—In commemoration of the eighty-third anniversary of California's admission to statehood, Argonaut No. 8 September 9 presented United States of America and California State (Bear) Flags to the Butte County Pioneer Memorial Museum. Arrangements for the presentation were made by a committee composed of District Deputy C. R. Macdonald, W. K. Palmer, Earl Ward, Ed Shreve and Robert Strang.

Trustee Charles F. Belding made the presentation on the Parlor's behalf and in the course of his remarks said: "Perhaps no state accepted statehood with more joy than did California on that memorable 9th day of September, 1850, when Congress approved her application for admission. It meant to the people on this far-western shore that their property and lives would be protected by the parent government. Prior to that, great uncertainty existed as to the title to lands, and life itself was precarious." In accepting the flags for the museum association, President Marlton Parker thanked the donor, Argonaut Parlor, and concluded with: "This place is sacred indeed. God bless these flags, God bless this building, and God bless you."

Koenig, Grand Second Vice Harmon D. Skillin, Grand Third Vice J. Hartley Russell, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees Eldred L. Meyer, Charles H. Spengemann, Thomas M. Foley, Jesse H. Approval was given action taken by the District Grand Lodge of Bnai Brith in requesting "President Franklin D. Roosevelt to do all in his power to voice the disapproval of the American people to the unwarranted attacks of the Nazi government upon the Jewish people in Germany."

Grand Trustee Foley brought up the matter of insurance for visiting grand officers and district deputies, and on motion a committee composed of Grand Trustees Miller, Burnett and Foley, and Junior Past Grand Millington was appointed to investigate and report.

J. M. Waterman (Observatory No. 177) advised that a member of that Parlor contemplates preparing a map of California featuring the locations of historical spots marked by the Order, and requested assistance in fixing the locations. A motion prevailed that every assistance be given.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

"TO THE OFFICERS AND MEMBERS of Subordinate Parlors Native Daughters of the Golden West—Dear Sisters: It was four hundred forty-one years ago this month that Columbus and his men sailed out in their frail ships from the eastward and set foot upon the land of the Western Hemisphere. Few events in history have been freighted with greater significance. Forces were set in motion by Almighty God destined to change and to give new direction to man's conception of his world, and to give new direction to his ambitions.

"Mighty though the deeds of Columbus were, back of them was yet a mightier force; and that was his Faith. The Faith to try, the Faith to carry on through storm and calm over an uncharted sea;—a quality that has been instilled and refined within the brave heart and the inspired soul of a man. This Faith, revealed in deed, rises far above the mighty thing it brought to pass.

"The Native Daughters of the Golden West have undertaken an ambitious program. I am of the opinion that our united effort, our combined energies should be directed toward the realization of the dreams and ideals of an earnest, sincere and patriotic womanhood, the perfect instrumentality of service.

"We know our strength in numbers and wealth. We know our proud record of humanitarian endeavor and patriotic practice. We know of the unselfish devotion demanded for successful administration. We appreciate the competitive forces, factors and distractions of modern life.

"We know that we must sell the Native Daughters of the Golden West to those whose names already appear upon the rolls of our membership, before we can carry on to greater heights of achievement.

"Sell the Order to Native Daughters! Astonishing statement—yes. And what does it mean?

"It means everlasting application on the part of all Grand Officers, Committeemen and Deputies; extraordinary effort on the part of each Subordinate President. It demands that those IN authority speak WITH authority to the ghosts of depression and pessimism that are abroad in the land, to the end that the Native Daughters of the Golden West may 'Know and Be Known.'

" 'The World stands out on either side,
No wider than the heart is wide.'

"Sincerely and fraternally in P.D.F.A.,
"IRMA W. LAIRD,
"Grand President N.D.G.W.

"Alturas, September 16, 1933."

Increased Membership Urged.

San Andreas—A most enjoyable gathering of Calaveras County members was held at Angels Camp September 1, when Ruby No. 46 (Murphys), Princess No. 84 (Angels Camp) and San Andreas No. 113 (San Andreas) met in joint session to welcome Grand President Irma Laird on her official visit. Accompanying her was Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, and other grand officers in attendance were Grand Vice-president Gladys Noce, Supervising Deputy Emma Boarman Wright and Deputy Zaida Hertzig. Visitors from Joaquin, El Pescadero, Ursula and Amapola also attended. President Lilla Bisbee of Princess presided, and the ritual was exemplified in portions assigned to the three Parlors.

In an inspiring address, Grand President Laird pointed to the projects of the Order, including care of homeless children, veterans welfare, historical and landmarking activities and the Home, and she urged loyalty of members in attracting increased membership. Other grand officers and representatives of visiting delegations also spoke briefly. A banquet concluded the evening, more than sixty-five members being seated at tables decorated with autumn flowers.

Reminiscent of Old California.

Fullerton—Grace No. 242 members and their friends enjoyed an outdoor supper on the beautiful grounds of Mrs. Kate Hill's home in Placentia August 24. Cards were palyed later in the spacious rooms and refreshments were served. Reminiscent of old California was the spanish night fiesta August 31 at the beautiful Tuffree hacienda in Placentia. A fine program of Spanish music and dances was enjoyed. Mary Belle Chapman of Californiana Parlor added to the entertainment with two solos. Grace, acting as co-hostesses with Mr. and Mrs. John Tuffree, assisted by serving refreshments throughout the evening. A candy booth and fortune telling were financial benefits to No. 242.

September 7 the Parlor had a very interesting meeting. Supervising Deputy Marvel Thomas and Deputy Irene Eden were guests. Lena Wagner and her committee served coffee, cake and sandwiches. September 9 a number of members attended the Admission Day celebration at the Breakfast Club in Los Angeles. As its share of the program, Grace presented George "Bud" Forster in two vocal numbers.

Anniversary Observed.

Saint Helena—A long-to-be-remembered event in the annals of La Junta No. 203 was the celebration of the Parlor's twentieth institution anniversary. Among the guests were Past Grand May Boldemann who, as Grand President, instituted the Parlor, Supervising Deputy Wilna Mitchell, Deputy Lillus Kelley and ten members of Eschol. President Elise Metzner presided. A humorous skit was presented, and then came a fashion show, all the costumes being of twenty years or more back. Refreshments were served, and the enjoyable evening closed with the singing of "I Love You, California."

Two recent brides of La Junta—Mms. William L. Sanborn (nee Florence Waldeck) and Cecil Agivie (nee Gretchen Graff)—were honor guests of the Parlor September 5. Hearts was played, the prize going to Miss Martha Klubescheidt. Large decorated baskets, containing lovely and useful gifts, were presented the brides. Light refreshments were served.

Great Deed for Children Planned.

Oakland—Inspired by the message from Grand President Irma Laird in advocating some act of kindness in our community, Fruitvale No. 177, at the suggestion of Financial Secretary Chrissie Harrison, will adopt the cripple class of Mrs. Sheridan and Treasurer Nell Crowley of the Hawthorne school. A committee is now preparing gifts, and at a later date the Parlor will visit the school and be entertained by these little children.—L.K.

San Mateo Meet.

Daly City—The annual district meeting of the San Mateo County Parlors was held August 19. In honor of Supervising Deputy Rena Mathias and her daughter, Grand Outside Sentinel Alice Oldham, the gathering was designated Rena-Alice Parlor. Deputies Gladys Bennett, Isabel Lindquist, Alice Mattei, Hattie Kelly, Mana Theisen and Mary Junker, assisted by members from the county's six Parlors, exemplified the ritual in a most creditable manner and were highly complimented.

Among the many in attendance were Grand President Irma Laird, Grand Marshal Anna Thuesen, Grand Outside Sentinel Alice Oldham, Grand Organist Clara Gairaud, Past Grands Emma Foley, Margaret Hill, May Himes Noonan, Estelle Evans and Evelyn Carlson. Grand President Laird was presented with a silver gift, and a traveling bag was presented Supervising Deputy Mathias. Dainty refreshments were served. The expenses were met by contributions from the participating Parlors and the surplus was turned over to the Central Homeless Children Committee.

Benefit for Homeless Children.

Hollister—Copa de Oro No. 105 held a most entertaining meeting September 14, the first following the summer recess. A potluck dinner was served at 6:30, during which musical numbers were rendered by Mrs. Effa Hawkins and little Miss Marilyn Frost. The banquet and meeting halls were especially attractive with a profusion of bright autumn blossoms. Deputy Alberta McCormick installed the officers. The installing officers carried beautiful sprays of asters and ferns, while the officers-elect carried colorful french boquets. Deputy McCormick, Retiring President Rose Guilhamet and Past

Whist and bridge was enjoyed by those who did not wish to dance. Honored guests were Grand President Irma Laird and Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler, and Grand Trustee Edward Schnarr and Grand Marshal Gam Hurst of the Native Sons. Plans are under way for another dance in the near-future.

Aloha was entertained September 5 with an Admission Day program, presented by the literary committee, as follows: Essay on California, Past President Caroline Schulze, chairman; vocal solo, "Queen of the West," Marie Cordery; California poem, Edith Hoover; harmonica and piano solo, Eda Steuer. The monthly whist was held September 22 at the home of Johnina Lindblad.

Open Meeting Draws Large Crowd.

Pittsburg—A joint meeting of the eastern Contra Costa County Parlors was held September 14. All Native Sons and Native Daughters and their friends had been invited, and there was a large attendance. Supervising Deputy Mary Ross made the opening remarks, and Mayor High H. Donovan extended a welcome. Orchestral and vocal selections were rendered, Past Grand Estelle M. Evans accompanying the singers.

Speakers included Mrs. Irma Laird, N.D. Grand President; Justice Emmet Seawell, N.S. Grand President; B. O. Wilson, superintendent county schools; Dr. Mariana Bertola, N.D. Past Grand; John T. Regan, N.S. Grand Secretary, and Edna Hill. Parlors active in arranging the open meeting were Stirling No. 146 (Pittsburg), Donner No. 193 (Byron), Las Juntas No. 221 (Martinez) and Antioch No. 223.

Grand President To Visit Home Parlor.

Alturas—Past Grand Catherine E. Gloster has been appointed chairman of the women's division of the N.R.A. for Modoc County. Pioneers here were visited Admission Day by members of Alturas No. 159, who carried to them gifts and greetings. Past Grand Gloster had an appreciative audience when, at the September 7 meeting, she recounted the trip taken by her sister, Miss Dorothy Gloster, and herself east through the Panama Canal and west via the Canadian Rockies.

The Parlor is making great plans for the official visit of Grand President Irma Laird, affiliated with No. 159, October 6. The local Masonic lodge has departed from the rule that none other than a Masonic organization may use its beautiful new temple, and as a tribute to Mrs. Laird the use of the structure for the occasion was extended the Native Daughters.

NEWSY N.D. PARAGRAPHS.

Placerville—Grand President Irma Laird paid an official visit to Marguerite No. 12 September 6. Present also were Grand Vice-president Gladys Noce, Supervising Deputy Emma B. Wright and members of Ursula, Amapola and El Dorado Parlors. President Ruth Baumhoff presided and two candidates were initiated. Grand President Laird briefly outlined the work she thought Subordinate Parlors should take up, and stressed increased numbers, urging each member to secure a candidate. Refreshments were served under the chairmanship of Lily Zeisz, and a delightful program was presented by the entertainment committee, Agnes Scheff chairman.

Grass Valley—Manzanita No. 29 commemorated the state's birthday with a program, a pageant and a banquet September 5. Miss Jean Rowe, wearing a robe of golden satin, represented California. Mojave—Desert Gold No. 250 celebrated Admission Day by giving a dance. The balmy breezes enticed a large crowd, who enjoyed every minute of the evening. Supervisor Perry Brite escorted a large crowd from Bakersfield. Prizes for the oldest native daughter and native son went to Mrs. Geo. J. Haigh, 72, born in Tuolumne County, and Louis Boden, 58, born in Kern County. Visitors were present from Miocene and El Tejon Parlors. President Gertrude Phelps was in charge of all arrangements, and a neat sum was realized to help Desert Gold carry on.

In Memoriam

EMELIA SUNQUIST.

To the Officers and Members of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245 Native Daughters of the Golden West: Again, the Angel of Death has entered the portals of our Parlor and our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, has called from our midst our beloved sister, Emelia Sunquist

Resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family our deepest sympathy. It is our earnest prayer that God, in His Mercy, assuage their deep grief and send peace to their hearts, for she is not dead to those who love her; not lost, but gone before. She lives with us in memory, and will forever more. We shall hold in fond remembrance her cheerful smile, her loving ways and always helping hand. Be it further resolved, that our charter be draped for thirty days, and that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes, a copy sent to the bereaved family and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted in Friendship, Loyalty and Charity.

ANNA PIERCE,
MARY MEYER,
MYRTLE BARDEN,
Committee.

Santa Monica, September 12, 1933.

A Tribute to the Memory of MARY FRANCES MITCHELL By San Jose Parlor No. 81 N.D.G.W.

Again our Golden Chain has been broken and a loved member has Crossed the Bar. Always working for the best interests of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, her love of Country and devotion to our Flag will never be forgotten by those who knew her well.

While bowing in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, who has taken our loved sister, Mary Frances Mitchell, from our midst, we realize that San Jose Parlor No. 81 has lost a faithful member and her family a devoted mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. To these, we extend our deep sympathy, and commend them to a Higher Power for consolation in their grief. Their loved one has passed on to that Beautiful Home that awaits us all.

"Where the River of Life flows soft and sweet
Through the Garden of God so fair,
He has taken the loved ones, those broken ties.
We shall find them waiting there."

OLAIRE BORCHERS,
MARGARET A. GILLERAN,
NELLIE FLEMING,
Committee.

San Jose, September 20, 1933.

A JEST

(N. H. DUNNING.)

He gave the world a friendly nod,
And asked of it a little space
In which to keep the modern pace.
Yet, save a speedy fall from grace,
It only frowned a bit and said,
"Keep off the grass!"

Again he said, "Dear World, how odd
Indeed. I'll chance a little fall,
If you can make it rational.
The thing I said was just a 'stall'."
The world replied, "Just go ahead.
I'm sure you'll pass!"

SAN FRANCISCO

"THIS IS SUPPOSED TO BE A GOVernment of the people," said Chairman William J. Locke in an address before the municipal government section of the Commonwealth Club. "But when you come right down to it, this is a government of a very small part of the people. It's only too easy to sit down at home evenings instead of going out to take part in public activities. This has been the practice of many citizens during times of prosperity—so long as these men were making money they didn't care who governed or how.

"A question which the Club might well study would be, 'Are our cities governed by organized minorities?' I believe a minority of less than ten percent can put over things opposed to the interest of the other nine-tenths of the people. Somehow, the fact that a group is organized and has an interest at stake makes it very powerful.

"It may be that the new sales tax will interest people more in their government—because when you hit a man over the head or put your hand in his pocket he immediately becomes interested in finding out what it's all about."

PATRIOTISM RENEWED.

At the monthly Native Daughter Home breakfast September 17, Josephine Parker of Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 and Ethel Browning of Castro Parlor No. 178 were the hostesses. Joseph Tinney was the principal speaker, his topic being "What Are the Native Daughters of the Golden West Going To Do for the Government," and his address renewed the patriotism and the pride of his hearers.

Other speakers were Past Grands Grace S. Stoermer, Dr. Mariana Bertola, Genevieve Watson-Baker and Mary E. Bell, Josephine Cereghino and Natalie Clark. A skit, entitled "I Cannot Sing the Old, Old Songs I Sang so Long Ago," composed by Ruby Bried and her daughter, Esther, both of El Vespero Parlor No. 118, was presented by them, assisted by the San Francisco N.D. Glee Club. Mrs. Bried, attired in a dress belonging to her great-grandmother, described the songs to her daughter, who represented a little child, and the glee club hummed the tunes.

PERFECT IN EVERY DETAIL.

The official visit of Grand President Irma W. Laird to El Vespero Parlor No. 118 N.D.G.W., eagerly looked forward to by the members, was successfully carried out in every detail by them. Past President Agnes Ryan was chairman of the meeting, while President Mary J. Casey conducted the opening ceremonies. Immediately afterward, while bells rang merrily, the Grand President was escorted and introduced as the San Francisco Glee Club, led by Past President Ruby Bried of El Vespero, and members sang a special greeting song. Two candidates were initiated. Among those present were representatives of every San Francisco Parlor, many of the Bay counties district deputies, Past Grands Margaret Hill, Mae Boldemann and Evelyn Carlson, Grand Marshal Anna Thuesen, Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler, Grand Outside Sentinel Alice Oldham, Grand Trustee Orinda Giannini, Supervising Deputies Ann Dippel, Sadie Brainard and Rena Matthias.

After the meeting, which the Grand President termed perfect in every detail, Past President Evelyn Ford, chairman of the official visit, and her assistants entertained more than two hundred at a beautifully decorated table with a splendidly served repast. Articles of silver were presented the Grand President and Deputy Emily Ryan, and the glee club and all visiting grand officers were given souvenirs of the occasion. Merited praise was bestowed on the "mother" of the Parlor, Mrs. Nell R. Boege, who has been an officer ever since El Vespero was organized by her thirty-three years ago. In a letter to the Parlor since the official visit, Grand President Laird tells El Vespero "it was one of the most beautiful and dignified of fraternal occasions that it has ever been my pleasure to experience. The evening was everything that could be desired; as near perfection as human efforts could make it." Past President Ann Godfrey of No. 118 is deputy this term for La Estrella Parlor No. 89.—N.R.B.

ANNIVERSARIES OBSERVED.

Orinda Parlor No. 56 N.D.G.W. celebrated its forty-third institution anniversary August 31. The evening was also dedicated to Past Grand Emma G. Foley, in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of her Grand Presidency. All charter members, those being affiliated with Orinda twenty-five years and more, Grand President Irma Laird, Past Grands Genevieve Baker and Foley, Grand Trustee Orinda Giannini and Deputy Mae Warring were special guests.

Charter Members Foley, Kate Jewell, Kate Britschgi and Alna Loser related the Parlor's history. A fashion show presented by the dramatic club displayed garments worn during the past quarter-century by Past Grand Foley, who was presented with a brief case. A skit, "The Family Photographer," was also presented by the dramatic club.

PROUD.

Members of Gabrielle Parlor No. 139 N.D.G.W. greeted Grand President Irma Laird on her official visit, September 13, as a proud Parlor. Its drill team was one of the cup winners at Santa Rosa, September 9. This was the team's first public appearance. Many visitors were present, among them Deputy Merle Sandell.

N.D.G.W. DISTRICT MEET.

Honoring Grand President Irma W. Laird, the district meeting of the San Francisco N.D.G.W. deputies will be held the evening of October 30 in Native Son Auditorium under the direction of Supervising Deputy Ann Dippel. The following will officiate: Emily Ryan, as president, Emma Omeara, Ann Godfrey, Edna Bishop, Mae Warring, Inga Meyer, Ida Mesquite, Alice Shirley, Adele Walsh, Lena Wall, Mazie Roderick, Ernestine McCormick, Mae Noble, Margaret McGowen, Merle Sandell, May McDonald and Gertrude LaFortune.

WOOLEN COSTUMES ARE IMPORTANT in the fashion picture this season. A paramount example of the current styles is the one-piece dress with a detachable cape of rich, dark gray; warm, but extremely soft and light in weight. It is flecked with silvery bits of rabbit hair and made on slim, straight lines. The frock achieves distinction through simplicity. The detachable cape fastens at the throat with two gunmetal buttons which are darker than the dress and add a note of contrast. Complementing such a costume is an ingenious version of the beret, fashioned of soft duvetyn and trimmed with a jaunty cockade of feathers. Black suede gloves, bag and shoes are suitable accessories.

Other modern costumes of dull woolens are accented with trimmings of satin, and advanced styles also feature combinations with plaid. Short or finger-tip jackets complete many of these costumes. Sheer woolen dresses with matching jackets are shown with tops of striped tie silk.

Other one-piece dresses have sleeveless boleros of fur. Furs are more varied than ever before, but they must be good furs. The fur trimming on coats is concentrated all at one place—neck and sleeves, or skirt, but not in two places at once.

It is a great suit year, but not for the simple little mannish jacket suits, either with short or three-quarters fitted coats. If I was going to have only one fall suit, I would not let the shoulders extend or even bulge. I might have a hip basque, because I could take that off when ever I tired of it.

The lingerie touch is definitely out. No more little collars of organdie, or linen, or frills. If there must be a touch of white on fall clothes, it will be in silk, satin, wool or fur, and it must be just a touch.

Colors are either dark and rich, or dark and grayed, but they are all dark, so after all the new colors, the smart person chooses black. Satin is especially good this year, the all-silk variety being particularly good looking. It is soft and supple and has a wonderful sheen that has not been evident for years. An all-black satin or crepe is smart, but many prefer a bit of contrasting color or material.

Taffeta is excellent for lapels and the newer features of the mode, and now that the repeal is practically upon us the speakeasy gown of last season has become the cocktail party dress of today. This means that you may wear a five-o'clock cocktail party costume on through the dinner at six, the theatre at eight and the night club at twelve, and be appropriately dressed at all times.

One of the newest outfits points with pride to its Gibson-girl lines and flaunts a dust ruffle beneath its floor-length hem. It is of black velvet, with a long sweeping skirt and a tight little basque bodice, buttoned up to its high neckline with flashing crystal buttons. Full sleeves are gathered on to a slightly dropped shoulder line, and become tightly fitted from elbow to wrist. With it, one may wear a brimmed black velvet hat with a trimming of ostrich plumes, and be ready to sail in on any gathering.

Another gay-nineties gown, intended for dinner and theater wear, is also of black velvet. It is fitted closely to the figure and has that off-the-shoulder line which was so popular long ago. Wide, crisp, black net ruching finishes the bodice top, and the gown is held on by narrow shoulder straps, but they hardly show behind the ruching. This, too, may be worn with a big brimmed hat of black velvet and plumes, black velvet gloves edged with ostrich, and gobs of rhinestone bracelets.

Evening wraps are gracefully long and warm. Velvet gives an added stately effect when trimmed with white fur or squirrel and fitted around the shoulders instead of the neck. Coquetry, too, returns with frills, furbelows and fans. The new collars are designed to give the beguiling lines of 1910. Silhouette and shoulder widths are achieved in a variety of ingenious ways.

It is the little things in fashion that make or mar the costume. Accessories are to the mode what the frame is to the picture. Neither can function without the other. There was a time when the average woman could manage fairly well with two sets of accessories, one for daytime and one for evening. Today, a dozen sets are not too many. The more jewelry one wears today, the smarter she appears.

Rhinestone and cut-steel shoe buckles are back in vogue, and once more jeweled clips are worn on gowns, bags, hats, and even belts. There is great use for exotic costume jewelry such as bracelets, necklaces and earrings. "Button, button, who has the button?" Buttons are just one of the features of fall fashion. Everything has buttons on it, and it looks as if designers are lying awake nights trying to find new uses for them.

Velvets in new beret types have fine stitchings, draped crowns, rhinestone clips, face veils and drooped brims. Fabric hats have self-trimming ribbon bands and feathers. Felt hats come in ingenious designs and colors such as black, brown, navy blue, green, eel and light gray.

Lovely evening bags are beaded with synthetic pearls, crystal beads and rhinestones, or with all-black beads. Several designs are offered, including the pouch style, having frames inlaid with synthetic pearls and brilliants. Many new ornaments accent handbags, and the jeweled mirror clips reflect fashion's favor. The quilted satin style is new. The smooth, dull calfskin is accented with bright metal and has much style merit.

By all means, buy velvet gloves for evening. Bright velvet gloves in elbow length will be a fashionable note this fall and will be worn with white or black evening gowns. Imported velvet gloves with soft leather palms for better fit are shown in bright green, red, black and some pastel shades.

Fine shoes in new designs are masterpieces of artistry and workmanship. Superior quality leathers make possible greater beauty. Satin-finished kid-skin complements sheer fabrics and satins. Brown crocodile in the vamp and heel, with brown suede uppers, correctly complements rough crepes and tweed costumes.

Color is important in autumn and fall hosiery. A new clocked ingrain chiffon is favored for afternoon occasions in alibaba, vichy or afton. Hosiery is shown without clocks in brown, biscayne, friars brown, jungle and spice brown.

The football season has already started, so one has to consider a coat for this occasion. Nothing is nicer than tweeds. One is of dark brown and beige, with a huge collar of natural raccoon, exaggerated sleeves, and a very wide belt. Another is of dark gray worsted, with sleeves and collar of shaded krimmer. It is slightly fitted and buttoned with three bone buttons, and is worn with a duvetyn beret which has a floppy bow on the top and over the right eye. Light gray doeskin gloves and dark gray suede pumps or oxfords complete this outfit.

A favorite shade for fall is what is called a red henna. It is very near the old so-called burnt orange—that gorgeous warm color which makes one look so alive. This color is lovely on both blondes and brunettes.

"Back To Good Times" is the slogan for the twenty-ninth annual convention of California realtors, to be held October 4-7 at Riverside City.

School Bonds—Long Beach, Los Angeles County, has voted $4,930,000 bonds for public schools construction.

RED OCEAN

William A. Evans

THE FISHING BOAT "AMERICA" WAS the neatest looking boat tied at Fisherman's Wharf. Her grey painted hull was scrubbed clean; the deck washed and swabbed dry. Her bait tanks were milling with lively sardines. Plenty of fresh water was aboard, and her fuel tank was full. She was ready to go, and there was nothing to do now but wait until the sportsfellows arrived.

Joe Bonimi, her owner, hired the boat out by the day to small parties of men who wished to try their luck at the big fish outside the kelp beds. Joe was standing on the aft bait tank picking off dead sardines with a small net. There were so many in the tanks that the weaker ones died off. When they floated belly-up, Joe scooped down with his net and flicked them into the bay.

Sig Larson was Joe's only helper. Sig was sixteen, and every summer when school let out he went to work on the "America." He was husky and well built for his age, although a little too short. His shoulders were unusually wide for a boy's; his arms were those of a big man's and covered with a thick crop of yellow hair. Sitting on an upturned bucket at the port side of the cabin he looked like a squatting gorilla, his uncombed shock of blonde hair giving a wild look. He was scraping the rust from a large fishhook with his pocketknife.

"I got to quit and go back to school next week," he said.

"Yes?" said Joe. "Well, that's okay. I got my kid-brother coming back on the 'Florance.' They been down for tuna."

"Joe," said Sig, "are you sure Mr. Kelly is bringing his daughter with him this time?"

"That's what he said. Why you so interested?"

"I knew her at school," said Sig. "She didn't know me, though."

"Stuck up like most of these rich guy's kids."

"No," said Sig. "She just never saw me. Runs with some rich kid with a classy roadster. I got an old Ford."

"If you land a jewfish today she'll see you plenty."

Sig scratched his neck below his chin with the fishhook and shook his head from side to side.

"I think they all been caught," he said. "I didn't get a strike this summer yet."

A car honked above them on the wharf. Sig looked up and saw a large sedan draw over by the edge and stop. Five men got out. They were dressed in white trousers and sport coats.

"Hello, Mr. Kelly," said Joe in a loud voice, then swooped down and flicked up a floating sardine from the tank.

"Good-morning," said Mr. Kelly.

He was a large man with a round, bloated stomach that held his shirt stretched out in front. His panama hat had a blue and red band around it.

The five men stood on the edge of the wharf and looked down at the "America." While they stood there the chauffeur untied their fishing poles from the side of the car and handed them down to Sig. Next he passed down several large baskets filled with lunch. Sig stood the poles by the cabin and put the baskets inside.

Later, after the men had climbed down the ladder and were aboard, a blue roadster pulled up and parked in back of the sedan. A girl in a sailor hat and sport dress jumped from the car. She was followed by a young fellow about Sig's age dressed in knickers and a red sweater.

"About time they showed up," said Kelly. "Been fooling along the way."

When the couple climbed down the ladder and stood on the deck Kelly introduced them to the other men as his daughter, Lucelle, and her boy friend, Ted Wilson.

"All set to go?" Kelly asked Joe.

"Sure, sure," said Joe, grinning.

"We're off, then."

"Cut her loose, Sig," said Joe, "while I kick over the engine."

The "America" threw up a lot of water at her stern, then slowly drew away from the wharf and moved toward the center of the harbor. Her bow was pointed in the direction of Point Loma and the Pacific Ocean beyond.

As soon as the boat was well under way Sig went into the cabin and put on a clean shirt. Then he wet his hair with some water from a bucket sitting in the corner. When he had finished combing his hair he hid the comb under one of the mattresses where he always kept it, then went out to keep an eye on the bait.

The sun had been up but a short while, and the air was still damp and coolish from a foggy night. Later, the air would be hot and sticky, but now it was pleasant. The bow, cutting cleanly through the water, left a long, white line on either side of the boat.

When they reached the south end of the kelp beds Joe swung north along the outer edge and headed for La Jolla. All ready there were scores of fishing boats moving in the same line. Some were moving slowly, trawling lines out, jigs skipping behind. Others chummed with sardines, trying to spot the yellowtail and barracuda schools.

Joe kept a sharp lookout ahead for seagulls swooping down in gangs; when they ganged up it was a good sign of the big fish chasing the sardines to the surface. He slowed down the boat as they neared the kelp break off La Jolla, then cut off the engine and ran forward to kick loose the anchor. A moment or so later and the "America" swung on her anchor, motionless save for a long, easy heave from side to side.

As soon as Sig had passed out bait to the men and cleared the tanks of dead fish he went into the cabin and got his jewfish outfit. For bait he used a dead mackerel that he unwrapped from a newspaper. The mackerel was two days old and had started to rot.

"Good," said Joe, coming up behind Sig. "The more it stinks the better the jewfish likes it."

"That's the way I figure," said Sig. "I left it out in the sun all yesterday afternoon so it would be good and ripe."

He dropped the hook over the side, letting it run through his fingers. The bolt that acted as a sinker carried it down with a rush. A sudden slackening told him he had touched bottom and he hauled the line back several feet, then made it fast to the boat.

"Listen," said Joe. "Go up in the bow and ask Mr. Kelly's kid and her feller if they want to fish. You can rig them up with outfits from the box. I'll take the first trick at passing out the bait to these guys."

Sig nodded and went up forward. He found the couple seated on the chain locker. The girl was laughing and talking, but the boy was silent, his mouth drooping at the corners.

"Want to fish?" asked Sig. "I'll rig you up with a couple outfits."

The girl smiled and started to nod her head, but her companion made a sudden movement toward the rail and leaned far over. He stayed there for a few moments, then straightened, his face a greenish white.

"Pardon," he said to the girl. "I thought I was going to be ill but I guess it was only a notion. We don't want to mess about with fishing, do we?"

Lucelle was looking sideways at Sig and did not answer. Finally she said, "Haven't I seen you at school?"

"Sure," said Sig.

"Don't you remember him, Ted?"

Ted looked at Sig for a moment, then nodded. "Kind of," he said.

He turned away and stared down at the water as if trying to remember, then suddenly leaned over and started to vomit. Presently he took his handkerchief from his pocket and wiped the outside of his lips.

"Want to lay down?" asked Sig. "There's a pair of bunks in the cabin. Use either of them."

Without answering him, Ted got up from beside Lucelle and walked toward the cabin, steadying himself with the rail. He went inside without looking back.

"He'll be all right," said Sig. "I used to heave once in a while like that."

Lucelle gave him a quick look, then stared down at her hands, which were palms up in her lap. The thumbs lay in the palms and the fingers were pressed tightly about them. She kept her head bowed for a while, but finally gave a little shrug and looked up at him.

"I'd like to fish," she said, "but you'll have to show me how."

Sig ran over to the cabin and pulled one of the bamboo poles out of a rack. He fastened a reel to the pole, then went back to the bait tanks to get a sardine.

"I'm going to show her how to fish," he said to Joe.

Joe tossed a sardine at him and winked meaningly.

"I see you got her feller off his feet," he said.

"If I get my jewfish," Sig said, "that guy won't have a chance."

With the wriggling sardine held tightly in one hand he went back to Lucelle in the bow. While she watched, he slipped the hook through the fish's nose, then cast out a short distance. The bait wheeled about in small circles, then dropped lower, carried down by the weight of the line.

"Now we just stand and wait," said Sig. "Pretty soon you get a little tug. That's a yellowtail killing the bait. Then he'll draw back and grab the whole thing with a rush. You set the hook with a yank, then let him run until he gets pooped."

"Oh!"

Sig handed her the pole.

"Lay your thumb on the reel like that," he said.

She looked deeply interested and held the pole carefully, the way he had shown her. The butt of the pole was pressed lightly in the pit of her arm; the thumb of her left hand lay gently on the reel.

Sig sat down on the chain locker and leaned back on his elbows. Lucelle was standing quite close to him, and he stared hard at her back, then down at her legs, which were stockingless. They were skinny, but well shaped, and a good coat of tan covered them—tan the color of a sea trout's back.

Lucelle gave a sudden cry and jerked violently on the pole. The next second the reel was humming as the line shot out from it.

"Here," she cried, "I can't hold it."

Sig grabbed the pole from her and tightened up the drag. The reel slowed down and he was able to draw the fish in for a ways, but it turned and started for the bottom. He let it go with the drag fairly tight, then started to reel in slowly.

"I nearly got it," he said over his shoulder. "It's about ripe to jerk in."

It was nearly five minutes before he could bring the fish to the surface and lift its head clear of the water. Then, with the line wrapped around one hand, he swung down with a gaff and stuck the fish in back of the head. The next moment it was threshing about the deck.

"Twenty pound yellowtail," said Sig. "Not bad."

Lucelle hopped from one foot to the other. She was excited and could hardly wait to get her line into the water again and start fishing. Her face was flushed and she was giggling as if catching the fish had made her intoxicated.

When the bait had been put on the hook and tossed out, she moved closer to Sig. For a moment she stood there looking down at the wheeling sardine, then slipped one hand through the crook of his arm. Sig's face got red and he stared down at the bait, trying not to notice her hand.

"I wish Ted could fish," she said. "He can't do a thing but play golf."

Sig laughed loudly. "It takes a man to fish."

"Yes," said Lucelle, nodding, "I guess you're right."

They watched the sardine for a while without speaking. Finally Sig rubbed his shin-bone with the other knee, then turned his face so as to look straight at her.

"What do you want to go with a guy that gets sick for?" he asked. "I wouldn't if I was you."

"Oh, Ted," said Lucelle. "Why, we've been friends ever since grammar-school days."

"Well, I could teach you a lot of things about fishing."

"Yes, I guess you could, all right."

"Say, then," said Sig. "What's the matter with me coming out to see you or something?"

Lucelle wrinkled up her nose and started to laugh. But she stopped suddenly and looked at him soberly, her nostrils twitching.

"I'll tell you," she said. "You said that fish weighed twenty pounds. Well, if you can get one, say about a hundred pounds, you can come out and see me. Why, I might even tell Ted to stay home that night."

At this Sig turned and looked at his jewfish line, then gave a sudden start. It was taut and stood out from the side of the boat. He jumped away from Lucelle and made a grab for the line, just as Ted, his face drained of all color, lurched from the cabin and leaned over the railing.

"Joe," yelled Sig, "I got it!"

Joe leaped down from the bait tank and ran into the cabin. He came out with a rusty shotgun in his hand and leaned it against the railing. Then he and Sig took a good hold on the line and started to haul in the fish. It was hard work; they made little headway at first. Gradually, though, the great fish weakened. Presently they could see it swimming back and forth below them. It loomed up as big as a house, and was a flashing silver in color. There was no fight in it; merely a powerful pull in the opposite direction.

"Brace yourself," said Joe, panting. "I'm letting go to grab the gun."

Sig took a fresh hold and heaved upwards with all his might. Joe held the gun pointed down at the water and the instant the jewfish's head broke through he fired.

LOS ANGELES CITY AND COUNTY

THE CELEBRATION OF ADMISSION Day, September 9, arranged by a joint committee representing all the Los Angeles County Native Daughters and Native Sons Parlors, was a wonderful success in every particular and attracted a large crowd. Mrs. Gertrude Allen of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. was the general chairman.

A pioneer reception in the afternoon was attended by many in costumes of the '49 period. Then came the outofdoors basket supper, which was followed by an elaborate program of entertainment, talent for which was contributed by the various Parlors. The program opened with the assemblage enthusiastically singing "I Love You, California," President Roger Johnson of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. accompanying at the piano.

Frank G. Tyrrell of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. gave a stirring address on "The Significance of Admission Day," and stressed its relation to the patriotic duty of citizens of today. His forceful and eloquent address was listened to with marked attention, and at its conclusion he was greeted with rounds of applause. Dancing concluded the Admission Day festivities, which are generally declared to have been the very best ever featured locally.

NATIVE SONS UNITED ACTIVITIES.

The Luncheon Club, a creation of Grand Trustee Eldred L. Meyer, has become well established and each Friday the gatherings become more popular. September chairmen were Past Grand Herman C. Lichtenberger, M. U. Rosenthal and Robert E. Ford (Hollywood No. 196), Clarence M. Hunt (Sacramento No. 3) and Grand Trustee Meyer. At the September 29 meeting Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin gave an inspiring talk on the Order.

The club assembles every Friday at 12:15 (noon) at the Rosslyn Hotel, and adjourns promptly at 1:15. Join the "gang" and get a real "kick" out of goodfellowship.

The Central Membership Committee, Henry G. Bodkin (Hollywood No. 196) chairman, is fostering the united Parlors' monthly vaudeville shows, and is receiving congratulations for its efforts to increase the membership of the Los Angeles County Parlors. Bring your eligible friends to these excellent shows, the purpose of which is to interest native Californians in the worthwhileness of affiliation with the Order of Native Sons.

The third in the series of monthly shows, which will be continued throughout the year, will be held at the meetingplace of Hollywood Parlor No. 196, 1089 North Oxford avenue.—W.E.O.

PILGRIMAGE TO SAN GABRIEL.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. started another series of its enjoyable and successful card parties September 13; Ann Schiebusch was chairman. A Sunday morning breakfast was enjoyed at Ferndell Canyon September 17. Edna Holcomb and Mary McAnany were in charge, and after the splendid meal served in the open a pilgrimage was made to San Gabriel Mission.

Six candidates were initiated September 20, and the splendid ritual rendition by President Dolores Malin and her officers was greatly enjoyed. Among the many visitors were Grand Inside Sentinel Hazel Hansen and Deputy Marian Crum. The Parlor was congratulated on its activities and success. Delicious refreshments were served by an able committee headed by Kate Williams. President Malin, Mattie L. Gara and Mary McAnany will represent the Parlor at an advertising conference. Ann Schiebusch, Edna Trombatore and Rose Graffia have been appointed a committee to present plans for a supper.

Los Angeles' October calendar: 3rd, sewing club meeting at the home of Leonie and Jeanne Clos, 1939 Virginia road, 7 p.m. 11th, card party, second of tournament. 18th, potluck dinner, with Marie Walsh as the speaker.

NEWSY N.S. PARAGRAPHS.

Los Angeles—Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 entertained September 21 California Pioneers, many of whom responded to the invitation. Past Grand John T. Newell presided and extended a welcome, and Joe Messmer, president Los Angeles County Pioneer Society, responded for the guests. Dr. Owen C. Coy, director California State Historical Association, delivered an interesting history talk, and entertainment was provided under the supervision of President Roger Johnson. Refreshments were served. The occasion was most enjoyable. The Parlor will receive an official visit from Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin October 12.

Los Angeles—President Charles E. Straube of Ramona Parlor No. 109, with the co-operation of the officers and members, is endeavoring to put over a plan whereby the Parlor will acquire land in the close-by mountains and build thereon a clubhouse for the members' free use. It is planned, also, to have an auto campsite on the shoreline, probably between Los Angeles and San Diego. "It is hoped," says Straube, "these splendid inducements will interest the present members and attract many new ones." Ramona will have initiation October 13, and the birthday dinner for the Oct ber boys will be featured October 28. These birthday dinners, originated by Past President Frank Adams, have become very popular.

Los Angeles—Hollywood Parlor No. 196 will feature one of its noted "stag" parties October 9, when Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin pays an official visit; Harold Thomas heads the arrangements committee. October 30, Hollywood will sponsor the third of the united Parlors' entertainments to promote interest in the Order. An especially good program is promised. "Bring your eligibles," urges Deputy Grand President John J. Ford.

Glendale—Glendale Parlor No. 264 will have a special meeting October 3 at its meetingplace, 3311 Downing avenue, to receive Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin on his official visit. All members of the Order are invited.

Santa Monica—Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 will initiate a class of candidates October 4, when Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin makes his official visit.

Going Forward

Today's events will be history tomorrow. Textbooks of the future will record the sweeping changes of the past seven months. Mass action and mobilization under government leadership has replaced uncoordinated individual effort; our international policy has changed; a new balance has been effected in government personnel. But the past has endowed Americans with resilience, initiative, and courage to adapt themselves to change—to keep them "going forward." California Bank's heritage from the past is one of wisdom and experience; of progressive leadership that has made it a dominant force in the community's growth, and fitted it too, to deal effectively and intelligently with changing conditions. It is doing its part in the N.R.A. program, just as, for thirty years, it has been doing its part in the development of Los Angeles, City and County. Since 1903, through good times and bad, California Bank has stood ready to lend money to sound business enterprises. It will continue to do so.

Los Angeles —University Parlor No. 272 initiated five candidates September 20; refreshments followed the ceremony. The Parlor will join with Compton Parlor No. 273, at the latter's meetingplace, for the official visit of Grand Second Vice-president Harmon D. Skillin. "By all means don't make any prior dates for the night of October 28," is Recording Secretary Carl Martin's urge on the members of the Order, "for University has its first birthday and plans a huge event that you cannot afford to miss. Details will be announced in your Parlor shortly."

INCREASED MEMBERSHIP, of substantial quality, is TODAY'S OUTSTANDING NEED of the Order of Native Sons. COMB THE FIELDS, urges the Grand President, who solicits NOW the co-operation of every Native Son. Bear in mind always, THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR MEMBERSHIP, and rally to the cause.

HISTORY CLASS DRAWING CARD.

The history and landmarks class of Californiana Parlor No. 247 N.D.G.W. proved a drawing card for September 12. Early California explorers were studied, and books were allotted for review at the October meeting. Isabel Lopez Fages is the chairman. Program Chairman Martha Decker provided two interesting speakers following luncheon—Miss Florence Woodhead and Mrs. Arthur Clark.

The one hundred and fifty-second anniversary of the founding of Los Angeles was celebrated by the Parlor visiting September 4 the Felipe de Neve statue in the Plaza. In preparation for the bazar to be held in December for the benefit of the homeless children, the sewing circle had two delightful meetings during the month. Miss Mary E. Foy presided with delightful oldtime hospitality at a tea following the September 26 meeting; many guests attended. An autumn bridge was held at the home of Mrs. Oscar Schmidt September 28; Past President Gertrude Tuttle was in charge.

NEWSY N.D. PARAGRAPHS.

Long Beach—Meetings of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 were held at the home of President Eleonor Johnson September 7 and 21. August 31 a steak bake was held at Gussie Tabor's home; Clara Fay chairman. The thimble club had a special meeting at the home of Kate McFadyen, August 29, and completed school dresses for several children. The club met September 4 at the home of Lucretia Coats.

San Pedro—Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 has been very active lately, sponsoring several card parties, and its sewing club has featured picnics at the beaches and in the parks. A large number attended the two-act play presented by the Women's Aid of Terminal Island. Verniece Durant was chairman of the arrangements committee.

Glendale—An all-day party at the home of Grand Inside Sentinel Hazel Hansen September 27, in behalf of Verdugo Parlor No. 240, was well attended. Luncheon was followed by cards, and at 6:30 p.m. supper was served. The proceeds are to be used to purchase a California State (Bear) Flag for Glendale's new postoffice. Ada Steele had charge of the luncheon, and Vera Carlson of the dinner. Verdugo is making plans for a dinner dance and bazar to be held November 18.

Santa Monica—Recording Secretary Rosalie F. Hyde sponsored a "chowder" bridge September 23 at her Venice home for the benefit of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 245.

There was no struggle; only a sudden bursting from the water of a great massive body. It lay still, belly-up, and a great red hole showed where the shots had ripped through the head. The water around it turned a deep red as the blood ran out.

"Give us a hand," said Joe to the men leaning over the railing near them.

He stuck two gaffs into the fish, and the men took hold. Sig reached down with one hand and shoved his fingers in under the fish's left eyeball. Together they worked the four-hundred-pound ocean scavenger up over the railing and let it slide down to the deck.

Only once did Sig look at Lucelle. She was watching him, her lips parted, eyes very wide. Her face was quite pale. He smiled at her, then turned and ran into the cabin to return with a short butcherknife in one hand.

"Hey, there," said Joe. "What's the idea? It'll get sunburnt if you clean it now. Wait until we start back."

"Aw, listen," said Sig in a half-whisper. "I got to beat that other kid's time somehow. I want to show her what a real man can do while she's in the mind to watch.

Joe shrugged. "You're nuts," he said, "but it's your fish."

Without a word Sig peeled off his shirt and, naked to the waist, kneeled by the scaled mass. He slid the point of his knife from the head down a distance of three feet, leaving a gaping hole in the belly. Into this he plunged his arms to the elbows and brought out an armful of entrails. He laid his burden on the deck and slashed loose the long yellow tubes that connected the mass of quivering substance to the inside of the fish. Then, piece by piece, he flung the chunks over the side. Each separate piece he held aloft for a second and called aloud its name, so the men grouped about would better understand.

When the jewfish was cleaned Sig fastened a stout cord in back of its gills. A beam extended from the top of the cabin and attached to it was a block and tackle. Sig hauled his fish up until only its tail touched the deck. Then, with buckets of sea-water he slushed off the blood, both inside and out.

"Fourteen minutes," said Joe. "Big Pete always took seventeen or more and he never did tell the sportsfellows the names of the guts."

Sig laughed and drew back to better view the fish. Blood was smeared the whole of his torso and on his arms were flecks of entrails; bits of stringy stuff.

He looked around for Lucelle and found that she no longer watched him. He found her up in the bow. She was watching the shoreline, and with her was young Ted Wilson.

Sig brushed the hair back from his forehead, then went up behind the couple.

"Why don't you come and look at it?" he said. "I'll make you a present of it, Lucelle."

They turned to look at him. Lucelle moved as far away as possible and stood up in the very point of the bow.

"I don't want it," she said in a low voice.

"It'll pass a hundred and then some," said Sig. "Why, it'll hit four hundred at least. Remember what you said?"

Lucelle had her back to him, but she turned her head slightly to look. Her teeth began to chatter together, and her shoulders shook. Then suddenly she made a queer sound with her mouth and leaned away out over the railing.

Sig stood there for a moment, perplexed at her sudden change. Then, shrugging, he went back to look at the jewfish again.

(This story is a contribution to The Grizzly Bear from William A. Evans of San Diego, well known short story writer affiliated with San Diego Parlor No. 108 N.S.G.W. "Uncle Jim's Farm," another of his stories which appeared in The Grizzly Bear for January 1932, was received with much favor by the magazine's readers. —Editor.)
